When Eighteenth-century Paris was still wearing the picturesque three-cornered hat Benjamin Franklin came to represent the new republic of the United States, wearing on his head a queer thing derived from the steeple crowns of the Puritan Pilgrim fathers. Paris copied it and turned it into the cylinder which Christendom has worn ever since, says the Detroit News.

In the Eighteenth century when partisans of France and of Russia were fighting it out in Sweden the French faction wore hats, the Russians caps. The Middle ages, as a familiar ballad reminds us, knew a Pilgrim by his "cockle hat."

Social Affairs

Members of Hoge Memorial Christian Endeavor Society becoming aware that Wednesday, August 13th, was the twenty-first birthday anniversary of Mr. Fred C. Ault, they prepared a celebration for him on that event and after quietly gathering in the church house on South Eureka Avenue he was enticed into the place and given a big surprise. The evening was pleasantly spent by all with games and refreshments. Following were present: Bayard C. Temple, Myles E. Robinson, Elizabeth Moore of Leesburg, Ohio, Mary Ann Porter, Vernon Frederick, Ardath Roberts, Dorothy Frederick, Helen Cunningham, Ruth Beckett, Lowell Drum, Carroll Casselman, Jas. Finley, Paul R. McCloud, David Mattson, Norman Wagner, Rev. Richard E. Sanders and N. C. Ault.

The marriage of Miss Lucille Mae Amrine to Mr. R. Arthur Shipley of Linden was solemnized Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Amrine, 460 South Warren Avenue. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wallin Riebel, pastor of Burgess Ave. U. B. Church, in the presence of fifty relatives and friends.

The bride's dress was of beautiful white georgette and satin with accordion pleated, lace trimmed panels. The bride carried a bouquet of roses and snapdragons.

Mr. Earl Neff, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man and Miss Ruth Livingston, aunt of the bride, was maid of honor and carried a bouquet of gladioli.

Mrs. Louise Rice played the Lohengrin wedding march and Mrs. Hazel Holycross sang "O Perfect Love."

The bride and groom will be at home at 460 South Warren Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Hyde and daughters, Priscilla and Gertrude, of S. Burgess Ave., motored to Muncie, where they will be for 10 days with Mr. and Mrs. Hilford McNaughten, the latter a sister of Mrs. Hyde.

Dr. and Mrs. O. J. Burns, 2141 W. Broad St., are home from a seven weeks' stay in Boston. Dr. Burns was taking post graduate work at Harvard Medical School.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Colvill and daughter, Doris, 35 South Harris Ave., left Saturday for a two weeks' trip north and east. They will visit Buffalo Niagara Falls, Albany, New York, Boston and Washington before returning.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hone, 406 South Burgess avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ramsey, 934 West Broad street, left last Saturday for a motoring trip.

The Primary Department of Glenwood M. E. Sunday School entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Hanawalt, 135 Eldon Ave., with a picnic Tuesday evening, August 19th. A very pleasant surprise was given in the form of a beautiful handkerchief shower, in honor of Miss Ruth Merriman, a former teacher of the Primary Department, and retiring secretary of Glenwood M. E. Church, who leaves the 8th of September for Washington, D. C., to enter Bible training at the Lucy Webb Hayes National Training School for Young Women. Her many friends wish her the best of success in her new undertaking.

Mrs. Bertha Hitchcok of 28 South Burgess Avenue was hostess to a large dinner party Sunday honoring her sister, Mrs. J. H. Russel and little daughter Dorothy of Temple, Tex. and her brother, Dr. C. E. Orders of Indianapolis, Ind. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Alf Jackson and two sons, Raymond and Donald, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wade, Ivan Wade, Misses Edna and Mabel Wade of London, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Peters and daughter Betty of Ashville, Mr. and Mrs. Grover DeLong and daughter Arlene, Mr. John Rangi, J. E. Hite and the hostess' daughter Ines and son Glenn. Mrs. Russel has been the recipient of many courtesies while on a visit here with her sisters, theater parties, reunions of old friends, picnics, etc. Mrs. Russel will leave shortly for a few days' visit with her brother, Dr. Orders, before her departure for Texas.

The Skipper family were entertained at a 6 o'clock dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Skipper. Dr. and Mrs. Harold D. Strausbaugh and sons, Jean Dean and Robert Nelson, have returned from their vacation of two weeks spent at Beulah, Michigan.

Miss Marie Schoonover, 162 North Warren Avenue, spent Sunday with friends at Findlay, O.

A SURPRISE PARTY

A very delightful surprise visit, well planned and tactfully carried out, was paid to Mrs. Ella Welch, past president of the Hilltop W. C. T. U. at her home, 319 Wrexham Avenue, on August 13th. About twenty-five of her old friends and co-workers pounced in without ceremony, but with bouquets of flowers, well filled baskets of good eats and many sincere, loving expressions of "good cheer."

Although temporarily "shut in" by painful illness, she extended her unexpected guests a hearty welcome, surprising us with a nice little speech. After a sumptuous lunch to which all did full justice, (utterly ignoring "calories" or Dr. McFadon's "health hints") an extemporaneous program took place. The readings and speeches were good, two songs in her native tongue by a little grey-blue eyed, sweet voiced Holland lassie, was much enjoyed, but I asked no questions, and whether the selections were "gospel songs" or "love ditties," I'm unable to say. A member of the Union, Mrs. Edith Williamson, a patient "shut-in" for more than a year, was lovingly remembered and a box of lunch and flowers sent to her. The following enjoyed the occasion: Mrs. W. B. Smith, President Hilltop Union, Mrs. Kittie Gillilan, Mrs. Nettie Elliott, Mrs. Austin Hutt, Mrs. Margaret Cummins, Mrs. Elmer Edwards, Mrs. Mary Schafer, Mrs. Clara Brobeck, Mrs. Laura Kaufman, Mrs. E. J. Milner, Mrs. Anna Barker, Mrs. M. M. Marshall, Mrs. S. A. Smith, Mrs. Lovina White, Mrs. George Gill, Mrs. Nettie Byle, Mrs. J. H. Carter, Mrs. C. W. Finley, Mrs. Hattie Compton, Mrs. Wm. Ferguson, Miss Jennie Shelton, Mrs. Jean Dearth, Mrs. Clara Hiatt and the surprised, but well pleased hostess, Mrs. Ella Welch.

Health Hints

By Dr. O. E. McFadon

COLDS

A cold is evidence that there is more poison in the body than the lungs, skin, bowels and kidneys can eliminate, and the symptoms of a cold are saying that these organs are trying to excrete this poison, but cannot.

Our bodies are manufactories. The nutrients in food and the oxygen we inhale are the principal raw materials used. Poisons are by-products which must be excreted if we are to be healthy. It is expected that one-third of this poison will find its way out through the pores of the skin. Perspiration is the visible manifestation of this, and there is constant "insensible perspiration" going on at all times. That is what soils our clothing.

Our lungs are taking in pure air—oxygen—at every breath and exhaling as much air, which we know to be very impure, because it is heavily laden with poison. This constant breathing process is known to carry off another one-third of the poison.

Surprising as it may seem, the bowels and kidneys must excrete only the remaining one-third of this by-product.

It is clear that these four scavenge agents must be "on the job" at all times, for our health depends upon their ingredients.

We dress for cold weather, we think for our comfort, but in reality to prevent changes in temperature from closing the pores of the skin, which would imprison the poison.

We breathe, and should breathe deeply, so as to get more life-giving oxygen and excrete more poison. Diseased lungs greatly limit this process, leaving the poison to circulate in the blood, and breed disease in the weaker parts of the body.

It is disastrous—sure death—if any one of these four exits be closed. (Imagine no breathing, or all the pores closed, or no bowel movements, or no urination.) Or, if any one should be partially incapacitated, then the other three must be kept alert. (It will be seen that colds are a more serious ailment than is usually imagined).

The most frequent cause of colds is the unusual exposure of the skin to cold air. People who wear but little clothing do not often take cold, because their skin becomes accustomed to changes.

Colds "id the 'ead" are sometimes caused by germs. Spraying the air passages with a germicide is good treatment.

The best home treatment for a cold, after a very light supper (or none at all) and a vigorous osteopathic treatment, is a hot bath and rough rub; retire in blankets and sweat freely for several hours; and a cold bath and vigorous rubbing in the morning. Follow up with light eating and exercise in the open air. To remain in a hot unventilated room and avoid all drafts, is the worst thing to do. Good air and deep breathing are necessary to a cure. A blizzard should be welcome, with vigorous exercise.

Dr. O. E. McFadon, Osteopath, 106 West 10th Avenue.

Mrs. John W. Rees, 206 North Warren Avenue, is visiting relatives in Parkersburg, W. Va.

Hilltop Realty Values Increase

Hilltop and West Side real estate increased in value at an average rate of 75.35 per cent, the greatest of any section of the city, through the recent reappraisement, according to figures compiled by County Auditor Thaxton. This appreciation resulted chiefly from the era of prosperity which followed the 1918 flood and the completion of flood protection work, together with the rapid expansion of the Hilltop which has been a record breaking one during the past three years.

Construction of new homes and factories, rebuilding and remodeling of the damage in the flood-swept district, all helped considerably to make a total increased valuation of 90.22 per cent in buildings west of the Scioto River. From the $15,893,570 worth of structures on the old duplicate, the Hilltop and West Side buildings now are appraised at $30,233,880. What might be called a normal appreciation on land values is noted. New figures on the tax duplicate are $13,550,000, compared with $9,074,720.

Mr. I. V. Skipper, wife and son Charles of Alton, Ill., spent ten days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Skipper, 148 N. Richardson Avenue. They motored through, making the trip in one day, a distance of 436 miles and report the roads in fine condition.

HOLDER'S HELPFUL HINTS

The shrewd buyer always takes the precaution of being sure of the reliability of the parties with whom he is dealing. Then he makes a careful investigation of the house or property that is under consideration. He considers the surrounding neighborhood, the trend of values, the class of people now coming into that neighborhood, and the condition of property in the vicinity, as to the interest shown in its upkeep, etc.

When he steps inside of the fence or the door, however, he must to a large extent in most cases rely on someone else's ability, unless he is well versed in construction. Here then is where the precaution first taken stands so well in hand. If the buyer has been as careful as he should be, he has picked a real estate man who knows construction from the ground up. In addition the real estate man must be the most reliable, for the happiness and the welfare of others along with their money hinges on his ability and his reliability.

To give the buyer real, honest to goodness service, the real estate man must be not merely a good salesman but he must be a keen judge of values, well versed in all features of construction. In fact he ought to have had some real building experience, in order to be able to say at a glance whether a house is well built of good material or not.

And it is just as essential to the owner that these qualities exist in the real estate man who handles their property as it is to the buyer. Remember this, the real estate man who will put through a bargain for you that has any crooked turns in it, will skin you in the same transaction or the next chance he gets. So it makes no difference whether you are the buyer or the seller, it is important that the real estate men with whom you do business be well versed in all the values, construction, etc., but most important of all, that he be absolutely reliable and a stickler for the square deal.

The Rivoli Theater gave their first matinee to the Hilltop boys and girls between the ages of five and twelve years, last Friday afternoon, as advertised in last week's Record, and if you could have seen the big crowd of youngsters standing outside the door, waiting for them to open, you would have been surprised. We heard two or three remarks that they "did not know there was so many kids on the Hilltop. The management were compelled to give two matinees instead of one in order to accommodate the crowd. They estimated the number at about thirteen hundred.

Mrs. Howard O. Planck (Eunice Postle), husband and little daughter Lucile of Los Angeles, Calif., are visiting for a few weeks with Mrs. Planck's sister, Mrs. H. E. Bon Durant, and family of 2511 Ridge Avenue, and other relatives and friends in and near Columbus.

Hilltop Racer Wins 1st Place

Louis Burkett, veteran racing driver and holder of the world's record on a half mile dirt track, came home an easy winner in auto race at the Fair Grounds, three laps ahead of Arvan Ross of Lansing, when the event was called off at the completion of 60 miles. The hazardous condition of the track was given as the reason for calling off the race to prevent the possibility of serious injury to any of the drivers who had already experienced much difficulty at the south turn. Eighteen sleek racing cars assembled at the local fair grounds speedway for the initial tryouts in a vain attempt to qualify for the big speed trials of the day. The race, which was originally supposed to be a 100-imile affair was cut to 60 miles at the request of the drivers due to the condition of the first turn which was unusually rough in various spots.

The officials realizing the hazard thought it best to run 60 miles only, hence the move was made to run that distance. Burkett drove a very consistent race, maintaining first place from the 32nd lap to the finish of the race. Burkett drove a Roof Special in winning the long grind.

The time made for the 60 miles was 68 minutes and 20 seconds which is considered excellent for the condition of the track and equalled the mark for this distance on various other tracks throughout the country.—Taken from The Jackson News.

RUSSELL P. GREGG FEELS VERY GRATEFUL

To His Many Friends for Their Support at the Last Primary

No one can know how many friends he has until that friendship has been tested. Without the support of many loyal friends at the last primary it would have been impossible for me to have been elected committeeman in the 11th Ward. Having the confidence of many friends is much greater than merely being elected to a public office. The election (within itself) is only a secondary matter and probably temporary. But the true and loyal friendship which was necessary to cause my election, always will be prized among my most precious possessions.

I feel very grateful to all and extend my heartfelt thanks and appreciation for your honest efforts in my behalf.

RUSSELL P. GREGG, Committeeman.

Auto Accidents on the Hilltop

E. A. Brenneman, 1494 Highland St. narrowly escaped death when his tour car was struck at the Hague Ave. crossing of the Big Four Railroad by a speeding passenger train. Mr. Brenneman was driving south in Hague Ave. and failed to notice the approach of the train because of a curve in the track. The auto was demolished by the force of the collision but Mr. Brenneman escaped with severe cuts and bruises. He was taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital.

Mack Timmons, 50, 165 Roys Ave. was badly injured Monday night when he drove his touring car into a head on collision with a Camp Chase street car in front of the John Burrough School in Sullivant Ave. Witnesses said Timmons, driving west, turned onto the car tracks to pass two other machines also going west. The street car, traveling east on the single track was in plain view, but Timmons apparently did not note its approach. Police expressed the belief that he was blinded by the sun's rays, at that hour focussed directly into the eyes of west bound motorists.

Motorman J. W. Perry and Conductor E. E. Fogle in charge of the car said it was going slowly because of a defective motor. When he saw Timmons turn out, Perry rang his gong several times and then, seeing the collision was imminent, applied the air brakes and reversed the workable motor of the tram. The street car was stopped within its own length, he said. Police extricated Timmons from the ruins of his auto, and took him to Mt Carmel Hospital, where it was said his skull was fractured. He also was cut and bruised. Small hope for his recovery was held. Timmons had a special police officer's badge and works as a watchman. He is married and has two daughters. Officers Gordon and Johnson experienced considerable difficulty in straightening out the traffic jam which ensued, hundreds of motorists stopping to view the wreckage of Timmons' car.

Amusing Things, Those Very Superior Beings

It is curious how differently people regard human beings. William Lyon Phelps somewhere in Scribner's Magazine, Sones, upon entering a trolley car, hate everyone else in the vehicle; some look upon the crowd at a street corner with disgust; it must be wonderful to have such a sense of superiority, to have such childlike unquestioning faith in one's own splendid intellect.

The most amusing thing is to enter a fashionable hotel, and as you advance to the office desk, followed by your traveling bags to glance for a moment at those individuals who, having already been there some days, now gaze at you from their settled and comfortable chairs. They look at you as though you were garbage.

In the same way, many people, traveling in foreign lands, hate all their fellow countrymen whom they meet. This scorn used to distress me, just as I used to be disturbed by the contempt of a waiter in a hotel or a butler in a fashionable mansion; now I am only amused; and instead of being sorry for myself, I am sorry for those who sit in the seat of the scornful.

One may have a certain satisfaction in a feeling of complacency or superiority, but such an emotion is not so desirable as the cheerfulness produced by a general sympathy for mankind.

Cow's Milk Largely Used in Manufactures

Should the humble cow ever aspire to trade-mark her products, the average shopper would be amazed at the labels "Made from milk" which would adorn his purchases—purchases ranging from horn-rim spectacles to cheesmen, magazines to radio sets.

Three per cent of casein in cow's milk is the raw material for a kaleidoscopic array of manufactured products. Nor does this take into account that at our present rate of consumption every 12 persons consume the milk product of one cow.

Bread has a reputation of being the "staff of life," but milk more nearly fulfills that definition. Substitutes for our customary breads may be had; but there is no substitute for milk. Even the elimination of the casein from milk, the element which provides most of the by-products, would be inconvenient. Chemically, casein is the principal nitrogenous constituent of milk; popularly it is the "curd," and its first and principal use is for cheese.

Alas, Quite Uncivilized

If there is any doubt that the inhabitants of New Guinea are uncivilized beings, we need cite only their attitude toward paying taxes—which, according to the Argonaut, is as follows:

Travelers in New Guinea occasionally pick up good stories concerning native manners and peculiarities. A tax collector had an amusing experience when he was on his rounds. He had been to one village to collect taxes, and when he left he was met by the people of a neighboring village.

"What wrong have we done that we should be ignored by the government?" they asked. "Come, we have money; we will show it to you. The idea of those Kerepunu people paying taxes and we not! We are just as proud as they."

The tax collector had to pacify them by taking their money.—Youth's Companion.

Goths a Divided Race

The Goths were a warlike race which at one time inhabited the country in the vicinity of the Baltic, and afterward moved toward the Black sea and the lower Danube where, about 250 B. C., it divided into two branches. Those that remained in the eastern part of the Roman empire were termed western (Vist) Goths, says the Kansas City Times. The Ostrogoths, after ravaging eastern Europe, established under Theodoric a kingdom in Italy which lasted from 493 to 554 A. D., when the country was recovered by Narses and annexed to the eastern empire. The Visigoths, after various successes against the Romans, sacked Rome under Alaric in 410. They afterward settled in Spain and founded a kingdom that lasted until that country was conquered by the Saracens.

Gibbet Superseded Cross

Crucifixion as a method of punishing criminals remained in force throughout the Roman empire until the early part of the Fourth century. The death by the cross was abolished by the Emperor Constantine and was replaced by the gibbet, which continued as a means of execution until comparatively recent times. It figures frequently in the history of England. It was also used as an instrument of punishment in the British colonies and was so employed in the island of Newfoundland, where there are several "Gibbet Hills," marking the site of hangings.

The Word Factory

Slang is the great manufacturer of words, for it is constantly originating new ones which eventually are approved by the lexicographers and get into the dictionaries. But radio has made a record in its responsibility for 5,000 new words added to our speech in a very short time. Golf has added its contribution of a few hundred, but it has been more deliberate, in keeping with the nation which is sponsor for the game. The automobile must be given credit for its share and aviation has added quite an array.

JEWELRY OF OUR MINDS

One of the three most learned linguists that ever lived, a citizen of Worchester, Mass., named Elihu Burritt, said: "Knowledge cannot be stolen from us. It cannot be bought or sold. We may be poor, and the sheriff may come and sell our furniture, or drive away our cow, or take our pet lamb, and leave us homeless and penniless, but he cannot lay the law's hand upon the jewelry of our minds." Or, it may be added, upon riches limited only by our power to enjoy—the vista of forest and mountain; the thousand eyes of night; the arch of dawn over the sparkling waters! Mr. Burritt knew fifty languages; Cardinal Mezzofanti perhaps sixty. But Burritt was more than a linguist; he was a ripe scholar, a pioneer of peace—and a first-rate blacksmith, says Collier's. He made a good job of his life.

That students may leave high school fully equipped to enter machine-shop, wood-working and electrical trades, the York (Pa.) high school co-operates with manufacturers of the community in offering a four-year industrial course which includes 2,400 hours of employment in some local industry. The course was the direct outgrowth of a manufacturer's expressed desire to obtain men who had been trained mentally as well as mechanically. The boys devote their freshman year entirely to work in school and are eligible to be assigned to work as apprentices after the first year. Thereafter they attend school and do apprentice work in two-week shifts, spending the vacation periods in the shops. Graduation from the industrial department involves no break between school and industry.

"Here was born and lived throughout several centuries the village of Thiepval; dead on the field of honor." So reads an inscription over the site where formerly stood Thiepval, but where now lies a heap of pulverized masonry and blackened wood. A New York newspaper suggests that it be left that way. It's the same suggestion which would have the Belgians leave Cloth hall at Ypres a mass of ruins as a frightful reminder of the terrors of war. But the Belgians themselves think differently on that subject, says the Atlanta Constitution. They want to rebuild, and have partially rebuilt the Cloth hall and the University of Louvain. They want to wipe away all traces of that terror which swept their country. And in that way make a contribution to their faith in humanity and in their hope that war shall be no more.

There is a lot of difference between thinking and worrying. Every business man must spend much time thinking—but he has no time for worrying. Thinking develops ideas. It plans big things. It builds. Thinking is constructive. It makes men strong. But as soon as thinking becomes disorganized, jumbled and confused, worrying begins. Worry tears down, destroys, and weakens. It results from a confused and shuffled mind or a body in need of repair. With a calm mind and a sound body, thinking does not weaken a man. Worry is not the result of thinking. It is the result of trying to think under the wrong conditions.

A London, England, newspaper again mentions the annexation of Canada to the United States. It is queer, and amusing, that this story always comes from abroad, and is never heard of by the two peoples most vitally concerned.

The National Geographic society reports the discovery of a tribe in Asia whose women keep no track of their ages. One might suspect civilized women of similar forgetfulness if he regarded their statements on the same subject as perfectly sincere.

That scientist who stated a few days ago that the sun's rays are not as hot as they used to be is either suffering from cold feet or entitled to the championship in the national liar's club.

A medical adviser counsels walking on all-fours to remain healthy. If you find difficulty in getting down on all-fours, try crossing a busy intersection with your face buried in a newspaper.

The Russian government has ordered that Lenin's name shall not be used to advertise cigars, confections and other similar articles, but maybe they would allow a manufacturer of dynamite bombs the privilege.

Now fly swatters have a felt binding at the edge. It protects the furniture and lessens the danger of distributing the fly.

Harvard announces a device to dispel fog. It ought to get a real test in a campaign year.

Officially, the safety drive is over. Unofficially, it should continue.

Thunder Showers Fertilize.

Scientists say a thunder shower is an excellent fertilizer. Each quart of rain that falls in a thunderstorm contains about one-eightieth grain of ammonia.

World More Liberal.

The world is getting more liberal, any way. In the old days heretics were placed on the rack, and now they are placed on the first page.

FORGET HOW TO PLAY

Man to be successful and get the best out of life must work." But in learning to work he must not forget how to play. Outdoor recreation is necessary to his physical development. It is stimulating to his mentality and better fits him to undertake those duties which the world calls work, says the San Francisco Chronicle. President Coolidge, in a recent address, urged the people to take more advantage of the joy and gladness that the great outdoors offers. And while we have this American heritage we must not lose sight of the fact that our children deserve better romping places than the alleys and streets and must be led to the spacious areas, where there is good sunlight and plenty of fresh air. The president would have a gymnasium and an athletic field as a part of every industrial plant, so that men earning a livelihood should also be given the opportunity to learn how to participate in the activities of recreation, by which life may not only be more enjoyable, but more rounded out and complete. All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.

While the name of Sir Robert Ho Tung may not strike the ear so familiarly as the names of some other prominent men of today, he is, notwithstanding, a man of no little importance and one who, as a leading Chinese resident of the British colony of Hongkong, has contributed much toward the prosperity of the colony, says the Christian Science Monitor. In view of the outrages and disorders which have been so sorry a spectacle in China for a dozen years or so, he has recently urged that the best way to bring about a reconciliation between the different factions in China would be to call a round-table conference of the leaders. This end he has taken certain steps, with some measure of success, to achieve. On all sides the vision is becoming clearer that the way to get rid of discord is not to add more discord to it, but to "overcome evil with good."

A telephone official remarks that the telephone companies are constantly trying to instruct the people on how to use their instruments. Complaints of unsatisfactory conversations over the wire are largely due to failure of the speaker to enunciate clearly. People need to be taught in the schools to speak words clearly, but reading aloud is not so much featured now. This may be one reason why many persons habitually speak in a mumbling way. If the clearly defined tones of the alphabet are merged into a sloppy sound delivered at a distance from the receiver, they make a mess at the other end. The telephone could be operated with more efficiency and speed if people would talk as if they were reciting a lesson from the old-fashioned school reader.

Two young girls have been admitted to a high school in Copenhagen who are perhaps the first of their race to receive a European higher education. They are Eskimo girls and were adopted by the Arctic explorer, Amundsen, on his last trip to the polar regions. The girls have only one name, which sounds somewhat barbaric, but for the moment they are Eskimetta and Carsetta. First thing they did after arriving in Copenhagen and after having looked around a little was to have their hair bobbed. That's an important step on the road to civilization. There's hope for the Eskimo race yet.

Now that Paris has decided to banish American jazz, London is setting about a crusade on American cowboy steer-roping exhibitions. Between them, France and Britain may wipe out the exportable surplus of American civilization.

An astronomer tells us that the sun is splitting into two parts. Well, we don't mind that as long as the two parts agree to keep traveling in the same direction.

This generation can drive automobiles, fly airplanes, talk by radio and do many other things, but it is not quite so sure that it knows how to bring up children.

What substitute has the old-fashioned superstitious fellow found for the cast horseshoe he used to pick up on the street?

The noisome airplane has become a reality, but the noisome piano remains a dream, and also the noisome automobile and gramophone.

In the future, if one's photograph is transmitted by this telephone device and comes out looking like a cartoon, to one entitled to blame it on static?

As soon as scientists learn to harness the wind every man should be able to drive his own.

The cost of living isn't quite so high as formerly, but when it falls, it is always "to rise again."

THE DIABOLICAL RAY

The "diabolical ray" born from the beginning the mark of quackery. The extreme claims that were made by its inventor, his unwillingness to submit his invention to thorough testing, his attempts to make a quick sale of his "secret" in so many places, the outcropping of others with similar "secrets"—all these circumstances brought it under the suspicion of the judicious, says the New York Evening Post. Science in our time is no longer black magic; it progresses step by step over a broad field and many minds are familiar with each small and successive advance. No one experimenter can jump very far ahead of the crowd. Doubtless there are many that could duplicate the "diabolical ray" stunts, as Houdini duplicates the doings of mediums. In fact, it is reliably reported that some similar device is in use for killing vermin in biscuit factories. However diabolical the ray may be, the chances are a hundred to one against its being important enough for the world to get excited about.

School children of the United States have bad teeth, poor eyesight, defective joints, deafness and even more serious ailments. And they have them to such an extent that only one-quarter of the 22,000,000 youngsters are given a clean bill of health in a survey recently made public. If optimists insist on revising the figures so as to present a more cheerful picture, it will still remain true that millions of young Americans are suffering from defects that retard their development and reduce their chances for long lives and happy ones. Of course, from time immemorial human beings have made good in spite of considerable handicaps, but that fact does not justify parents in thoughtlessly accepting the handicaps for their children when correction in most instances can easily be made.

The government of the Punjab, India, is seriously attacking the colossal problem of illiteracy. Seven thousand boys were added to the school enrollment in 1921-22 and 500,000 in 1922-23, but it is exceedingly difficult to keep them in school, says the Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C., according to the New York Times. Three-fifths of them drop out before entering the second class, and fewer than one-fourth continue to the fourth class. Even of those who remain long enough to be classed as literate, many soon relapse after leaving school into the mass of illiterates about them.

A beginning has been made in adult education, and adult pupils who show competency and enthusiasm often attain literacy after six months' tuition.

Kings were once all the same implies. On the Egyptian monuments you can read—if you can read hieroglyphics—how the earth trembled at their tread and all mankind fell upon their faces in the dust before them. It is not so any more. All that is as dead as the stone kings on the monuments. Kings haven't even any rights any more, says the San Francisco Chronicle. Observe the poor king of Innishmurray. Michael Waters is his name and for untold generations his forbears have lorded it over their peaty isle. King Michael can't even brew himself a drop of potcen any more. An irreverent republican government says he's just a plain moonshiner and bootlegger and claps him into Sligo jail. How the kings must wish they were all back in Egypt three thousand years ago!

Now is the time that the humble and indestructible sardine can begins to come into its own. The picnickers plant it here and there, and seem to expect it to germinate and bear fruit. But, alas, it merely endures to "uglify" the land.

A number of British scientists are now making investigations to discover what the weather was like in prehistoric times. It's no use asking the Oldest Inhabitant because he always lies about it.

England reports that city-born babies are healthier than the country-born ones in that kingdom. It appears that babies don't mind noise, and crowding, but they must have their sterilized milk.

Those gentlemen who are forbidden by law from making large contributions to political campaigns have the consolation of knowing that the church funds still are playing the game wide open.

One advantage of the United States form of government lies in the number of resignation rumors it can accommodate without any necessary inference that there will be a cabinet crisis.

And this is also the season of grand opera in the woodlands.

The right of way is not near as important as is driving the right way.

COAL DUST

Just when the chilly breezes blow
And the ground all covered with snow,
You surely will be pleased to know
You bot your coal when it was low.
Order now and avoid the rush,
A higher price, the snow and slush;
Two thousand pounds in every ton,
No more, no less, for any one.

We buy the best and sell the same,
And always strive to prove our claim.
Our West V-a. can not be beat
And surely does give dandy heat.
The Hocking Coal is quick to start,
A quarter less by ton or part.
Our Pocahontas is the cream,
Higher in price, but very clean.

We also have the Anthracite
That burns all day and burns all night.
Now all these coals are very nice,
And surely are well worth the price.
Now just call up one double seven
For any further information.
Or, perhaps, better yet twould be,
To come out to the yard and see.

Gold in Black Mud.

Gold valued at $1,906.89 was recovered from a trunkful of black mud purchased at a sale of unclaimed express by a buyer in Omaha, Neb., who was ridiculed for his purchase until a chemist's analysis proved its value.

How Men Judge.

Men usually judge of the prudence of a plan by the result, and are very apt to say that the successful man has had much forethought, and the unsuccessful has shown great want of it.

Lose Children Purposely.

Women of the tenement districts have been known to purposely lose their children in crowds so as to have a holiday and to call at night at the various police stations, knowing their offsprings will ultimately be taken there.

What She Said.

Alice—"Did you say 'This is so sudden' when Jack proposed to you?" Agnes—"No; I intended to, but I was so flustered that I forgot, and cried 'At last!' instead."

The Boss' Plan.

THRIFT IS FOUNDATION

It is doubtful if there is anywhere any real business success that does not reach down to the fundamental of thrift. We speak of financial genius as though it were a sixth sense. We allude to the great accomplishment of this or that man as though the individual were endowed with some rare power of foresight, some gift of necromancy, some deeply hidden secret not within the possession of ordinary individuals. But whatever of success we may attribute to "genius," investigation would no doubt reveal that in each case success came fundamentally as the result of thrift in early life. It is said that the elder Rockefeller as early as eight years of age was keeping a record of each penny earned and spent. It is not through thrift that the daring plans of our financial and industrial supermen are planned and executed, says Thrift Magazine. But thrift is the only foundation upon which they can stand—the only plan through which any lasting material accomplishment in life can be effected.

Uncle Sam is now taking official notice of the arrival of new babies in certain states. The plan is that in states which are within the United States birth registration area and in which the state registrars are agents of the bureau of the census official birth certificates signed by the director of the United States bureau of the census may be secured and sent to mothers as notification that the birth of their babies has been recorded. The certificates have a picture of the capitol in the background and bear the official seal of the Department of Commerce.

A ninety-one-year-old depositor came into the Seaman's Bank for Savings the other day to have the accumulated interest entered in his pass book. He had been a depositor for 72 years. The bank has some interesting old accounts on its books and in many instances the accumulated interest has totaled considerably more than the original deposit. One account started with $17 in 1852 by a father for his little girl and every Christmas he deposited $5 to her credit until 1869. The account was closed in May, 1910, by a payment of $1,382. A deposit of $142 in 1860 became $3,671 when the account was recently closed. In 1876 another depositor placed $400 in the bank. This account is still open, the original deposit with interest showing a balance of $2,995. Against a deposit of $400 in 1883 a total of $1,949 was withdrawn last year.

The German department of labor, which has recently made a systematic census of home industries, has discovered a remarkable revival of household manufacturing during the present period of economic distress. Spinning wheels are coming to life again in various German linen districts as a sign of the high prices for inland textile fabrics. No less than 240 small hand-operated linen factories have lately been opened in the rural districts of Oldenburg, Bremen, Lunenburg, and farther west, prompted by the reported increase of flax-cultivated area in the north German districts, which is stated to be 40 per cent larger than it was last year. The estimated number of hand-operated spindles in Bavaria is 5,000,000. Similar conditions obtain in the Saxon and Silesian linen districts where factory-made linen can hardly compete with hand-made qualities.

There is abiding integrity in American public and private life. Dishonesty in either is only a skin disease no more significant of a decay of the economic structure of the United States than is a case of measles on an American child the precursor of an epidemic threatening extermination of the population of the United States.

To the European women who insist that than the American husband none is more perfect, we humbly suggest as an additional argument the case of the husband who committed suicide so that his wife might use the insurance as her wedding dowry when marrying the next man.

An American jazz artist in Paris, insulted by a stranger, felled the latter with a saxophone. This demonstrates (1) that a saxophone player can be insulted and (2) that the instrument has some practical use.

An American returning from the Amazon brought back with him a dog "that has a bark like the chirp of a bird." There is the surprise party of its life in store for some cat.

ADAM'S APPLE

When our forefathers read the Bible they were fond of pursuing the stories and incidents contained therein even farther than the Scriptural explanations. Where the Book of Genesis, for example, merely relates the episode of Eve and the apple in the briefest and most concise language, legends go much farther—connecting various kinds of animals and birds with the Fall of Man and introducing scores of trimmings which do not appear in the original version. One of these legends is responsible for the name "Adam's apple," as applied to the thyroid cartilage of the larynx, a projection which usually is much more apparent in men than in women. This legend states that Adam, when he attempted to swallow his bite of the apple from the Tree of Life, choked and the fruit stuck in his throat. All males since Adam have had this protuberance as silent evidence of the indiscretion of their ancestor.

That the average child who is unspoiled and properly taught can draw and paint beautiful and original pictures, as well as model with clay and carve wood, has been demonstrated by a Viennese artist, Prof. Franz Cizek, the work of whose classes is now being shown throughout this country.

Professor Cizek never touches a child's drawing himself, nor does he draw anything for the children to copy, relying rather "on the remarkable accuracy of memory of the child mind," to quote from an article in McClure's Magazine.

"Here they draw things out of their heads," says Professor Cizek, "everything they feel, everything they imagine, everything they long for." He considers that the important thing in this training is the effect on the development of children in helping them to find expression during the remarkably creative period of their growth.

From city and farm we hear the call: Spare the birds; they are saving our fruits, flowers, gardens and grain from the insects that would take them. God first taught the Fatherhood of God, then the brotherhood of man, then the protective care of the beautiful and useful creatures about us. We talk about the "dumb" animals. True they cannot speak to us in our language, but they are not so dumb, says Thrift Magazine. All animals and birds we come in contact with sense in us at once a friend or foe, and each in his own way quickly shows his appreciation of our kindness, and in a language we can not misunderstand tell us they love us and want to be friends. Happy is the boy or girl that grows up loving and loved by these would-be pals of fur and feather.

The finding in an automobile of eggs, bacon, hams, canned goods, toilet articles, electric fans, suits of clothing, shirts, socks, cigars, cigarets and eight radio sets sounds like the report of somebody who just possibly was looking for the pliers.

Iona, the "Blessed Isle"

Iona, one of the smaller of the Inner Hebrides, was the "Blessed Isle" of early Christian days in the British Islands, says the Detroit News. St. Columba, noted Irish missionary, made it the center of Celtic Christianity.

From there missionaries went out to convert Scotland and northern England to Christianity. Kings were brought to be buried in the soil of the sacred island. The importance of Iona was ended, however, by the Danes who swept down about the beginning of the Ninth century and seized the Hebrides from the Scotch.

The islands were returned to Scotland's overlord in 1220. More than 500 islands make up the Hebrides group, but only about 100 are inhabited.

Lamb's Merry Jest

One of Lamb's jobs on the Morning Post was to supply half a dozen jokes a day, for which Dan Stuart paid him 6 pence each, and held him well paid. Six fresh-baked jests a day is a tall order. The fashion of flesh-colored stockings for the women proved a tolerable help in time of trouble, and Lamb boasts justifiably of his masterpiece, inspired by pink stockings. He wrote that "Modesty, taking her final leave of mortals, her last blush was visible in her ascent to the heavens by the tract of the glowing instep."—Manchester Guardian.

The Gospel of Reform.

Sometimes, in addressing men who seriously desire the betterment of our public affairs, but who have not taken active part in directing them, I feel tempted to tell them that there are two gospels which should be preached to every reformer—the first is the gospel of morality, the second is the gospel of efficiency.—Theodore Roosevelt.

Magnetic North Pole.

The geological survey says that the latitude of the magnetic north pole is 70 degrees 05 minutes and the longitude, 96 degrees 46 minutes west. It is nearly 1,400 miles south of the north pole. True north is the point on the true meridian directly north. The true north means the geographic north pole.

Slander is oral defamation; that is, speaking false and malicious words concerning another, whereby injury results to his reputation. Libel is the false and malicious defamation of another expressed in writing, or in print, or by pictures or signs, tending to injure the reputation of an individual, and exposing him to public hatred, contempt or ridicule.

Gems of Architecture in India and Italy

Taj Mahal is the costliest private tomb in the world, and was built by the Indian ruler Shah Jehan as a final resting place for the remains of his favorite wife, Mumtaz-i-Mahal, "the pride of the palace." This mausoleum, which is accounted by some critics to be the most beautiful building ever constructed, is one mile east of Agra, and its erection covered a period of 21 years, starting in 1629 and ending in 1650. It is built entirely of white alabaster, and is believed to have cost over $9,000,000.

Saint Peter's church is the largest and most imposing Christian church in the world, but is not conceded to pass the architectural beauty of Taj Mahal. The approach to it is through an open space, the Piazza di San Pietro, which is elliptical in form, covers several acres and is surrounded by colonnades, or covered driveways. In the center of this piazza stands a red granite obelisk 80 feet in height, which was brought from Egypt in the days of Caligula, but was not erected here until the Sixteenth century, when the church was in process of construction.

About the walls on the interior of the church there are altars, chapels, tombs, and innumerable works of art; while beneath the center of the dome rises the high altar, at which only the pope or a specially authorized cardinal may officiate; and above this towers the great bronze canopy, 95 feet in height. The total cost of the building is estimated at about $50,000,000, and considerable difficulty was experienced in raising this sum.

Primrose Day Memorial to English Statesman

England's "Primrose day" is a tribute to the memory of Lord Beaconsfield. The primrose was his favorite flower. The story is that when he was a young man he made a bet of a pair of gloves with a lady respecting a wreath of yellow blossoms, the point in dispute being whether they were real or artificial. Disraeli stated that they were real and won the bet. The lady thereupon presented him with one of the primroses and Disraeli, with the impetuous gallantry of youth, vowed that he would treasure the flower and adopt it as his badge. "Primrose day" was founded in 1883. Next year it was determined that an annual festival should be inaugurated. Curiously enough, the primrose has for centuries been esteemed an unlucky flower among the English country folk. Shakespeare alludes to the superstition; and to this day in East Anglia, as well as throughout the western counties, it is esteemed disastrous to take a single primrose into a farmhouse. Serious loss among chickens, lambs and calves will, it is averred, inevitably result.

Primitive Homes

Lava blocks roughly quarried provide the rural Icelander with his building material. His farmstead consists of a group of small cottages joined together. The lava blocks are laid one on the other and the crevices are stopped up with moss or earth. Some of these houses have wood rafters, but the majority of them have whale ribs instead. These are covered with brushwood, on top of which turf is heaped. The turf bears a good crop of grass, which is carefully cut for hay. The houses have no chimneys, and a fire is never kept in any room except the kitchen, even in the coldest weather. The smoke passes out through a hole in the roof. The only windows are pieces of glass, or thin skin, four inches square. No attention is given to ventilation, and the atmosphere of the house is almost unendurable to a foreigner. The natives' sense of smell is deadened by the universal habit of taking snuff.

Asia Like House's Roof

The continent of Asia, according to Dr. Sven Hedin, writing in Popular Mechanics Magazine, is like the roof of a house, irregular in shape, falling off gently in the various directions. From its crown rain water is pouring down in all directions. "No matter where the watercourses arise they are still, as they sweep onward, crossed here and there and again by almost innumerable paths, and countless likewise are the bridges." The railway bridges, Doctor Hedin says, are built everywhere on the same principle, but the primitive bridges with which Asia abounds are of the most diverse character. He enumerates "bridges of stone, of tile, of iron and cement, of chains, ropes and cables, of wood, posts, plants and branches, and the natural rocks which in the course of time have broken asunder from a mountain and tumbled down into some wild ravine where they now serve as spans for the natives."

Tribute to Healing Spring

The ancient and famous mineral springs from which the town of Bath, England, receives its name and fame, are rich in historical reminiscence. Between 1612 and 1784 it was the custom for persons of distinction who had derived benefit from the Bath mineral waters to present a brass ring to be fixed in the wall of the bath for the help and support of those bathing in the hot water. John Revet visited Bath in 1674, and appropriately presented a brass ring, which may still be seen on the walls of the king's bath. The inscription reads: "Thanks to God, I, John Revet, his Majesty's Brasier, at fifty years of age of July, 1674, received Cure of a True Palsie from Head to Foot on one side."

Courtesy Among Kaffirs

In Africa when one hears a native host say to his departing guests: "Hamba gachle" (Go in peace) and the response of the guest, "Lala gachle" (Rest in peace) it is hard to imagine oneself among untamed savages—if one keeps ones eyes closed.

A courtesy peculiar to the native African is his manner of receiving even the most trifling gift. No matter how small the object, he receives it in both hands cupped together like a bowl. Try it. It is most expressive.

Cutlers Realize That Twain Had Right Idea

Many years ago Mark Twain wrote one of his characteristic little sketches about a boy buying a jackknife. His observation was that in the presence of the infinite variety of shiny knives which the hardware man had in his showcase any knife that the boy selected from the rest looked like a clumsy, inferior affair, but that as soon as the boy had made his choice and got away from the influence of all of the other knives his particular knife became a precious and radiant thing of beauty.

It was generations ago that the great humorist discussed this topic, but the cutlers have taken the lesson to heart at last and decided that they have been making too many kinds of pocketknives. Their interest in the matter is economic; their aim is more profits and they hope to achieve that end by ceasing to turn out many eccentric varieties of knives that are slow sale and not much good anyway. Their meeting was, in fact, a part of Mr. Hoover's comprehensive scheme for saving money by standardizing products and scrapping unnecessary models, but behind all of that one sees the eternal small boy, who is just the same now that he was when Mark Twain observed him relieved of an ancient embarrassment.—Detroit Free Press.

Old American Roadway

The old Spanish road, built across Mexico in the Sixteenth century, is believed to be the oldest road on the North American continent. It was built in the form of a letter "Y," with the lower point of the steam starting at Vera Cruz on the gulf. The northern prong touches the Pacific at San Blas and the southern tip at Acapulco. Because of this road the west-bound convoys from the Philippines were spared the dangerous navigation around Cape Horn. There is still evidence that this old trail was used by the Indians before the Spaniards broadened it from a pack-mule path to a highway.

Silly Idea, Don't You Know!

The man in the dock was a regular customer at the local police court and he had spent quite as much time inside jail as out. His particular line was breaking into shops of the smaller tradespeople in the early hours of the morning. On this occasion he was charged with breaking into a jeweler's shop, and as he stood in the dock with a constable on either side the magistrate asked:

"Any witnesses?"

"'Course not!" replied the accused with a sneer. "Why, you silly old fool, do you think that when I goes out to crack a crib I takes witnesses with me?"—London Tit-Bits.

Don't Be Too Hasty

The trouble with the mentality tests is that they grade intellect according to mental agility and cunning. Outside of geniuses, the highest grade of brain is slow thinking. If you have ever consulted a white-bearded philosopher, you know that the oracle hears your case, ponders it with deliberation, views it from all angles, then in a terse sentence utters the decision of wisdom. The fast thinker arrives at wrong conclusions oftener than the slow thinker.—Topeka Capital.

BARACA PICNIC LABOR DAY

Class to Have Reunion at Tom's Grove on Hague Ave.

The Glenwood Baraca class will stage at Tom's grove on Hague avenue on Labor Day, one of their old-time reunions in the way of a field day and basket picnic beginning at 2 p. m. and lasting until dark.

Invitations are out to about 250 members, ex-members and prospective members, and their families.

Those who do not have autos are requested to call Hilltop 900-W and advise Jim Hartsough so that one of the members who has a car can take out those who have none.

All sorts of stunts are on the program and a lot of Charley-horse arms are now undergoing treatment in preparation for the "bawl" game.

Next Sunday the Baracas have a grand rally as the finale of the summer attendance contest between the Reds and the Blues, and being the last day every one of the members is urged to be on hand.

BOY FOUND AT STATE FARM.

Henry Scott, 16-year-old colored colored youth, of Mahoning county, an inmate of the Institution for the Feeble Minded, who escaped with two companions from that institution last week, and who was believed to have been killed in a train accident, has been apprehended and returned, according to officials, Tuesday morning of this week.

Scott, with Edward Jerusenbosser of Cleveland, and Elmer Evanshire of Cincinnati, walked away from the institution Wednesday. The latter two were taken into custody by police in Cincinnati and when questioned as to the whereabouts of Scott told a story of how they had caught a freight train in Columbus and how Scott had fallen off the train to his death.

Officials at the institution, Tuesday, however, reported that Scott had wandered to the state farm at Orient and had not been with the two other boys.

HEALTH HINTS.

By Dr. O. E. McFadon.

HOME ECONOMICS.

The Civil war not only emancipated the slaves, but it preserved the Union. For decades after the fifteenth amendment was a fact, there were many who believed that it could not be so; that the war was a failure; that there was still much slavery which must be admitted, and there is some slavery yet. Which means that results were far from 100 per cent acquired, at first. It may be that after 20 years there was no more than 60 or 70 per cent of success. How is it now after 60 years? Possibly not yet 100 per cent, but not far from it.

Forty years ago the W. C. T. U., under Frances Willard, began their propaganda which led to the incorporation into school readers and physiologies reliable instruction concerning the effects of alcohol and narcotics upon the human body. Laws were passed requiring teachers to teach the same, with the result that most people blindly, but intelligently—"wet" or now living can, and do vote—not "dry."

There are many people now who believe prohibition a failure. And, it is, if you demand that success means 100 per cent at once. But it is in the woof and warp of the constitution, and with an intelligent public behind it that knows what it wants, working through the Anti-Saloon league, the W. C. T. U. and other agencies, the percentages of success will be wonderfully greater with each decade.

In like manner, since home economics is now taught in most schools, may we not hope that in the next 25 years the people who will then be doing the greater things, and through them the common people will know how to live a well rounded life; when the white loaf of bread will be as much of an exception as the whole wheat loaf is now; when, to quote Mr. McCann, "The certified loaf of substantia. bread with love and understanding kneaded into its heart, will be one of the glories of American manhood, womanhood and childhood, when America finds time to give its bread attention." And what he says of bread may be expected of cookery as a whole and home life in general.

"If we could grapple with the whole child situation for one generation our public health, our economic efficiency, the moral character, sanity and stability of our people would advance three generations," says Herbert Hoover.

Dr. O. E. McFadon, Osteopath, 106 West 10th Avenue.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Beginning with September 1 the ownership of The Hilltop Record will undergo a change, R. D. Hastings having purchased a half interest in the business, becomes a business partner.

We have added to our equipment an improved Model No. 8 Mergenthaler Linotype typesetting machine and are now prepared to do all work of that kind, whether for The Record or for job printing requiring machine work, in our own plant.

Mr. Hastings, who resides at 86 South Ogden avenue, is well known on the Hilltop, having lived in this section of the city for the past 11 years. Therefore he needs no great amount of introduction to Hilltop people, as his vast number of friends and acquaintances can, and do, testify as to the high esteem in which he is held by all knowing him. We have known Roy for over 20 years, having worked with him, a few years back, for several years, and know him to be a gentleman, square, honest and reliable; also a first-class mechanic in the printing line. He has been employed with the Columbus Dispatch for the past 11 years as a linotype operator and machinist and resigned that position a few days ago to enter this work. He is a member of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church, Westwood K. of P. lodge, No. 770, and Typographical Union No. 5.

The new firm will go under the name of The Record Printing Co., S. J. Westlake and R. D. Hastings, proprietors, and with our new facilities we are promising residents of the Hilltop a thoroughly up-to-date community newspaper.

I am certainly grateful and appreciative of the patronage, friendliness and co-operation I have received from many loyal Hilltop people during the past eight years I have been in building up The Record and job printing plant to its present state, and hope that our relations in the new and enlarged capacity will be just as congenial.

With this week all business with the printing shop of S. J. Westlake will terminate. Therefore statements will be mailed to all having accounts here and I kindly ask for a settlement as soon as possible in order that I may close up all past affairs of this business.

Respectfully,

S. J. WESTLAKE.

HOLDER'S HELPFUL HINTS.

The careful buyer will always be sure to buy within his means. These days the real estate man sees the unhappy results of over buying the last few years. Many a buyer who felt insulted a year or so ago when the reliable real estate man asked him, "Are you sure you can carry that?" is now swearing at the other real estate man who asked no questions and sold him that "house with all the latest features built in," including the first, second and third mortgages, for they were "built-in" as well as the other up-to-date fixtures.

Had the buyer been a careful buyer, the question of the reliable real estate man, would have hit him hard and made him think. Then he would have stopped a minute, and feeling secure with that kind of a real estate man, he would no doubt have said, "Well, now let's see about that; I have so much cash in hand and on hand; my income is so and so, and it takes us about as near as I can figure so much a month to keep up the house, table, flivver and our clothes. Now what do you say, Mr. Real Estate Man, do you think I can handle that without a lot of grief?"

Here is where the shrewd buyer would have given full confidence to the real estate man he had carefully selected after proper investigation. He would not hesitate to advise with him freely, appreciating that the real estate man, weighing values in real estate at all times, and having had much experience in how much income it takes to pay for a home of a certain price, could render him expert advice in that regard.

Bear in mind that the able, competent and reliable real estate man is far-seeing enough to understand that it takes real service to make a satisfied customer, and only a slight error or just a little carelessness to make a dissatisfied customer. Also that one dissatisfied customer will make more noise than a hundred boosters, and therefore he will go the limit to render real service when you give him your confidence so that he can work intelligently in your behalf.

So, Mr. Buyer, be shrewd and pick the able, reliable and competent real estate man, then be careful, and give him your confidence and freely give information he asks for and advise with him fully. Then you have a full right to require of him loyal thoughtful and valuable service; and you will get it.

Mine Brought Wealth to Fortunate Mexican

Pachuca, capital of the state of Hidalgo, Mexico, is one of the world's greatest and most famous mining centers, according to a bulletin of the National Geographic society. One of Pachuca's silver mines, the Real del Monte, contained the counterpart of Nevada's famous Comstock lode.

An inconspicuous muleteer became the owner of the Pachuca's mine in 1739, when its value was unknown. His pick opened up a bonanza vein such as seldom has been uncovered. Soon he was a multimillionaire, in a day when even millionaires were rare. He presented several fully equipped warships to the king of Spain, and for his happy thought was made a count—Conde de Santa Maria de Regla.

The famous mine came to a tragic end soon after the count's rise to fortune, by the bursting into it of a subterranean river. Its drowned riches remained untouched until near the middle of the Nineteenth century, when efforts to reopen it by British engineers led to frenzied speculation and a crash among London financiers rivaling those of the Mississippi bubble. Local Pachucans bought up the bankrupt company and promptly found a second bonanza vein even richer than the first.

Writer Would Welcome Return to Simplicity

People who complain about the increasing burdens of life do not always use plain, common sense to ease themselves of these burdens. We do not have to have many of the things that we now enjoy and pay for. It might not seem easy or pleasant to sacrifice some of these encumbrances, but we could do it.

More frugal fare at the table, with a smaller variety of viands, is one way. Another is the wearing of clothes a little longer than the arbiters decree. Then there are the places of amusement that claim our too-frequent attendance.

And how many other forms of indulgence there are that have no real purpose to serve, the lack of which our fathers never seemed to find a deprivation.

Simplify your life. Quit paying the tax on excess baggage that adds no single benefit. Do it openly and above board as a frank confession that you cannot afford to do otherwise, and not with the half-ashamed air of one who is apologizing for being alive.—Rochester Times-Union.

Camel's Great Value

Conditions in central Australia are said to be more primitive than those of the rural world during the time of Abraham. It is a roadless country traversed only by camel caravans and yet a land of great possibilities. It has been the camel which has held central Australia—the camel first, and then the goat (for its domestic value), and after that the donkey as a fine offsider. The camel performs wonders in endurance and reliability amid big distances. The importance of the goat is great in the scheme of things. There is no family without a goat herd. Like the camel, it is marvelous what they live on. Amusing incidents often occur connected with the extraordinary appetite of the goat, which, so far as food is concerned, has no fastidious habits.

Quite a Bright Idea

A well-known author on leaving his house one morning forgot a letter he had intended to mail. During the afternoon something recalled it to his mind, and as it was of considerable importance he hurried home.

The letter was nowhere to be found.

He summoned the servant. "Have you seen anything of a letter of mine lying about?"

"Yes, sir."

"Where is it?"

"Mailed, sir."

"Mailed! Why, there was no name or address on the envelope."

"I know there wasn't, sir, but I thought it must be in answer to one of them anonymous letters you've been getting lately."

Birds of the Night

Nighthawks and whippoorwills work chiefly at night, when most other birds are off duty, and at daybreak their work is taken up by the swifts and swallows. These birds are provided with big scoopnet mouths, and as they swing through the air over wide areas of country they scoop up almost unbelievable numbers of insects.

Homing pigeons probably are closer to the human family than any other form of winged life. The birds have remarkable intelligence. They mate in pairs and the female of each union has exercised her right of suffrage to the extent that the male helps her in hatching out the eggs and in caring for and feeding the young.

Traced Tropical Scourge

The first intimation we had that yellow fever was not a contagious disease and that the infection was due to some external cause, appeared during the occupation of Cuba.

It was in 1900 that surgeons and soldiers of the United States army, at the risk of their lives, proved that yellow fever, the supreme terror of the tropics, was not a contagious or a filth disease, but was transmitted from one human being to another solely by a mosquito of a particular type, the stegomyia.

Reins of Power Held in Hands of People

As far back as the Middle ages, the doctrine was held in England that ministers of state were responsible, not only to the crown, but also to parliament, according to a writer in the London Times. For instance, in 1341 a pledge was exacted from Edward III that the chancellor and other great officers should be appointed in parliament, and their work tested by parliament. In 1376 another similar pledge was given. These pledges were not always kept, but parliament never lost sight of them, and their spirit survived. At times this responsibility bore down upon bad ministers with tragic effect. Several such ministers were impeached by parliament, found guilty and beheaded—Stafford, for instance, in the reign of Charles I.

What may be called the modern doctrine of responsible government was first put into practice in the reign of William and Mary, that is, a few years after the revolution of 1688-89. Before that time the ministry was often composed of men of different political affiliations, and it was no uncommon thing for the secretary of state and the lord treasurer to vote on opposite sides in parliament. A ministry so composed was not efficient or harmonious, and William began the practice of selecting all the ministers from one political party, that party being the one that had the majority in the house of commons. From that beginning has grown our present system of a responsible ministry that is absolutely dependent for existence upon the will of the house of commons.

English County Has Its Own Salt Lake

Every one who has swum in a lake or pond as well as in the sea knows the extra buoyancy of salt water as compared with fresh. This effect of salt on water is demonstrated strikingly at Droitwich, the Worcestershire spa, where there is water in which it is impossible to sink.

You can float on the water, sit on it, and even go to sleep on it, without fear of drowning. The better the swimmer you are, indeed, the worse you will fare, because the moment you try to strike out your feet fly upward, to give you an unpleasant emetic!

So high is the percentage of salt that the crystals completely coat the skin, unless drying is resorted to immediately on leaving the water.

Some of the cures effected by the baths are remarkable. Anemia, neuralgic ailments, and rheumatism sometimes yield as if by magic under the treatment, which is becoming increasingly popular.—London Answers.

Mocking Bird and Robin

To the South the mocking bird is what the robin is to the North. He is known as far north as British Columbia, but is seldom found nesting there, while those found in the southern United States live there the year round, writes a contributor to "Bird Lore."

The female builds her nest the latter part of March, lays her greenish-blue eggs, speckled with brown, early in April, and by May the eggs are hatched. A second brood is often reared by the same pair of birds. The mocking bird's back is ashen gray, his wings a brownish tinge with a large white patch, and his throat and outer tail feathers are white, with the under parts brownish white.

It is when the mocking bird works himself up into a passion of song that one realizes the wonder of his voice. He imitates the sounds of the woods and the other birds, but he improves on them.

No Regular Nail Sizes

Up until about the Fifteenth century nails in England were sold by the hundred. Nails which sold for 10 cents a hundred were called 10-penny nails, those which sold for 6 cents, 6-penny nails, etc. When the prices changed the names persisted and, finally, came to be used to designate size, says the Detroit News.

The "d" is used as a sign of penny and is derived from the Latin "denarius." According to Webster's International dictionary, the explanation that "penny" in this connection is a corruption of "pound" is wrong. There are no regular standard sizes for nails by "pennies." For instance, the length of 10-penny nails varies, depending upon the kind of nails and the firm manufacturing them.

Size of Alaska

United Alaska spreads over 17 degrees north and south, or as far as from New Orleans to Duluth, so that some variation of climate might reasonably be expected within its borders. And east and west the stretch is 58 degrees, or considerably more than from New York to San Francisco. Plenty of elbow room this way, too, for diversities. The total area is nearly 600,000 square miles, or one-fifth the size of the entire United States.—Mary Lee Davis in Scribner's Magazine.

Kisses

The safest time to kiss is midnight. The most dangerous time is early in the morning, germs having accumulated during the night. As the hours roll by germs are gradually eliminated from their favorite nest—mouth and lips. Even at four in the afternoon kissing still is risky.

Waves of Ether.

Many persons have wondered about the so-called waves of ether which, we are told, transmit sound by the wireless telephone. Mountains do not obstruct them, but how is it when the distance is such that a straight line between two stations would pass below the surface of the earth? An authority in such matters declares that the path of the ether waves is not a straight line, but follows the earth's curvature. Ordinary obstructions do not interfere with wireless waves.

Rule the Same.

Profit and honesty sometimes appear to interfere with one another. But the case is otherwise, for the rule is the same.

Able to Endure Long Periods of Fasting

Some curious facts with respect to the capacity for fasting as exhibited by various animals are cited by Siegmund Urabin in the Umchau (Frankfurt), according to the Detroit News. He begins by observing:

"The power of the camel to do without taking food is regarded in most works on zoology as representing scientific peculiarities of animals. But if there were a general knowledge of the ability of many animals to fast for very long periods of time these instances would not be so overemphasized. It is, indeed, generally known that even mammals are able to fast for months during their winter hibernation, but it seems to be almost unknown that the same power exists among the lower animals. The power of fasting is much more widespread in them than was formerly supposed."

Mr. Urabin then refers to an experience of his youth when he put certain snails which had already withdrawn into their shells and closed the opening thereof, as is their custom, into a box, whereupon he forgot them for a period of more than a year and a half. He supposed they were inevitably dead, but when he put them into a vessel filled with water, much to his surprise, they came out of their shells and crawled gaily about on the table.

Plants Set Traps for Unwary Insects

Certain plants, like certain people, require strong foods. Not satisfied with the nourishment derived from the soil, they require flesh and blood. Such plants exist by the consumption of insects and small animals, and are to be found in bogs and marshes in tropical countries. All carnivorous plants are endowed with a sense of taste, and a tasty morsel of meat is speedily devoured! The side-saddle plant, found in parts of America, sets water traps for its victims. This plant holds up to the sunlight vase-like leaves, around the mouths of which are glands that secrete honey. Tempted by the scent, the insects make their way across the leaves to the mouth of the plant; farther and farther they wander down the tube, looking for the honey. Detentive hairs prevent their exit and, tired and weary, they eventually fall into the pool secreted at the bottom of the leaf. The common sundew captures dragonflies and ants. Attracted by the gummy appearance of the rosy leaves, the feet of the visitors become securely fixed to the gum, and the red tentacles close in on the unwary insects.

Superficial Existence

We live in the sun and on the surface—a thin, plausible, superficial existence—and talk of music and prophet, of art and creation. But out of our shallow and frivolous way of life, how can greatness ever grow? Come now, let us go and be dumb. Let us sit with our hands on our mouths, a long, austere, Pythagorean lustrum. Let us live in corners, and do chores, and suffer, and weep, and drudge, with eyes and hearts that love the Lord. Silence, seclusion, austerity, may pierce deep into grandeur and secret of our being, and so diving, bring up out of secular darkness the sublimities of the moral constitution. How mean to go blazing, a gaudy butterfly, in fashionable or political salons, the fool of society, the fool of notoriety, a topic for newspapers, a piece of the street, and forfeiting the real prerogative of the russet coat, the privacy, and the true and warm heart of the citizen!—Emerson.

Punctual Monarch

All the clocks at the royal estate at Sandringham for more than half a century have been kept half an hour in advance of standard time. The idea was introduced by the late King Edward VII when he was prince of Wales, and was borrowed from a neighbor, the late earl of Leicester, to whom at Holkham, in the early days of their married life, the then prince and princess of Wales were frequent visitors. It was the earl's custom to keep all the clocks at Holkham hall half an hour fast to secure punctuality. So punctual was King Edward in keeping his appointments that he gained the reputation of "never being late."—London Mail.

Pepsin Has Rival

Pepsin, the digestive substance derived from the pig and largely used by medical men in treating cases of digestion, finds a rival in pharmacy in "papain," a digestive ferment isolated from the juice of the half-ripe fruit of the papaw tree. This substance is said to digest fibrin and albumen more readily than pepsin does. The fruit is sometimes made into jam, though the necessary boiling would probably kill the digestive ferments. Anglo-Indians say that a tough steak becomes tender when placed for a few minutes between two slices of papaw fruit, or even placed near a papaw tree.

Northern Lights

Prof. Vars Vegard, attached to Christiania university, by assuming that frozen nitrogen is responsible for the beautiful greenish hue that preceded any outbreak of the northern lights, has dissipated the mystery of the green hue that has always been unexplained by scientific men. The scientific world has not entirely accepted his assumption, but regards it as more satisfactory as an explanation than the old theory that certain luminous gases caused this exceptionally beautiful effect just before the fantastic flashes.

STANDS GUARD IN RIVER

"Soldier of the Bronx" in Faded Blue, Has Kept Thirty-Year Vigil.

South of the new bridge that spans the Bronx river at Gun Hill road, the Soldier of the Bronx still maintains the solitary vigil in the river. If the inscription of 1898 on his pedestal is authentic he has been on duty 30 years. The blue has almost faded from his military cloak, leaving bare the graying wood.

The figure is a life-size replica of a Civil war soldier. It stands on a stone pedestal in the shallow waters of the Bronx river. The stream is narrow at the spot and one can approach close to the statue from either bank.

Speculation as to the reason for the statue's existence and position in the river has given rise to several legends. Probably there is a bit of truth in each. According to one account a wood carver who lived in a cottage with rear garden extending to the water's edge set the statue in the river as a distinctive touch to mark his place.

Whatever his origin the Soldier of the Bronx stands in the river through time and the works of the parkway commission have changed the section roundabout. The weather has roughened his contours a bit, but nevertheless he remains at his solitary post.—New York Times.

Birth of Christ

The Christian era was first figured out in about 532 by a monk named Dionysius Exiguus. At that time the actual date of Christ's birth was only a matter of speculation. Later, when the calendar took more definite form, the birth of Christ was put on the 25th of December, but it was found to be impractical to change the date of the era which was already fairly well established. As a matter of fact, it is now believed that Jesus was born three or four years before the beginning of the era known as the Christian. So we have the anomalous fact that Christ was born about four years B. C. But the exact date of Christ's birth is unknown.

Lion of Lucerne

The Lion of Lucerne is a famous piece of sculpture by Albert Thorwaldsen, commemorating the heroism and devotion of nearly eight hundred Swiss guards, who died to save Louis XVI, in the attack on the Tuileries, August 10, 1792. The colossal figure of the crouching lion, transfixed and dying, but still faithfully defending the shield of France, is carved in a recess in the face of an upright, vine-draped rock in a little park at Lucerne, Switzerland. A commemorative inscription, with the names of the officers killed, is cut in the rock.

Perspiration of Dogs

Dogs sweat or perspire very little. The physiological purpose of perspiration seems to be the regulation of the temperature of the body. But in the case of the dog, as well as many other animals, the body temperature is regulated by respiration. After running a dog breathes more rapidly—pants. This has the same cooling effect as sweating would have.

Valuable Black Walnut

A number of native black-walnut trees have been discovered whose nuts possess superior cracking qualities. By means of scions or buds from the original trees, these are being propagated in greater numbers each year since the value of the nut crop is thereby greatly enhanced and the timber is of the same high quality as that of other walnut trees. Stocks of these selected trees are available in limited numbers from the owners and make possible the growing of valuable nut trees about the home or in nut orchards, says the American Forestry association.

Forced to Beg Off

An indefatigable traveler, arriving in New York, did not go to the palatial caravansary he usually patronized but put up in an obscure hotel on a side street. But the very next day he bumped into the manager of the down-to-the-minute hostelry where he had always stopped and where he was known so well.

"Why, Mr. Blank," was the shocked greeting, "in New York and not stopping with us?"

"It's this way, old fellow," explained Blank contritely. "I'm too tired this trip to live up to the unparalleled service you give."

Queer Ceremonies at Nuptials of Indians

Among the Indians of Ecuador the marriage ceremony is a weird and tumultuous rite; this function begins with a feast in which all the neighboring families take part. At dawn they gather around huge bowls of a nauseous concoction known as chica, which is a fermented and highly intoxicating drink made from the fruit of the chonta palm. While the drinking is going on the bride is being dressed. All her clothing is removed—a short process—and she is provided with a new skirt of blue cloth which reaches almost to her knees, says H. S. Dickey in Current History Magazine. Around her shoulders are tied two red bandanna handkerchiefs and across her forehead a red ribbon. Thus attired and accompanied by the guests she goes to the house of the bridegroom, who is dressed in white knee trousers with a bandanna handkerchief tied about his neck. Together they proceed to the house of the guaynaro, a sort of tribal chief who officiates at the marriage. Then two lines are formed, one of men and one of women, with the bride in the middle. All stand for a minute facing each other; then, the women advance, the men recede. Thousands upon thousands of times this shuffling back and forth is repeated. Occasionally a dancer will drop out to refresh himself; at times one will fall to the ground exhausted; but the sturdiest manage to last out the whole affair, which continues throughout three days and three nights. The most stalwart Yumbo requires at least three weeks to recover from one of these [illegible]

Of course the world is not perfectly right. It might be unendurable if it were.

Gliders of Early Times.

Short glides in the air were made as early as the reign of King Harold of England by a monk named Eilmer, who, after several successful flights, jumped from a lofty tower with wings strapped to his body. He glided for a furlong or more, when, striking a cross air current, or "air pocket," he fell to the ground, breaking both legs. He attributed the accident to his neglect "to fit on a tail."

Engine House Sayings

FIRE PREVENTION IN THE SCHOOLS

In fire prevention work by the fire chief one of the most important branches is that which deals with propaganda in the public schools. Here he is dealing with first principles. The scholars before whom he, or some good speaker in the fire department delegated by him as a representative, brings the teachings of fire prevention will probably be some day not so very far distant grown citizens of his city, on whom will rest the responsibility of assisting in preserving the city from conflagration.

It is perhaps a rather difficult matter to bring the subject of fire prevention before the average scholar in a manner that is attractive and that does not savor of too much statistics. And yet this can be done with a little judgment and a little tact so that the person addressing the youthful hearers will hold their attention with little trouble. A small amount of humor interspersed with such an address is of great help. In fact, one of the most successful propagandists among the children of public schools is the "Fire Prevention Clown," who, by means of buffoonery, with considerable wisdom intermixed, holds the attention of the young people from beginning to end of his very clever addresses.

Of course, there are few who would care to or in fact could follow the example of this clever lecturer, but there are many ways in which the speaker representing the fire department can bring the matter of fire-prevention before the scholars in an interesting, attractive and partially humorous way.

A very important part of the visit of the chief or his representative is the necessity of his appearing in uniform. This lends a certain authority to the speaker and increases his prestige among his youthful listeners. A uniform to the average youth of either sex is a badge of authority and will impress them and insure their attention.—Fire and Water Engineer.

TELL HIM NOW.

If with pleasure you are viewing any work a man is doing,
If you like him, if you love him, tell him now;
Don't withhold your approbation till the parson makes oration
And he lies with snowy lilies o'er his brow.
For no matter if you about it be won't really care about it,
He won't know how many tear-
drops you have shed;
If you think some praise is due him
now's the time to slip it to him,
For he cannot read his tombstone
when he's dead.

More than fame and more than money is the comment kind and sunny
And the hearty, warm approval of a friend,
For it gives to life a savor and it makes you stronger, braver,
And it gives you heart and spirit to the end;
If he earns your praise, bestow it; if you like him let him know it.
Let the word of true encouragement be said;
Do not wait till life is over and he's underneath the clover,
For he cannot read his tombstone
when he's dead.

WHAT IS A FIREMAN

Few people know the real meaning of the term fireman. Webster might define the word fireman as one who creates or extinguishes fire, but pertaining to city firemen, Old Web is all wrong.

A fireman is a composition of flesh and bone, formed into the image of man, who walks, talks, eats, sleeps and sees, and breathes either air, gas or smoke.

Fireman was taken from the Russian word duncosky, meaning without sense or less. A fireman is one, who from the depth of his own dumbness, or with the aid of others, sets around and interprets the daily newspapers. Firemen often take the Bible and prove science a liar, and then take science and prove the Bible all wrong. And then falling back on their own resources, prove the Bible a science and science a Bible, and then go entirely nutty.

But, nevertheless, they are a good natured, harmless bunch. Firemen debate upon anything that anyone mentions. They can prove anything about anything without anything, which generally ends in nothing. Their general expression is "I'll becha," although they have been known to go for hours without using this expression. On the whole, fireman means that which is although isn't and can't go without saying "I'll betch."

FIRE LOSS FOR SIX MONTHS AMOUNTED TO $181,000,250.

Fire losses in the United States and Canada during June are the most favorable for many months. Compiled from the daily records in The Journal of Commerce of New York, they show an aggregate of $20,250,400, or over $14,000,000 below the record of the same month last year. The June total is the lowest monthly record in the past three years and is a hopeful sign that the nation's enormous fire waste of the pase few years has been checked.

The Ladies' Aid society of the St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church will hold their regular monthly bake sale at the Economy store next Saturday.

BOY KILLED BY AUTO TRUCK.

Paul Brown Is Knocked From Machine Near Alton.

Paul Brown, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Brown, 1978 East Main street, was killed last Sunday afternoon when he was jolted from a trailer on the National Highway near Alton. The truck pulling the trailer was driven by his father and was run into by a touring car when the driver of the touring car tried to cut in ahead of the truck. The rear wheels of the touring car struck the front wheel of the truck. The name of the driver of the touring car was not obtained, but the boy's father secured the license number.

Mr. Brown had taken a crowd of Boy Scouts, including his son, out for a drive, Sunday afternoon. They had gone to West Jefferson and were returning home. The young Brown boy was standing up in the truck and lost his balance, falling beneath the wheels of the truck. Coroner J. A. Murphy said that death was instantaneous.

Funeral services were held at the family residence Tuesday afternoon and interment was made in Green Lawn cemetery.

SCHOOLS TO OPEN.

Next Tuesday morning the youngsters will be wending their way to the school room, some with expressions of gladness and others with faces long and sad, thinking of the happy days and pleasant times they have enjoyed during the vacation which is almost at an end. However they will soon be enjoying the school work and will be looking forward the the brief vacations they will have during the school term.

The schools of the Hilltop are in readiness to open with a goodly corps of teachers and the prospects are bright for a most successful year's work.

Improvement Ass'n Meets

There was a rousing good turnout of about 50 members of the Hilltop Improvement association Tuesday night at the club rooms on South Park avenue.

Waldo Patterson and Joe Marcy entertained the members with two rounds of rather clever boxing and they were followed by one of the best talks on playgrounds and parks and playground supervision by "Bugs" Raymond, director of public recreation.

Mr. Raymond recommended that the association broaden its program by urging council to condemn additional acreage for parks and to take away the tourist camp from Glenwood park and beautify it and make a real park of it. To add additional playgrounds to John Burroughs school, and to create larger parks, particularly in that section of the Hilltop, which is exactly the program of the association. A municipal swimming pool is another recommendation of Director Raymond.

A standing vote of thanks and a rousing endorsement of these features was given by those present, and a special committee consisting of Bruce Bidwell, Jack Shanck and Harry G. Butler was appointed to co-operate with Director Raymond.

This should indicate to those who are in business on Sullivant avenue and the property owners in that district what can be done for that section of the Hilltop and just why they should get into the association and help put over Hilltop improvements.

The picnic committee for the first time in the history of the association was able to report a nice profit from the picnic which was voted the big gest thing the association ever pulled off on the Hilltop, and after a vote of thanks was tendered the committee, which did such good work, it was suggested that preparations go forward at once for next year's picnic.

A noonday lunch will be started by members of the club next week, and an evening dinner, alternating with the noonday lunch, will also be started in order to bring all the members closer together in the work of the association.

The every-member contest for new members will be put on at once, and the contest will be led by Jack Shanck and Fred Sulsberger, the side that loses will entertain the winning side to a dinner at the October meeting.

A fall festival is being arranged with W. H. Orebaugh as chairman Bruce Bidwell, Cliff Kohn, Ray Hauntz and Brown Turner being the other members. So look out for the big show on Halloween.

A postoffice building which will give the people of the Hilltop adequate postal facilities is the next big thing the association is attempting to put over. So everybody get busy and sign up to help this also.

After the meeting a mighty fine Dutch lunch was served by Clyde Johnson, Jim Hartsough and Sherman Fairchild, the entertainment committee.

Look out for the October meeting as there will be another special stunt put on.

FIRE DAMAGES MILK CO. PLANT

$1500 Loss Caused By Fire of Unknown Origin Friday Evening.

The Watts Milk Co., 1571 Sullivant avenue, suffered a loss of $1500 when a portion of their milk plant was destroyed by fire Friday evening about 7 o'clock.

The frame portion of the plant was completely destroyed. Two trucks and two touring cars stored in this portion of the building were saved, although a quantity of bottles and other material were destroyed.

About 100 residents of this immediate neighborhood were without telephone service for several hours as a result of the fire.

The loss was fully covered by insurance.

On Thursday evening, Sept. 4, at 8 o'clock, in the church basement, Glenwood Epworth and Intermediate leagues will give a farewell party for students of their league who will soon depart for schools in other cities.

Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Dickerson, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Westlake, 2499 West Broad street, are returning from a year's sojourn at San Jose, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Martin and family, 380 South Ogden avenue, have returned from a two week's trip through southern Michigan and northern Ohio.

New fall coats and dresses coming in daily at Seillers.

Mr. Paul Mitchell and family and Miss Beatrice Mitchell, all of Cincinnati; Mr. Frederick Mitchell of Georgetown, Ohio, and Miss Margaret Mitchell of Lancaster, Ohio, were week-end and Labor day guests of R. E. Wynn and family, 146 North Warren avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Butler and family and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Worrel and family returned Monday evening from a week's outing at Trail's End, Houton, Mich.

Louis Fritz of Helen street has been laid up for the past 10 days with blood poisoning in his foot.

THAT'S BILL.

(To our old friend, Bill Link.)

By TOP O'HILL.

Has it sometime ever happened to you,
While walking along, sort o' lonesome and blue,
As you near a corner you chance to meet
With outstretched hand, a friendly greet;
And a wholesome voice—"Hello, Old Scout!
What're you lookin' so blue about?"
Then—"that remainds me" (some little joke).
Well, then and there, the spell is broke.

—That's Bill.

When winter's gone with its ice and snow,
And balmy springtime breezes blow;
The birds and nightcrawlers come back,
At fishing stunts he takes a "crack."
His crawlers, trained at his command,
To stretch and eat from out his hand;
And when he gives an earnest look
They'll leave the can and crawl on the hook.

—That's Bill.

Some early morn, 'fore folks awake
He's with the gang at Buckeye Lake.
Then out across the lake you go.
In fishing boat—you'll row and row.
He takes the oar from out your hand.
"Go take my seat" is his command.
"When I go fishin' it's only fair
To have my fun, but do my share."

—That's Bill.

LISTEN FOR THE FISH STORIES.

Dr. F. L. Sulsberger, Dr. Straus-baugh and W. H. Orebaugh and their families expect to leave this week for Colding, Mich., on a fishing trip. They expect to be absent about a week.

ENJOY AIRPLANE RIDE.

While at Russell's Point over the week-end, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Miller of 204 South Richardson avenue enjoyed the "thrill" of an airplane ride. They report a "wonderful" trip, being 1000 feet in the air for a period of 15 minutes.

WAS THERE ANYTHING IN THE SODA?

It was in a prominent drug store over town, during state fair week. Several ladies were partaking of refreshments at the tables and a well-dressed man was perched upon a stool at the soda counter about to enjoy a glass of soda, when, all at once —s-w-a-s-h, p-l-o-o-p, ugh! The man's feet went ceilingward and he slid backward off his stool, landing on his back, right behind a lady sitting at a nearby table, causing her to jump and think some sort of a calamity was on tap.

Whether he just got tired, or thought the soda might taste better in that position, or whether the beverage he was drinking went to his head and made him top-heavy, upsetting his perpendicularity, was not learned, as all the man did was to get up, swipe the "mess" off the whole front of his clothing and say to a lady who was doing her best to suppress a hearty laugh: "You missed a good laugh that time."

Social Affairs

Mr. and Mrs. John Bieber, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bieber and sons motored to the country home of Mr. John Ketzel, two miles east of Piqua, where they attended the annual Ketzel reunion on Labor day. The following officers were elected for the coming year: Frank Ketzel of Dayton, president; Mrs. John Bieber, of Columbus, vice president; Mr. John Ketzel, of Piqua, secretary and treasurer. Next Labor day the reunion will be held at the home of Charles Wetzel, Fletcher, Ohio.

There were 20 in the party and Mr. Carnahan said they all thanked the Lord that they were Americans. He says the Hilltop looked better to him than any place he had seen.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Smith and son, Donald, of Newark, spent the holiday time with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Smith, 162 North Warren avenue.

CO-OPERATE.

As announced in our last week's issue, the Record begins a new era in its history. With our increased facilities we are expecting from now on to improve the worth of the Record as a community newspaper and intend to do everything in our power to make a paper that will be interesting, up-to-date, and a valuable asset to the Hilltop. In doing so we are asking and expecting all residents of this community to assist us by sending in all news items or communications of interest to the public. Then, as we have not increased the yearly subscription rate, we feel we have a right to expect every household to be a subscriber to the Record at 50c a year.

If you have a relative or friend visiting you or if you are going away, one of your family or friends is ill, or married, or a birth or a death happens in your home. If anyone has had an accident or anything of a newsy nature, send it to us as soon as possible or not later than Wednesday noon of the week of publication. We are expecting to have more boxes in the near future located at intervals over the Hilltop. Our present boxes are at Edwards' Confectionery, Hague and Broad; Raff's Confectionery, Warren and Sullivant; Hilltop Pharmacy, Sullivant and Clarendon, and Moorman's Confectionery, Whitethorne and Broad.

G. T. Cooper, Brunswick music dealer, Rivoli block, motored to the shores of the Sandusky river, above Fremont, last Saturday night, where Mrs. Cooper has been spending several days' vacation. Before returning, Mr. Cooper reported having caught a four-pound catch. He says he had a photograph of the "animal" taken so he could prove that fact to the skeptical guys in this neck of the woods—especially Fred Sulzberger.

Instructors in Hilltop Schools

That the Hilltop has materially increased in population is perhaps shown more forcibly by the enrollment of the schools, which opened this week, than by any other agency.

Highland Avenue school opened Tuesday with an enrollment of 775 pupils, the Junior High department having 397, of which 257 were boys and 260 girls. The Elementary school enrolled 238 children, of which 114 were boys and 124 girls.

West Broad Street school will be 13 years old on Sept. 19, having been opened Sept. 19, 1911. Since that time the school has been relieved by the opening of the John Burroughs school and is now having a six-room addition being built to care for the increasing number of children attending this school.

A six-room addition is also being constructed at the Dana Avenue school, which takes in a portion of the Hilltop section on Sullivant avenue to Wrexham avenue.

It is urged that all school children who have not been vaccinated do so at once as after this week they will not be permitted to attend.

M. E. CONFERENCE TO MEET.

A SHADY STORY.

Isn't it funny how a little thing will sometimes go a long ways?

Pat a friendly dog on the head and maybe he'll retaliate by jumping up and licking you on the face before you can straighten up. Give a friendly cat a little feed and she's liable to park at your door "forever and a day after," and maybe some day bring her family along.

But a man and his wife—state fair visitors—were seen one hot day last week sitting close up "under" one of those little trees planted along the west river bank on the south side of Town street contentedly eating their lunch in the two-by-four shade cast by the tree.

The Personal Workers' Bible Class of Hope Memorial Presbyterian church will hold their business and social meeting Monday, Sept. 8, at the church. A full attendance is desired.

Walter McBride, 386 Clarendon avenue, was called to Buckeye Lake Tuesday on account of the sudden death of his mother, who was spending the summer there.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Houdashelt, 305 North Ogden avenue, have as their guests this week Miss Virgene Ellis of Athens and Miss Rhea Todd of Salem, Ohio.

Miss Ella Patterson returned to her home in Cleveland after spending two weeks with her aunt, Mrs. Isabel Burnside, 92 North Powell avenue.

Miss Julia Marie and Miss Gertrude Hoefler have returned from an extended visit with friends at Cincinnati, Dayton and Springfield.

GLENWOOD LADIES' AID.

Group No. 2, Ladies' Aid society of Glenwood church, will hold their regular business meeting Tuesday, Sept. 9, at the home of Mrs. Haldy, 2970 West Broad street. Each member is expected to attend and don't forget this is the day we turn in our pennies.

HEALTH HINTS.

By DR. O. E. McFADON.

A LESSON IN BREATHING.

The diaphragm is a large, flat muscle—a sort of floor—underneath the ribs, to some of which it is attached. It is especially useful in breathing and the more we can control the diaphragm the more self control we will have in crying, laughing, sneezing, gasping, etc. With control of the diaphragm we can mechanically create a laugh and control hiccoughing and stammering. But what concerns us most now is the use we can make in breathing.

Expiration—In blowing out a light the diaphragm is the muscle power that does the business. I ask the reader at this time to blow, as if trying to blow out a light, and to repeat the process times enough to remember the sensation. This is the muscular action to be made a habit in expiration.

Inspiration—The important muscles in inspiration are those that expand the ribs. The sensation one has when forcing the ribs outward, as if to burst a button off the clothing, is the same as it should be in inspiration. If the reader will take several breaths in each of which he will do his best to burst off another button, he will know the most healthful way to inhale. Then follow with:

(Inhale) Burst off a button.
(Inhale) Burst off a button.
(Exhale) Blow out a light, etc., keeping these two sensation in mind in practice, all breathing should be through the nostrils, with the mouth closed. Then, when walking, with neck back against the collar:

Inhale during four steps.
"Burst off a button,"
"Blow out a light,"
"Burst off another button,"
"Blow out another light," etc., passing as much air on "button" and "light" as on any other word, and you have learned the method of breathing that will count immensely for better health.

Occasionally do this exercise: Inhale by throwing out the ribs; keep them out and exhale by action of the diaphragm; keep the diaphragm contracted and inhale by throwing the ribs still farther out; exhale by contracting the diaphragm still more then collapse and rest.

Do the same with three breaths, then with four. This is to cultivate strength in these muscles.

Please remember that simply reading this over, no matter how many times, will get no results. It must be practiced to the extent, at times, of weariness and perhaps of making the rib muscles and diaphragm perceptibly sore. Then by doing it every day, it will soon become automatic, and will not require special attention. Time on the street cars might well be spent in practicing this deep breathing.

Take a tape line and measure your lower chest. Note the difference between forced inspiration and forced expiration, and again in 30 days, and see the improvement. The habitual active chest will give (1) More space and protection to heart, lungs and liver, and (2) A strengthened diaphragm makes a stronger heart, and has a salutary effect upon the stomach and intestines; and (3) Best of all—and, by the way, that's why we are doing it—the blood is purified, which means health, health, health. A few reforms like this, if general, would mean fewer wasp-waisted women and pear-shaped men.

You are exchanging the unhealthy, chest-compressing method in expiration for the abdominal method. The diaphragm is a strong muscle, able to do the work and every stroke of it counts more for health than you would get from work with a sledge or pick.

This combination chest-abdominal breathing the writer taugh many years ago. It has been done into a $6 book on chest development, but is here given in one lesson, as a Health Nugget.

In many human situations and emotions the tendency is to short breathing, to counteract which, slower, deeper breathing is always in order.

The "second wind" of a race horse means that the horse changes from short to long breathing. The preparatory speeding, leading up to the race, leads up to this long, deep breathing which is relied upon to win the race. We are adopting the "second wind" breathing, which, when habitual, will win our races.

BOBBED HAIR.

By TOP O'HILL.

We're funny mortals, it semes to me,
What some folks adore, other don't see;
But of all contentions we have, I declare
Are the pros and cons about wearing bobbed hair.

Some tall and thin, others short and fat
Either like it bobbed this way or like it bobbed that.
But some ways they wear it, it seems to me
Is surely a style I don't like to see.

I don't like to see it sticking out straight
Like hair on a brush at the back of her pate;
And down o'er her forehead like a blind o'er her eyes
All smeared up with colorings, bleaches or dyes.

There's some try to make themselves look what they aint,
With powder and rouge, pencil and paint.
But, gosh! what a mess it is, I declare
That some women have of bobbing their hair.

Billy, a young colored man, was doing porter work in a downtown business house, when one day, by accident, the sleeve of his coat became caught in the cogs of a machine he was passing, and but for the immediate assistance of a workman on the spot he might have met with a serious accident.

As soon as released, with his face several shades lighter, he exclaimed: "Lawsee; I'a goin' to join church right away."

Mrs. Della Nichols, formerly matron of the Hilltop Convalescent home, has returned to the Hilltop to do nursing for a while. She is located at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Chambers, 244 N. Hague avenue.

HILLTOP TAX VALUATIONS

Results As Recently Given Out By County Auditor A. J. Thatcher.

Many interesting facts are shown in taxing maps of the city used by the reappraisal department, which last week finished the task of revaluing Franklin county property under the supervision of County Auditor A. J. Thatcher.

West of the Scioto river the heavily traveled thoroughfares, Broad street and Sullivant avenue, carry the largest valuations of residential property. Owing to considerable newly platted property in the extreme southwestern and western sections, however, the rates on an average are not so high. Figures vary from $60 around Central High school and along Broad street, to $2 in the outlying districts.

The Columbus State Hospital and the institution for Feeble Minded South have a flat rate of $2500 per acres. Rates of $3 to $6 are not uncommon near the state hospital in the vicinity of the northwest corporation lines.

On West Broad street the rate is $40 per front foot at Whitethorne avenue. Fluctuations depending upon the influence the various large and small business districts located out this way have upon the surrounding residential property. The rate drops to as low as $20 and at times goes as high as $60.

Between Broad street and Sullivant avenue, Whitethorne and Hague avenues, the rates are highest, inasmuch as they are the principal cross streets in this district. Near Broad street the rate of $30 prevails, dropping to $15 approaching Sullivant avenue. Slight increases are noted on the other cross streets in this vicinity.

Sullivant avenue frontage, near Central avenue is appraised at $16; to Ryan avenue, $18; to Townsend avenue $22; to Hiltonia avenue, $27; to Belvidere avenue, $25; to Whitethorne avenue, $22; to Hague avenue, $25; then dropping until at the corporation line the $7 rate prevails.

In the neighborhood of Sylvan road, the extreme southwestern section, a rate of $1.50 per front foot is very common. The property increases in value, however, until in the blocks approaching Sullivant avenue, a maximum of $5 is reached. Around Terrace, Eureka and Wheatland avenues the rate is around $8.

On West Broad street, at the Big Four crossing, acreage adjoining the Wilson pike is value at $600. Farther east, near the north corporation line, the value is reduced by 50 per cent, and in some instances even lower. Lot frontage is listed at $4 a foot near Broad street.

Along the Scioto river the rates are based on acreage, and vary from $800 to $1200 in the underdeveloped portions.

HILLTOP LUTHERAN.

West Broad and South Terrace.
REV. J. M. WENRICH, Pastor.

9:15 a. m.—Sunday school.

10:30 a. m.—Morning worship. Subject, "The Only Saving Gospel."

The Ladies' Aid and Missionary society will meet on Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. C. T. Donaldson, 167 South Terrace street. Mrs. Edward Evans will be assisting hostess.

"The friendly church on the corner."

The following is an extract from the sermon deliver by Rev. R. T. Stimmel at Glenwood church Sunday:

"We are laboring together with God," wrote St. Paul in his epistle to the church at Corinth. When Jesus appeared upon the scene of action he came as a laborer. He was known as the "Carpenter's son." He said, "My father worketh hitherto and I work." The universe with its multitude of activities is an evidence of the incessant toil of the Divine Creator. "Six days shalt thou labor" is as divinely inspired as that portion of the commandment which requires us to rest one day in seven. Man's first great blessing came when he was ordered into the fields to toil. What was regarded as a curse has proved a blessing in disguise. It is necessary for man to work. The divine injunction, "He who does not work shall not eat," is a law that should never be repealed. Not only was Jesus a workingman, but the majority of his apostles belonged to the ranks of labor. For three hundred years the Christian church was made up almost wholly of working people. Some one has called the early church a labor union.

So much for the past. What of the church of the twentieth century? A large majority of the church members are working people. Organized Christianity and organized labor are two of the greatest forces today. A spirit of co-operation between the two would be promising to say the least, whilst a fixed gulf between them would be alarming. Are the laboring people estranged from the church? One-half of the men of the nation are out of touch with the church. Albert F. Coyle, editor of the Locomotive Engineers' Journal, sought out a number of representative laboring men and asked them the question: "What do you think of the church?" Some of the answers were as follows: 1. "I don't think very much of the church because the church doesn't think very much about us." 2. "The church is not for workers, but for business men and employers." 3. "I used to attend church in the country, but I find the city church has no use for the man who wears overalls." 4. "I haven't much use for the church today because it has got too far away from the common people." 5. "The ministers have nothing for the workers." These few replies are from men who were reared in Christian homes and are not therefore the opinion of extremists. Wherein lies the remedy? Strange to say, the social creed of the church does not differ materially from the membership pledge of the American Federation of Labor.

Is the difficulty not one chiefly of misunderstanding? Suppose we become better acquainted. The church should make the advance. Instead of boasting of the past it should present a program for the present day, offering something for the man of toil. Our business is to help rather than to attract. The common people heard Jesus gladly because He ministered unto them. As a church we must keep pace with our creed. We must be deeply interested in our fellowman. We must help the needy and suffering without humiliating them. We must study the needs of the working man so as to be able to approach him intelligently. We must sympathize with his cause when his cause is just.

Finally, we must appeal to the working man, not as one who is expecting help, but as a real man, who is needed to help in establishing justice in society and in securing fellowship for humanity.

Of Interest to People on the Hilltop and Vicinity.

Every resident of the Hilltop should be a member of the Hilltop Improvement Association. It is working for the betterment of every section of the Hilltop. Meeting next Tuesday evening at Club Rooms on S. Park Ave

Vol. 8. The Hilltop, Columbus, Ohio, September 11, 1924. No. 20.

IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION

Holds Noonday Luncheon Wednesday—Councilman Lewis Gives Talk.

After the rousing meeting a week ago Tuesday night, a new lease on life, or more correctly speaking, a lease on a new life, was taken by the Hilltop Improvement association.

Wednesday at 12:45, about 35 business men of the Hilltop met at a luncheon at Watt's restaurant, and the matter of improvements for the Hilltop was discussed.

Willis Heed and Harry Holton, of Heed & Holton, who began the real development of the Hilltop as it will be, by opening up Broadview, the first completed subdivision in Columbus, and Col. Kenneth W. Peck, of the Pavey-Johnson Co., who have anticipated the real future of the Hilltop, by including public schools and parks in Westgate, the latest subdivision, just west of Broadview; and Charles Barnett, of the Barnett Realty Co., developers of subdivision in the southwest section of the Hilltop, were present.

Councilman Lewis, who was present voiced his hearty approval of the plans of the association and agreed to give his best efforts toward every means necessary through council.

This meeting marked the first real organized effort for continuous improvement work the Hilltop has ever had and as it is intended to have a noonday luncheon every other Wednesday and an evening dinner every other Tuesday, the Hilltop will see the results in short order.

This is still another reason why every property owner and every resident on the Hilltop should belong to the Hilltop Improvement association. The price is so small we hesitate to mention it. The result is just as great as the interest of every member.

HIGHLAND AVE. FRIENDS CHURCH

Undergoing Remodeling and Redecorating. Work will Require Six Weeks.

Highland Avenue Friends church is undergoing a thorough remodeling and rearrangement of the auditorium.

About six weeks will be required to complete the work and in the meantime the various activities of the church will be held in the basement.

New art glass windows are to be installed and the church will be redecorated throughout. The church will install new seats and a new pulpit, which will necessitate a new seating arrangement. In the future it is planned to add another wing to the present building, which will give the church much added room for its various activities.

Rev. L. E. Elford is the pastor.

REV. BEIBEL REAPPOINTED.

Rev. Wallin Reibel, pastor of the Burgess Avenue U. B. church, returned the first of the week from attending the conference of the United Brethren church at Chillicothe. He was reappointed as pastor of Burgess Avenue church for the coming year.

PLAYGROUNDS TO CLOSE.

The city department of recreation announces the closing of a number of playgrounds next Saturday, when the department will start on its winter schedule of indoor sports.

The playgrounds at Glenwood and Holton parks are among the last to close and will remain open until September 27.

Holder's Helpful Hints

We have observed that both the shrewd and the careful buyer take considerable pains before they even seriously consider the buying of the house.

Now we consider that after both shrewdness and carefulness have been brought into play, it is still possible for a bad bargain to be struck, for in the exercise of both these faculties, there is often danger off ailing to use that other faculty that is not native to any of us, but only results from the correct application of right knowledge, and that only comes after varied experiences.

The wise buyer, therefore, is our theme today. The wise buyer is he who brings into play all the elements that go to make the successful purchase. He it is who expects to get all that his money is honestly entitled to, and no more. He will take great care to see that he gets no less than he should have.

The wise buyer weighs all the elements that enter into the transaction, and goes over them very carefully. The location, it future. The house, its age, condition, and probable future. The owner, their conditon, their reason for selling, whether personal or because of some cause arising out of the property itself. The present trend of prices and values, and the likely future trend as measured by the past history of similar property, the general business condition, and its probable effect upon resale values.

When all these facts are carefully gone over then finally comes the battle of wits to be certain of getting all that your money is worth. Here is where the trading spirit often leads many a buyer astray, so that in his eagerness to get all he can see leaves an opening for the seller to apparently give in, but in fact to allow the buyer to overstep himself in taking advantage of an apparent advantage of the seller. Under conditions like this if the buyer is stung, his mouth is closed for he started the game in which he lost.

"I would have sold too much of myself in that deal," remarked a man who had a chance to make a large amount of money out of a transaction where he could have easily taken advantage of the other parties without even being considered dishonest when he was asked why he did not go through with the matter when he had the chance to make so much money on it.

That is what we mean when we say that every time the buyer gets more than he is honestly entitled to for his money, just because he can drive a hard bargain under certain conditions, he is unwise.

This is just as true of the seller, for it makes no difference which side gets an unconscionable advantage, the theory of compensation so well put by Emerson in his essay, is at work, and the recipient of the uncarned profit sold his good name for fair dealing for more than it was worth, but established the truth at last in other men's minds concerning himself.

ENFORCE ORDER TO VACCINATE

Patrons of Hilltop Schools Complying with Order and Children Return Rapidly.

Enforcement Monday of the order of Dr. H. M. Platter, school physician, that all pupils in the public schools must show successful vaccination marks, or be sent home until they comply with the inoculation edict, resulted in the temporary dismissal of many pupils.

Superintendent Collicott, after a conference with Dr. Platter Monday, said there would be no modification of the order until such time as conditions warrant.

Reports brought out at the conference also indicated that large numbers of pupils were being vaccinated, having waited until the week of grace granted them by Dr. Platter at the beginning of the term, had expired, to see if it would be modified.

Dr. Platter reiterated that pupils would be sent home as fast as a check was made to determine the number unsuccessfully vaccinated.

Considering the enrollment of the schools on the Hilltop the order is being pretty generally complied with.

Highland Avenue school reported 10 dismissed from the Junior High department and 25 from the elementary.

West Broad Elementary school, where the children are of a younger age, reports less than 100 dismissed from an enrollment of about 800 pupils. However those dismissed are complying with the order as fast as possible and returning to school.

Most tourists on their way to the western coast have departed in that direction so as to get to their journey's end before bad weather might overtake them. The camp has been well patronized all summer, excepting for a short time after a couple of big storms, when the park was flooded.

Westmoor avenue, one of the beautiful new streets in Broadview, is now so smoothly finished in cement that its surface presents the appearance of a new floor. Other streets in that addition are being completed as rapidly as possible.

Work on the new addition to West Broad street school is progressing. The annex, when completed, will give ample relief to the crowded condition prevailing at this building.

The new Masonic temple being erected by Westgate Masonic lodge will soon be ready for the roof. The Tharp Construction Co. is doing the work.

Mr. James Fippin, who lives with his daughter, Mrs. F. P. Sperry, 45 South Harris avenue, has the distinction of having belonged to the order of Odd Fellows longer than any other person in Columbus, having been a member for 54 years.

The protracted dry weather of the past six weeks has somewhat marred the beauty of the flower bed which J. W. Young takes pride in caring for every summer at his corner, Oakley avenue and Broad street.

SOCIETY REPORTER DESCRIBES FIRE.

A fire occurred in an English provincial town and caused much excitement. No member of his regular staff of reporters being available at the time, the editor of the local paper sent the newly engaged society reporter to investigate the matter and report. The following description was handed into the office some hours later:

"A brilliant fire was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sniff in Dash street. A large number of persons were present. Mrs. Sniff, who had recently had her hair bobbed, made a charming escape in a pretty silk blouse, a pattern of which appeared in our women's page last week. The firemen were becomingly garbed in blue, full cut tunics. The weather was delightful for an affair of this kind. Because of the fire, Mrs. Jones, of 336 Dash street, opened her home to Mrs. Sniff and her two charming daughters. The expression was heard on all sides that the first was a most successful event. It must have cost at least $35,000."—Dominion Fire Chief.

HEALTH HINTS.

By DR. O. E. McFADON

CONSTIPATION.

In answer to the question, "What shall I do to be saved?", the Master knew better than to undertake to name a list of specific things which must be done. But "Love is the fulfilling of the Law," is comprehensive and conclusive.

The question, "What is good for constipation?" has a flavor of superficiality, as if some medicine, taken for a day or month, might be thought sufficient. But the cause, when looked into, might show, not only the dietetic sins of yesterday, but the habits of a lifetime, including the habit of taking laxatives, which is known to cause rather than cure constipation.

These causes, as far as possible, must be removed. After which the course to be pursued thenceforth, in connection with any treatment, is to so conform to nature's laws that the condition cannot exist. Otherwise there can be no permanent cure. Cause removing and rational living are not only the best cures, but are really the only cures.

The removal of minerals and vitamines from our breakfast foods and breadstuffs is known to be the most prolific cause of constipation. And constipation is said to cause more human misery than drunkenness ever caused.

The fatalities from cancer are increasing at a frightful rate. And 40 per cent of the 50,000 deaths from cancer in the United States in 1923 were from cancer of the stomach and liver. Research laboratories and health authorities are working overtime to discover definite causes, and the burden of proof is resting heavily upon the unnecessary fermentation, putrefaction and detention of the food mass in the alimentary tract—constipation.

Peristalsis (the onward, slow, movement of the food mass) should be equal throughout the stomach and intestines. During the intake of food—at meals—this movement is estimated to be four times as rapid as at other times. This accounts for the well known tendency toward bowel movements after meals, and is an argument in favor of slow, deliberate eating.

If this uniform peristaltic movement, and the 4 to 1 activity during meals can be maintained, it is clear that there will be as many bowel movements as meals, namely, three each day. Dr. Kellogg says that whoever has no more than one movement per day is constipated, and that there is unnatural detention of fecal matter in the colon, which is a constant source of body-poison—autointoxication.

In looking for causes of constipation, there is one—often overlooked—which is as important as the what, when, how and how much of the intake of food; and that is the proneness in all of us—for we are all guilty—to disregard the calls of nature. We do not ignore her loudest calls, but we do wait for more definite calls.

The writer believes—judging from his own experience—that zealous care in the selection and reduction of the quantity of food taken, together with the cultivating and encouraging, and hence the creating and promoting of three bowel movements each day, that most obstinate cases of constipation can be auto-cured.

But, you ask, why not wait for a louder call? What happens? The serious thing that happens immediately, is a reversal of peristalsis (vomiting is such a reversal.) The fecal matter is taken back and naturally settles in the lowest places—the sigmoid flexure of the colon—where it inevitably ferments and putrifies, and these poisonous products are absorved into the system. This results in auto-intoxication, which may manifest itself—according to Lewis T. Fink "in such ailments as rheumatism, arthitis, hives and other skin troubles, emaciation, heart troubles, summer diarrhoea in children, melancholia, insanity, foul breath, gout, tetany, rise of blood pressure, varicose veins, women's diseases, headaches, epilepsy, asthma, etc." And is it any wonder that a colon so overworked should develop colitis?

What can be done?

If the first offense were yesterday, the results might not be serious. But haven't we all been careless in this matter always? Inasmuch as many of us began this neglect in childhood, isn't it reasonable that nature should demand more reformation than a mere recognition of our fault?

If you are seeking to regain a lost friendship you will go "more than half way" and make such amends as will convince of your sincerity. And you must do so with Mother Nature. If you would have three movements per day, then be willing to wait upon, and coax nature, more than three times. It is important, at each time, that defecation be complete. This can be secured by the use of small amounts of water, which will not prove injurious. Then with your appetite properly curbed, and the intake of food regulated, you can, with patience, expect results. But you must "work at it" and be patient. A very small hard rubber syringe, which may be carried in the vest pocket, will be found most useful, and no harm can come from its use.

Fruits, vegetables and whole grain cereals are safest foods. Avoid overbalancing the ration with such staples as bread, meat, potatoes, cheese, etc.

"They say," remarked a visitor in Boston, "the streets in this city are frightfully crooked."

"They are," replied Mr. Hubb. "Why, do you know, when I first came here I could hardly find my way around."

"That must be embarrassing."

"It is. The first week I wanted to get rid of an old cat we had and my wife got me to take it to the river a mile away."

"And you lost the cat all right?"

"Lost nothing! I never would have found my way home if I hadn't followed the cat!"

"Cheer up, friend," said the parson to the dying editor. "You have a bright future before you."

"That's what's bothering me," gasped the editor, "I can see it blazing."—Ex.

STATE UNIVERSITY WILL OPEN SEPT. 29.

Urge Vaccination of All Students Before They Enroll.

In a statement issued Tuesday by President W. O. Thompson of Ohio State university, he urges that all students expecting to enroll at the university be vaccinated before the opening date, Sept. 29.

"The unfortunate experience in Ohio with a malignant form of smallpox has quadrupled the death rate so far this year as compared with the years since the war," Dr. Thompson said.

The president points out that although the state board of health and the university could, in the exercise of their legal authority, deny registration, or attendance, to any students not successfully vaccinated, there is no desire on the part of either the university or the state board, to resort to such methods.

"We are trying, therefore, to bring to the attention of all prospective students the importance of using the present time for any inconvenience that vaccination may cause," the statement reads.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING HELD

Improvement Association Considers Various Questions at Luncheon—Fall Festival.

Evidence of the revived interest being taken in the Hilltop Improvement association was demonstrated by the members who attended the second weekly luncheon held at the association's club rooms on South Park avenue, Tuesday evening, when the possibility of the work for the association was shown and what can be done by co-operation on the part of all residents of the Hilltop.

In the reports it was shown that there will be questions and bond issues brought before council in the near future that will be of vital interest to every resident of the Hilltop, and the only way to thoroughly understand these questions and arrive at the right conclusion is by thorough investigation. This the Improvement association proposes to do by appointment of committees to make thorough investigations and report their findings to the association.

W. H. Draper, representative of this association at the central body, the Columbus Council of Civic associations, composed of associations from all sections of the city, reported on the proposed bond issues which the city council now has under consideration, which are as follows:

Sewer project, which includes sanitary, storm and combined sanitary and storm sewer relief for the Hilltop and West Side and other sections of the city. The proposed cost is $3,650,000.

City hall project with an estimated cost of $1,500,000.

Central heating plant and police station, to cost $650,000.

Fire and police telegraph building, estimated cost $650,000.

Central fire station, moving Esswine building, etc., $80,000.

Central market and recreation building $500,000.

Workhouse project, $260,000.

Olentangy boulevard, $1,000,000.

Grade crossing elimination, which includes the elimination of the Big Four crossing on Broad street at Camp Chase, the Big Four crossing at Eleventh avenue and the Cleveland avenue crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad. The estimated cost of this project is $350,000.

All of these bond issues are of vital importance to every resident of this section of the city and you will undoubtedly have an opportunity to vote on all of them this fall. That the members of the association and all residents of the Hilltop may thoroughly understand these issues, the matter was referred to the service committee for investigation and report its findings at the next regular meeting of the association, Tuesday Oct. 7 at the club rooms. This committee is composed of H. G. Butler, W. L. Millikin and Bruce Bidwell. They will investigate the term of years the bonds will run, the interest they will bear and the probable effect upon the tax rate. Upon their findings will depend the action taken by the association.

The fall festival committee, of which Brown Turner is chairman, is planning a three-day event for the latter part of October, including halloween. It is expected that this will be the biggest event the Hilltop has ever had and will put this section of the city before the eyes of the public in a manner never before attempted.

Monday night council passed a resolution granting the committee the use of Broad street from Oakley avenue to Richardson avenue.

The next luncheon will be held next Wednesday at 12:30, at which time it is expected a good speaker will be present.

FILLING STATION OPERATOR ROBBED

Clyde D. Ward Held Up Last Saturday Night on His Return Home From Work.

"We want your money—stick 'em up."

That's the reply Clyde D. Ward got when he bumped up against three holdup men in his garage last Saturday night at 11:30. He and Mrs. Ward had just returned to their home, 2012 Sullivant avenue, from his day's work at the filling station he operates at Rich and Grub streets and had driven their machine into the alley back of the garage.

Mrs. Ward got out of the machine and went into the house, while Mr. Ward opened the garage door and drove the machin in. He had turned out the light and was just about to close the alley door when the three holdup men entered and be asking what they wanted, was given the above reply, at the point of three guns.

He was turned around with his back to the robbers and his hands up, while the robbers went through his clothes, getting about $75 in money, also taking a small strong box he had with him, that contained a number of insurance policies and a deed to a lot in Green Lawn cemetery.

After the robbers were through searching him, he was struck on the head with the butt-end of a revolver, which caused a wound in the left side of his head, which was dressed by Dr. Nessley.

The robbers beat a hasty retreat west in the alley beck of Mr. Dale's residence and made a getaway before the police arrived, a short time afterward.

Mr. Ward is of the opinion that this gang has planned to rob him a couple of times before. About three weeks ago suspicious looking characters were seen lurking around the filling station, which attracted his attention. A couple of weeks ago he was told by neighbors that they had seen two strange men going through his yard, but they sneaked away when they saw neighbors coming near. Mr. Ward was also told that strangers were seen around his residence before they came home.

Mr. Ward asks us to request residents living in that vicinity to keep a lookout around their alleys or rubbish piles, where they may run across the box containing the insurance papers. It was a black tin box about 12 inches long, six inches wide and one and one-half inches deep. He will give a reward for the return of the box.

Mr. Ward has conducted the filling station at that place for nearly a year. He formerly ran a blacksmith shop on West Broad street and Hayden avenue.

ROBBERS ACTIVE ON SULLIVANT AVENUE

Two Homes Entered and Small Amount of Loot Obtained in Each.

R. L. Jacobs, 2196 Sullivant avenue, reported to police Tuesday that his house was burglarized early Tuesday and $10 and some street car tickets were stolen. Members of the family told police they believed they had been chloroformed.

The home of A. G. Scheingold, 2194 Sullivant avenue, the other side of the above home, was also entered and $14 in money and street car tickets were reported as missing.

The chloroform seemed to be more noticeable in the Scheingold residence, and Mr. Scheingold was ill all day from the effects of the drug.

AUTO CRASH VICTIM STILL UNCONSCIOUS

Frank R. Flynn, 48, of 46 Clarendon avenue, who received a fractured skull in an automobile accident Saturday when the automobile in which he was riding with James J. Martin and John J. Trantman, crashed into a telephone pole at Obets Junction, was reported Thursday morning in a critical condition and unconscious at Mercy hospital.

ELIMINATION OF GRADE CROSSINGS

Considered By Council in Committee Monday Night. Other Bond Issues Up.

We may get a chance in November to vote on elimination of the grade crossing at West Broad street and Camp Chase, according to a decision of the city council in committee last Monday night. It also carries with it the proposed elimination of grade crossings at Cleveland and Eleventh avenue, and requires an issue of bonds in the amount of $350,000.

If this should be on the ballot we predict an overwhelming affirmative vote on the Hilltop, as all are aware that this improvement is surely needed. The only weak point we can see in the proposal is that it should also include the Hague avenue and Big Four crossing also. Then the Pennsylvania and Hague avenue crossing might be taken care of by the county commissioners, as this point is outside the city limits.

All three of the above crossing are dangerous ones, with many accidents, costing human lives, to their toll during the past few years, and the probability of many more to come before the grade crossings can be eliminated.

When a person drives north on Hague avenue, the wooded terrace and sharp curve on the left makes it almost impossible to see an eastbound approaching train until almost reaching the middle of the track. Of course it is truthfully said that persons approaching such crossings ought to stop, and they should; but how many are there that do not? That, of course, is carelessness on the part of the driver, but does not help matters with the dozens of innocent victims who have been riding behind the drivers.

We happened, not long since, to arrive at the Broad street and Big Four crossing just as one of the fliers was approaching, and of all the antics and contortions the crossing tender had to go through to keep some of the dozen or more machines approaching in both directions seemed to us enough to bring on nervous prostration to that man in a few months. We said there and then that he surely earned his salary.

With the rapid growth of the Hilltop and the vastly increased travel on our highways, no stone should be left unturned until both these grade crossings have been eliminated.

We mentioned a couple of weeks ago of how a little thing would go a long ways sometimes and drew an incident. But, gee whiz, here's another:

Last week was the occasion of the Hilliards fair—a little thing when compared to our Ohio state fair. Well, who should "bust in" on us one day last week, almost embracing each other with joyfulness, requesting us to tell the folks that they had "made up" and were going to the Hilliard fair, but Ray Haunts and Sherman Edwards—the two we mentioned not long ago as having their differences over drinking water, thermometers, clocks, etc. Ray went so far as to instruct us to say Sherman Edwards is the Prince of Wales, but we have wondered if he didn't mean the "prince of wails." If Sherman didn't notice it, he's just as happy, anyway. Well, anyway—guess they had a good time, and we are glad to know they have "kissed and made up."

WOMEN TAKE OUT HUNTING LICENSES

Thirteen Franklin county women, all residents of Columbus, have taken out hunting licenses for fall hunting, the records of the county clerk show.

Among this list is Mrs. Nell Smith of 2402½ West broad street.

The normal number of hunting licenses issued in Franklin county yearly is 10,000, and seven-tenths of these are still to be issued, according to the county clerk. The bulk of the licenses are issued after the rabbit season opens in December.

SCHOOL CHILDREN TO BE INSTRUCTED

By Police of City in Crossing Streets at Intersections—Feature of Safety Week.

Particular attention will be directed to impressing upon children the necessity for caution in crossing at street intersections, as one of the features of safety educational week, according to A. O. Rodrian, secretary of the Columbus Automobile club.

Members of the police traffic school have been detailed by Chief French to make talks in all the schools. "Children are one of the greatest contributing causes to accidents, and all the dont's of parents and teachers will not make them cautious," chief French said. "A policeman in uniform means a lot to a child and a suggestion from him will be followed eagerly by a child when a command from parent or teacher would be forgotten or ignored," the chief said.

The Automobile club adopted the idea of having the policemen talk to the children at the suggestion of Chief French.

Rev. C. H. Fry is to be the pastor at Columbia Heights M. E. church, Rome, during the next conference year, according to the list of appointments made during the conference of that denomination.

At the meeting of the Ohio M. E. conference last week at Ironton, White Cross hospital, Columbus, was put on the list as a permant benevolence institution.

HEALTH HINTS.

By DR .O. E. McFADON

OBESITY.

Fatness is no longer a symbol of health, nor is it desirable from any standpoint. Excess flesh is more tolerable before middle life than later, but lean people live longest, as a rule. There are no old men who have been fat all their lives, for they do not live to be old. Life insurance companies are not fond of insuring overweight people, for, on the average, they are undesirable "risks." In terms of shortened life overweight is no joke.

With their additional burden of flesh, the wonder is that they are as able as they are—physically. But it shows what can be done by training. Milo, a Greek athlete, carried a calf daily till it was full grown. Such things can be done, but they cannot be thought practical. Fleshy people can carry their unnecessary burden and boast of it, but a sack of flour or a heavy satchel would not impede their progress more. Imagine running away from danger on a hot day with a heavy grip to carry. True, excessive exercise will reduce flesh, but why continue flesh building and the excessive exercise when neither is necessary. Mental power is not produced by excessive exercise; the exercise only reduces the handicap. In case of a famine and inevitable starvation, the fat man will live longer than the lean, but we are not looking for famine in this country.

The Life Extension society (New York) and all other such organizations, look to the life insurance companies for accurate figures on life expectancy and causes of shortened lives. The insurance companies have a pecuniary interest which accounts for the reliability of their figures. It would be well for the individual to keep himself a good life insurance risk. It would reveal to him forcefully that his chance of death may be doubled by excessive weight. For instance, if at 40 years of age you have 60 pounds "excess baggage" your insurance rate would be 90 per cent above the regular rate. In other words: a man 50 years of age who carries 50 extra pounds of flesh, has reduced his expectation of life 50 per cent. After the age of 440 an increase of weight should not be tolerated. The cause should be sedulously sought out and knocked out. The average young man is underweight and the average old man is over weight.

The discouraging thing about overweight at 40 is that the cause of it may lie in habits that are of long standing, and so are hard to overcome. But they must be overcome for there is no other way.

Some who would reduce their flesh may be looking for definite and arbitrary rules which they think they would gladly follow. The reason why this is not practical is because so much depends upon your general health, age, sex, size, fatness, habits of work and exercise and how prodigal's tastes, habits and appetites, some People differ as widely in their digestion as in their faces. Add to this the fact that there are 500 kinds of food, some of which "agree" with you and not with others and the problem becomes too complex for arbitration. The dietician must generalize, as much as is safe, and trust the individual as to the what, how much, how and when of the eating, within certain limits.

Aye, there's the rub. The individual"s tastes, habits and appetites, some of which may be thoroughly ingrained, and so, thought to be natural, are to be dealt with. This means will power—and more especially, won't power—in the individual, and obesity cannot be cured without cultivation along these lines, unless you allow the incarceration necessary to the cure of some drug addicts.

If you would reduce your flesh you must prepare to do more or less fighting with yourself and the struggle will be less if some wholesome general general lines are followed.

This leads us up to the subject of overeating. Overeating, as an abstract proposition, is harmful, but overeating of the wrong kind of food is doubly injurious. This makes some fleshy and others thin. It is possible to cure both conditions by the same corrective diets, which shall be the right foods and the right quantity.

The safe foods in obesity are:

Skim milk, cottage cheese, eggs (not fried), bran, whole grain cereals and stale bread thoroughly insalivated, zwieback, gelatin, some chicken and fowl, some lean meat, oysters and fish (not fat), all non-starchy and leafy vegetables, vegetable salads without dressing, ice cream, ices and sherbets, sweet fruits, honey and mable syrup, fruits not cooked in sugar.

Foods to avoid in obesity are: All fat meat, much meat of any sort, all stuffings, dressings and gravies, ioi dressings, all fried foods, fried oysters and other fried breaded foods, all cakes shortened with fat, all hot breads and batter cakes, all sweets with cereals or other starchy foods, all meat pies or other fat baked dishes.

Foods that may be used in moderation are: Butter and cream in small quantities, small serves of cheese, milk, some cereals well insalivated, potatoes and sweet potatoes boiled or baked and thoroughly insalivated, baked squash and taploca, butter, nuts and nut butter, whole grain toast, zwelback and stale bread, lean meat, oysters and fish, some sugar (for flafor only.)

Dr. O. E. McFadon, Osteopath, 106 W. 10th Ave. N. 7904-W.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Resolved: That we, the members of the Personal Workers' Bible class of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church, have received with profound sorrow the announcement of the death of our sister, Mrs. Sarah Davis;

Resolved: That from an earnest desire to show every mark of respect to her memory and to express the high estcem held for her by her associates and friends, a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the class, printed in the Hilltop Record, and presented to the family.

COMMUNITY BIBLE CLASS TO ORGANIZE

At Hilltop Lutheran Church Thursday Evening, Sept. 25.

The Community Bible Class of the Hilltop Lutheran church is sponsoring a new innovation for all church members and Bible students of the Hilltop.

On Thursday evening, Sept. 25, the Mid-Week Bible Study class will be organized at the church, corner of South Terrace and West Broad streets, for the purpose of studying the Bible and especially the Sunday school lesson for the following Sunday.

These meetings will be held each Thursday evening and it is hoped to have representatives of all denominations in this class as it is held for the broader discussion of all Bible subjects. Every citizen of the Hilltop is invited to attend this mid-week study class.

REDS ENTERTAIN MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

Banquet Given at Conclusion of Contest Among Members—Interesting Talks Given.

Thursday evening, Sept. 18, the Men's Bible class of the Hillcrest Baptist church was fed and entertained by the Red division of the class. This event was the climax to a summer campaign for the months of July and August, during which time church attendance usually slumps, and by the additional effort the class was built up to a record attendance of 156 on Sunday, Aug. 31.

Prayer was offered by Rev. W. E. Freeman, after which those assembled took their places and were served a bounteous dinner with all the trimmings, and served by eight evidently experienced waiters in full dress.

Rev. E. McFarlane, pastor of the church gave the address of welcome, then E. Ray Evans told a good story well and rendered a limerick to the occasion, after which H. T. Wilson kept the house in an uproar by his impressions of three imaginary black cats.

Dr. R. J. Miller gave an interesting and educating lecture on the physical body functioning.

Dr. Welles gaves an intersting and instructive talk on the care of the teeth.

A quartet composed of E. R. Evans, W. E. Knox, H. T. Wilson and Floyd Ellison, assisted by Wayne Miller, pianist, was highly enjoyed. Then Mr Evans brought down the house with his impersonations of song and guitar.

At this time the Blue division was given an opportunity to render their appreciation of talent that had been displayed by the Reds, and offered as a surprise to all, Victor Wells, who was so proficient with the harp or mouth organ and song, that he was reluctantly released.

It is the plan of the class to hold forth on these occasions monthly throughout the fall and winter, with a special arrangement for the Yuletide season.

Rev. E. B. White of Jackson, Ohio, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seitz, 2643 Sullivant avenue, Tuesday.

Mr. F. M. Smith, 260 South Harris avenue, has returned from Grant hospital and has sufficiently recovered to meet his old friends.

Mrs. T. W. Owens, 236 South Terrace street, had as her guests last week Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brewer of Ashley, Ohio.

See Seiller's ad, last page.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Risser of 95 South Ogden avenue, have as their guest Mr. Risser's mother, Mrs. Clara Risser, of Toledo.

HILLTOP IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION

There is no organization on the Hilltop that merits more the support of the residents, property owners and business men, than the Hilltop Improvement association.

While this association is only in existence in its present form since last March, when it took over the Hilltop Athletic club, still in some form or another a little coterie of live wires of the Hilltop have for the past 12 years sought to draw together those of this locality who have its welfare at heart without refernce to creed or political complexion.

There should always be in every community, one place where all classes, creeds and political complexions fade into uniformity of action and unanimity of desire for civic improvement.

The Hilltop Improvement Association is that place for every resident, property owner and business man or woman on the Hilltop.

The program of the coming season includes paving of West Broad, extension of street car line to Big Four crossing, adequate sewerage, better playgrounds and more of them, more schools and better ones, increased acreage for parks and municipal swimming pools and recreation centers in new parks, and extension and improvement of conditions in old parks, in addition to the usual program of activities of various kinds to keep the Hilltop right to the front.

FIFTEEN JUVENILE RESEARCH WARDS

Walk Away From Institution, Including Thirteen Boys and Two Girls.

Thirteen boys, clad only in their night clothes and shoes, escaped from the State Bureau of Juvenile Research some time before 3 a. m. Tuesday.

The boys escaped through a window from which the glass had been cut and the window screen broken.

They were found at 9:30 Tuesday night huddled in a barn about two miles north of Alton and were returned to the institution.

Two girls, wards of the bureau, disappeared from the grounds Tuesday noon, but were found wandering on Dennison avenue and returned to bureau officials Tuesday afternoon.

RECEPTION GIVEN HONORING PASTOR

Members of Hilltop Church of Christ Honor Rev. and Mrs. J. N. Johnston.

Rev. J. N. Johnston, pastor of the Hilltop Church of Christ, and his bride of a few days, formerly Mrs. Elizabeth Humphreys of 923 Franklin avenue, returned to their home, 90 North Elton avenue after a short honeymoon and was given a splendid reception by the church members at the Hilltop Church of Christ on Saturday evening. Nearly the full membership of the church were present. Cake, ice cream and coffee were served.

A beautiful table lamp was presented to the bride and groom by the members. A fitting presentation speech was made by C. F. Bigham, one of the elders of the church.

Rev. Johnston is the second minister holding the pastorate of this church, serving as its pastor several years while the congregation was meeting in the K. of P. hall on West Broad street prior to the erection of its present edifice. He was a big factor in pushing the work to the point of needing a church building and was very active in pushing the work of the building to the point of completion.

BOY SCOUTS GO TO CHILLICOTHE

Members of Troop No. 21, with Several of Their "Dads" Made Trip Last Sunday.

In place of their regular fall camping trip, which usualy takes place the first week in October, 16 scouts of Troop No. 21, Boy Scouts, and several of their "dads" motored to Chillicothe last Sunday. This is the old home place of their scoutmaster, R. C. Kadel, and after seeing what remains of Camp Sherman, they visited several other places of interest. The trip was then continued to the Fairview Fruit Farm, a few miles southwest of Chillicothe. Our cartoonist friend, Mr. Ireland, has long since termed Ross county the Garden of Eden on account of the wonderful apples raised in that part of the state. Through the courtesy of Mr. Seeling, the owner of this farm, the men and boys were shown tree after tree so full of apples that they were breaking down under their own weight. The visitors were also given a chance to display their very good talent for eating apples and drinking good fresh cider.

On the return trip some of the scouts visited the Logan Elm.

Troop 21 meets at Hoge Memorial church and has one of the best troop and club rooms in the city, besides the use of the gym floor. For the past three summers they have been taking camping trips, leading to different parts of the state, and are now working on plans for a trip next summer to Washington, D. C. Boys of scout age will do well to get into this troop.

HOLDER'S HELPFUL HINTS.

Not being contractors and builders, we feel that we can say something from a disinterested point of view on the matter of building. That is we are disinterested so far as the present is concerned, but vitally interested in the future, and we are frank in so saying. We like to sell good houses.

Most of the houses east of Hague avenue have been built long enough that the are now free, clear and unincumbered. The owners of these houses have profited by growth of the Hilltop, and they have a nice little reserve. Their faith in the Hilltop has been well repaid. They were progressive and in the main will continue to be.

What we have to say in the way of helpful hints today therefore is to the newcomer, and to those few who have failed to look ahead to values in the future.

Before we come to the particular thing that is in our mind, we will have to cite the horrible example of not looking ahead. Several years ago land east of Bexley was sold for $50 an acre, and platted off in lots, sold for a low price without restricts. Today that land has been refused by several allotment or sub-division companies because a number of shacks have been built all around the allotment.

Remember, therefore, that the "restriction" as to the minimum cost is not meant for you, it is meant for the other fellow. You want to build the best home you possibly can, and the restriction is to prevent the other fellow from lowering your values by building just under the restriction. So when you build, "keep the faith" and build as far above the restrictions as good judgment will permit. Your faith will become contagious, the other fellow will do all he can to outdo when you do this.

Always bear in mind that the first houses forced on the markt in hard times are the cheap and moderate priced houses, owned by the fellow who overestimated his buying powers. They feel the declines first and the rises last. Good houses don't have to be sold, they are always bought.

Be sure to consider the fact all Hilltop lots have increased in value more than any other section of the city, and when you build have your building conform to the future, rather than the past or present value. "Blessed is he who anticipates" is an old proverb that surely applies to building your home.

You do but hasten the arrival of the higher value on your lot when you anticipate them and build accordingly. Get the forward vision therefore, and see to it that you at once raise the value of your land by a building that is in line with its future value rather than its past value.

The day of cheap lots and cheap building on the Hilltop is gone and gone forever, and the sooner we all awake to that fact, the more certain we are to reach the conclusion that from now on, no house should be built on the Hilltop in the better section, under $7000 to $12,000. Sacrifice on all other lines, but don't cut your estimate on your home building. You will regret it the rest of your life if you don't build up to future values and demands, not down to old values that have gone for good.

Mrs. C. S. Irwin entertained the members of the Hilltop Embroidery club at a 1 o'clock luncheon Wednesday at her home, 77 South Richardson avenue.

The Cheerful Workers' class of the Hilltop Lutheran Sunday school gave a surprise party on Juanita Adamson at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Adamson, 171 South Warren avenue, in honor of her eleventh birthday. The party was a complete surprise on Juanita and a pleasant time was had by all present, including Louine Meyers, Mildred Gilbert, Virginia Miller, Virginia Garrity, Frances Richel, Lois Biddle, Juanita Adamson, Kenneth Peck, Paul Messmer, Paul Thomas, Walter Albright, Charles Pfaltzgraf, Mrs. Elizabeth Pfaltzgraf and Mrs. Charles Houx, teacher of the class.

GLENWOOD LADIES' AID ENTERTAINED

In Honor of Rev. and Mrs. R. T. Stimmel Who Will Move to Ironton, Ohio.

Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 17, is long to be remembered by all who participated in the farewell party honoring Rev. and Mrs. R. T. Stimmel, who have accepted a new pastorate at Central M. E. church, Ironton.

About 150 members and guests of the Ladies Aid society assembled at Glenwood church. Dainty refreshments were served, and after a splendid social time, Mrs. Joseph Bishop, representing the second division of the society; Mrs. H. R. Gibson, the first; and Mrs. Sidney Priest, the third, presented a most beautiful fernery and money with which to purchase the evergreen ferns, which would be symbolic of the tender memories of the pleasant associations of the past three years.

Mrs. H. W. Lowrie, the president of the society, introduced Mrs. E. B. Hooper, who in a most delightful and impressive manner, represented the aid as a whole, in presenting a beautiful floor lamp.

In responsive acceptance Rev. and Mrs. Stimmel could scarcely express their appreciation of such kindnesses, which was the climax of the loyalty and faithfulness of the organization during their pastorate at that church, which has proven to be fruitful indeed. They leave for their new home this week.

SCHEDULES FOR FALL AND WINTER

Arranged for Hoge Memorial—Church Night, Motion Pictures and Gym Features.

One of the outstanding features of the new program at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church will be Church Night on Wednesday of each week. On this night no gymnasium work will be allowed by the house committee, but the entire membership of Sunday school and church will be invited to sit down to a supper served at cost at 6:30 o'clock. This will follow a devotional or prayer service of equal interest to all, that will last to about 8 p. m., when the choir will practice, committees will meet, officers will hold meetings and Sunday school teachers on appointed nights will hold their meetings. This popular part of the church's program will enable people who have engagements at the church to keep them all on Wednesday night and have other nights free for other matters of importance. Mr. A. W. Jordan is chairman of the committe arranging this feature.

Another weekly feature of this church will be the community motion picture night, which will be held each Saturday night at 7 o'clock. R. P. Roush, of the juvenile research bureau, is chairman of the committee in charge of these programs.

The first entertainment will be given Saturday night, Oct. 4, and will probably include "The Hoosier Schoolmaster" in five reels, and a comedy by Charley Chaplin. It is expected that the prices to be charged will just cover the rental of the films and the upkeep of the machine.

Anyone, whether a member of this church or not, is invited to make use of this feature of the program.

The gymnasium committee of Hoge Memorial church announces the following schedule of gym classes and groups, beginning this week:

Monday—3:30-5, boys up to 14; 7:30-8:30, boys over 14; 8:30-10, young men.

Tuesday—7-8:30, young women; 8:30-10, women.

Wednesday—Church night for all.

Thursday—4-5:30, Girl Scouts; remainder of evening open to fill in lost hours.

Friday—3:30-5, girls up to 14 years; 6:30-8:30, men; 8:30-10, Boy Scouts.

Saturday—Afternoon, open to organizations as per house committee arrangements; evening, motion pictures.

For the second time in two years this church has set as a goal 100 new members by Jan. 1. The first time this goal was set, it more than went over the top, and with all members of the congregation co-operating, it is confident it will more than make good again.

Glenwood Women's Foreign Missionary society will hold their October meeting at the home of Mrs. H. O. Hamilton, 80 North Ogden avenue, Wednesday, Oct. 1, at 2 p. m. to study "The Mystery Box" in September Friend. A special program will be given and a Chinese lunch will be served.

There will be an important business meeting and social gathering of the Christian Endeavor of Hoge Memorial church Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the Church.

WHAT THIS MEANS TO THE HOUSE OWNER

Within the last few years, profiting by the example of the Garden City hotel, thousands of people have had old wooden roofs recovered with Johns-Manville asbestos shingles. Some have used the rigid asbestos shingles in either the standard red, gray or brown, or the attractive combinations of the "color-blende." Others have re-roofed with Flexstone asbestos shingles—the red, green or blue-black, slate-surfaced shingle with the fire-proof asbestos base. We have yet to know of a job that is not entirely satisfactory in every respect. The expense, considering the permanence of the work, is exceedingly small. The job can be easily done by any good carpenter or slater with less dirt and litter than almost any other sort of roofing job.

How about your roof? Are the shingles splitting and curling, allowing watre to drip in and discolor your decorations? Occasionally, as you walk about, do you find pieces of wood shingles that have dropped out? These are signs that you roof needs attention. It is no economy to delay, and now that this method of reroofing is a demonstrated success beyond all question, it is more than ever desirable that you have your reroofing done immediately.

The West Side Lumber Co. is agent for this line of roofing.

TURNED DOWN BY INSURANCE COMPANY BECAUSE OF DIABETES

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 8, 1924.

"Dr. Newton T. Miller.

"Dear Sir: In reply to your letter asking what I think of my physical condition by this time, will say that I was never in better health than at the present time. You know when you started to give me treatments, about a year ago, I had a pretty bad case of diabetes. I have had all kinds of test meals, after which I have had urine, blood and sugar tests several times since you quit treating me, and nobody has been able to find any sugar. I also wish to say that I have eaten everything I want during this period."

ECZEMA.

"I was an intense sufferer from Eczema. My entire body was covered with an eruption and I had been taking medicine for a long time to get relief, but it would not last, and as soon as I quit taking medicine the eruption would again appear. I had heard of Dr. Raymond Miller, the Chiropractor, and the great results he was getting, and went to him. After a few adjustments my skin cleared up and today, six months later, I have no sign of an eruption on my body anywhere, thanks to Dr. Miller."

GOITRE AND STOMACH TROUBLE.

Columbus, O., Aug. 10, '24.

"Having suffered a long time with both stomach trouble and goitre, had come to the conclusion nothing would do me any good. My husband, having been cured of lumbago through chiropractic adjustments given by Dr. Newton T. Miller, urged me to try them. I did. At first I became discouraged, but my husband kept urging me to stick to it for a while longer. At present time both goitre and stomach trouble have disappeared."

STAGE ARTIST'S EXPERIENCE WITH CHIROPRACTIC AND CHIROPRACTORS.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 26, '24.

"Dear Dr. Miller: Am writing this letter in appreciation of the wonderful relief I have attained from your Chiropractic adjustments. The full extent of your proficiency was made plain to me after the first adjustment you gave me. When I left England for America I was a broken-down woman. An American friend advised me to try the Chiropractors. I did, and since then I have been taking adjustments all over the United States. I am a firm believer in them. Your work has been the most successful yet, and as I have been to a great number of Chiropractors, I left your card at the James theater for the benefit of my brother artists who are taking Chiropractic treatments. I am certain that they will get the best of attention. Thanking you once again for the wonder-results I have had from your work."

GOITRE.

August 29, 1924.

"I have been a sufferer from Goitre for a great many years, and experienced the various severe symptoms which accompany Goitre, such as severe headaches, nervousness, gripping at the throat, unable to sleep at night, etc. Was advised to have the thyroid gland removed by an operation, but a friend of mine told me of the wonderful results obtained by Dr. Raymond J. Miller, Chiropractor. I went to him. In six adjustments the Goitre was reduced one inch in size and is continually getting better. The other symptoms have entirely disappeared. I am very grateful to Dr. Miller."

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 8, 1924.

"Mer. Newton Miller.

RICKETS.

Baby Marie, Norwich avenue, Columbus, Ohio, 21 months old, weighing 10 pounds, was very sick with Rickets. Baby specialists in West Virginia and Ohio said she could not live. Her arms and legs were no larger around than a fifty-cent piece; she couldn't sit up and could not change her position while lying on her back as she was in such a weakened condition. Her abdomen was twice its normal size. She continually ran a temperature. A Columbus baby specialist was called in and told the family that the baby could not live and "the best thing they could do was to pray that it might die." Dr. Raymond Miller, Chiropractor, was called in the same night and gave her the first spinal adjustment. At this time, two months later, Baby Marie has gained approximately 10 pounds, her arms and legs are filling out nicely, she sleeps well and retains her food. The abdomen is assuming its natural size and she can raise herself to a sitting position without aid. She is playing and laughing, something she never did before.

Chiropractic appeals strongly to the professional and business man because of its efficiency and brevity. Concerning the treatment unnecessary time is not wasted doing non-essential things for which you must pay. Chiropractic consists of doing one certain thing, and when that is done, the Chiropractor is through.

HILLTOP BAND—AN ORGANIZATION

Of of Hilltop Musicians Led By Prof. Shockey of World Fair Fame.

Not all the members of the present Hilltop band were members of the original organization of that name. When first organized they were known as the Kadina Cadet band and later called the Glenwood Cadet band, meeting in the old Glenwood M. E. church. This organization stuck together for more than two years and by weekly rehearsals and hard work, played very creditably, but several of the best players leaving, the band ceased to be an organization.

Several attempts were made to reorganize, but all efforts were in vain until 1911, when George W. Shockey, leader and soloist of the famous Shockey band that won fame at the World's fair at Chicago, moved with his family to the Hilltop. Being a natural musician and a professional band leader, Mr. Shockey at once began to gather together those who had had experience in band work and other talented musicians. Soon Professor Shockey had a band of 24 uniformed men, the pride of the Hilltop.

During the campaign for prohibition the Hilltop band donated their services to the cause, leading parades in the city and surrounding towns, giving concerts in churches, halls, tents and other meeting places.

They led the mammoth parade at the opening of the new Hilltop fire engine house, the parade and meeting when the Hilltop boys left for camp during the World war, Labor day parades, the business men's annual outing and many other events.

A musical organization is a social and a civic pride as well as a business asset to a community. Let the business, fraternal and social organizations of the Hilltop boost the Hilltop band.

The band meets every Thursday evening at Dollison's music store, 2429 West Broad street. All band men and others with musical talent are welcome to attend these rehearsals. Let every business man on the hilltop get behind the Hilltop band.

The Needle Arc club will meet at the home of Mrs. B. J. Dildine, 61 North Warren avenue, Thursday, Sept. 27th.

HILLTOP WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS.

A Brief Outline of the Lodges and Clubs Sponsored by the Women of This Vicinity—Charter Members, Officers.

ROBERT MORRIS CHAPTER No. 372, O. E. S.

Robert Morris Chapter No. 372, Order of Eastern Star, was instituted April 7, 1914, and a charter granted Oct. 28, 1914.

The credit for starting this chapter is due Mrs. Mary E. Hooper, who worked faithfully, but before her ambition was reached was called to the great beyond, and the work was completed by Mrs. Anna Fleming, the first worthy matron.

Charter Members.

The membership at the time the charter was granted, numbering 65, included the following: Winfield Scott, Anna Fleming, Mary Scott, Thomas S. Fox, Delcina Fox, W. E. Ranney, Edna A. Ranney, Carl W. Evans, Anna M. Evans, Leonard Seiller, Beatrice Seiller, George Milner, Elizabeth Milner, Lisola M. Goulding, Lettie Ginder, W. V. Ginder, Hugh B. Hughes, Sarah Hughes, Richard Hughes, Caroline Hughes, Charles F. Thomas, Iva Tracy, Margaret Wean, Clarence V. Williams, Olive D. Williams, Denny Wells, Lulu Wells, Ira Wills, Alice Wills, Viola Hooper, Daniel Jerman, Phebe Jerman, Milton Laywell, Ada Laywell, Mary Long, Ethel Matson, Lutie Wurzauf, Elizabeth Morgan, Beatrice Morgan, Josephine Nowell, Mary McCann, Andrew Ogg, Fannie Ogg, Ada Ogg, Anna Porter, Achbur Budd, Jennie Budd, Harry Beckett, Mary Bell Beckett, Lillian Chatfield, Lucy Clark, Hannah Cussins, Norma Barrow, Louise Buchwalter, Kate Beem, Mary E. Cannon, Lelia Cooley, Fanny Durrell, Percy Durrell, Frances De Golley, Bess Emerson, Harvey Emerson, Nellie Ellison, Hattie Evans and Katherine Evans.

The greater responsibility of making every chapter a success rests largely on the worthy matrons and patrons, and we give here the name of those who have served faithfully.

Past Matrons.

Mrs. Anna Fleming, Mrs. Fanny Ogg, Mrs. Viola Hooper, Mrs. Edna A. Ranney, Mrs. Iva Tracy, Mrs. Lisola Goulding, Mrs. Kathryn Evans, Mrs. Lillian Hughes and Mrs. Maurice Ely.

Past Patrons.

George Milner, Winfield Scott, Clarence Williams, John Moore, Erson Hoopr, Jesse Tracy, Elroy Drye, John Evans, W. D. Hughes.

Present Officers.

The present officers are as follows: Mrs. Lulu Constans, worthy matron, Dr. George T. Ely, worthy patron, Mrs. Rachael Drye, associate matron; Mrs. Olive D. Williams, secretry; Mrs. Jennie Budd, treasurer; Mrs. Irene Bents, conductress; Mrs. Ethel Fishbaugh, associate conductress; Mrs. Elnora McGlinshy, chaplain; Mrs. Chloe McCrin, marshall; Mrs. Josephine Nowell, pianist; Mrs. Leona Stevens, Adah; Mrs. Ada Grimstead, Ruth; Mrs. Hulda Carey, Esther; Mrs. Beatrice Willets, Martha; Mrs. Rose Fell, Electa; Mrs. Alice Moore, warden; Mrs. Anna Evans, sentinel.

The chapter has made a steady growth from its institution and now has a membership at the end of this chapter year, Sept. 1, 1924, of 589 members.

The name selected for this chapter is very appropriate as it was the name of the man that conceived the idea of having such an order, and we know through his efforts great good has been accomplished.

The chapter meets the first and third Tuesday evening of each month at West Gate lodge room, corner Burgess and West Broad, and in the near future will move with West Gate to their new temple on West Broad street, in which they have been very much interested.

A cordial welcome is always extended all visiting members and if there are any members living in our community belonging to other chapters, we invite them to visit us.

B. F. ALLEN REBEKAH LODGE

Through the untiring efforts of Mrs. Lulu Dorsey, names were secured for a charter in the Rebekah degree of I. O. O. F. to be located on the Hilltop. On the afternoon of Aug. 16, 1915, a mock lodge was held and officers elected.

The first officers were, Noble grand, Lulu Dorsey (deceased); vice grand, Viola Wills (deceased); secretary, Mae Finley; treasurer, Anna Mott; chaplain, Mary Gillispie (deceased); sitting past noble grand, Jennie Brown.

State President, Sister Perry, took charge of instituting this lodge. Grand Secretary Emma Bell presented the dispensation.

Lulu Dorsey, having been given the privilege of naming the lodge, named it B. F. Allen, in honor of her father, whose name it still bears.

B. F. Allen Rebekah lodge was the 752nd Rebekah order instituted, and on request of members was placed in the 54th district. On the night of Aug 16, 1915, in the presence of many visiting lodges and grand officers, Grand Central Rebekah lodge of Columbus very impressively initiated the following charter member into the mysteries of the order:

Sarah Beekman, Louise Hoar, Ella Erwin, Emma Scheer, Alice Long (deceased), Ina McCann, Alice Lightfritz, Olive Hammon, Mary Finley, Idell Maxwell, Anna Newsom, Goldie Elbon, Viola Wilies (deceased), Mary Herron, Anna Mott, Marcella Hubble, Idella Hannon, Mary McCann, Margaret Topping, Mary Gillispie (deceased).

In my judgment Westgate offers Columbus builders and investors one of the greatest and safest opportunities they have ever had in local real estate.

BUY IN WESTGATE NOW—IT WILL MEAN A PROFIT TO YOU LATER

THIS firm believes in Columbus and its future. Its growth in size and greatness is as certain as the dawn. In considering real estate values, it is just a question of time when bigger prices will prevail, as an increase in population means an increasing value in Real Estate.

In putting its own money into the Ideal Westgate Addition, the Pavey-Johnson Company gave unquestioned evidence of its confidence in the Hilltop section. This investment was not based on hopes or guesswork—but facts.

Making a complete survey of the city, 27 representatives of the Real Estate Board found that the Hilltop section has been and is enjoying more development than any other section of the city.

This improved home district, lying south from Broad St., is now being offered to prospective home owners, builders and investors. Buyers of today will reap future profits. Here's your chance to "cash in"—take it!

Profits produced in homesites in the Hilltop district in the past 10 years were convincing proof of the value of accessible real estate near Broad Street. The fact that development and increased prices always follow the main arteries of a city's traffic made the selection of Westgate a matter of course. These considerations removed every element of chance from buying in the Westgate Addition. The fact that no property adjacent to the Broad Street zone has ever depreciated in value, but has invariably produced a profit for the owner, made it an absolutely safe investment—not a speculation.

HILLTOP FRATERNAL ORDERS

Brief Sketches of the Three Fraternal and Benevolent Organizations Located on the Hilltop—Charter Members, Officers.

WEST GATE LODGE No. 623 F. A. M.

May 29, 1913, about thirty-five Masons of the Hilltop met at the present site of West Gate Lodge No. 623, F. & A. M., with the "firm and fixed resolution" to organize a Masonic lodge on the Hilltop. They organized by electing T. A. Jones chairman and W. H. Hawk secretary. W. G. Davis agreed to see that they had a suitable Masonic home, which he proposed to furnish by enlarging his storeroom and making suitable rooms on the second floor, which, as all know, has since been done, and West Gate lodge now occupies these elegant and commodious quarters. The chairman then appointed a committee composed of Dr. L. B. Turner, M. C. Grove and W. G. Davis to secure the consent of the various lodges in this jurisdiction, and take any other steps necessary to secure a Masonic lodge, after which the meeting adjourned.

Consent was obtained from the different lodges and on June 9, 1913, application was made to the Grand Lodge, F. & A. M. of Ohio, for a charter empowering them to work. This dispensation was granted June 22, 1913, by Most Worshipful Master Edward Griffiths of Cleveland, one month after the first meeting, to form a lodge. West Gate Lodge No. 623 was granted a charter Oct. 23, 1913.

Dr. L. B. Turner, past master of Vinton Lodge No. 121, was appointed worshipful master; W. G. Davis of Humboldt Lodge No. 476, senior warden, and T. A. Jones of Fairmont Lodge No. 509, Illinois, junior warden.

SHAMROCK PATROL

By I. L. Kidd
38 North Warren Avenue,

Ted Lewis backed up to a building just as the gang was about to rush him. "Any of you kids want me can come and get me, but I can't whip the whole gang at once." "Aw, you can't lick the smallest kid in the bunch," cried Mick Hanlin, who was the bully of Irishtown, which was in the northwestern part of Colville.

They were after the Lewis boy, who was dressed in the uniform of a Boy Scout, and was trying for a merit badge in hiking. Mick and his gang did not like the Scout because he was clean and tidy. "I am going to pass this corner and if you start anything the nearest kid to me is going to be sorry," said Ted. But this time, Lewis was hemmed in on all sides. "Well, boys, I don't want to fight, because someone always gets hure. Listen, now, and be good sports. I'll bet you kids can't keep up with me on my hike."

"Aw, listen to him beggin'," shouted Eddie Slatery, a tall Irish lad, with a half smile playing around a pair of sneery lips.

"Well, if you think I am begging, I will have to teach you different. You know a Scout never fights until he has to. Then he always fights to win." And before Slatery could get turned around he was rolling on the ground. Ted knew he must work fast, and with one down, he turned and struck the nearest one to him. This happened to be a small fellow, and he certainly took the count. Ted was working so fast he ran out of enemies.

"Come on, all you big cowards. Any one of you. Yes, all of you! Don't stand there and waste time; either fight or get out of my way." With these words he started after one boy, and the gang scattered in all directions.

A parting shot told them that he would get them later. This was sure some bluff Ted had put up and got away with.

Lewis walked over, took the smaller boy by the hand, and raised him to his feet. Tony thought he was going to get another clout in the fact, for he doubled up and tried to pull away. Teld held him firm and wiped away the blood, which was dropping from the end of his nose. "Now, Tony, I did not mean to hit you so hard, but I had to hit someone, and you was in close reach, so you got what was coming to you. Your only draw-back is that you are in the wrong crowd. I would lie to make a Boy Scout out of you. You sure would make a good quarter for our team this year. Now, if you want to consider this offer, just come alonk with me and I will tell you what a real Scout is made of."

"Say, Boy Scout," cried Eddie Slatery, "I like your style of fighting, and I would like to have the same chance you just offered the Wop."

"All right," said Ted, "Come with me and I will see if you can hike 17 miles without resting."

"If the Wop can do it, I know that an Irishman can."

"All right, here we go on a 17-mile hike."

The first 10 miles were made in tip-top shape. All the while Ted was teaching them the oath and law, or at least giving them just enough to keep them interested. Tony was now showing signs of fatigue, while Slatery was holding his own like a veteran.

At 14 miles, Tony gave up and was just about to set down, when Slatery took him and threw him astride his neck. There Tony rode for half a mile. Ted, noticing that Slatery was beginning to weave back and forth, told him to let Tony down, which he was very willing to do. Tony was now the freshest of the trio, but at that, all were showing signs of fatigue.

As they rounded out the 17 miles and were once more on the scene of the battle ground, not one of the gang was in sight.

"Say, Boy Scout, I believe you scared the gang out, for this is the first time in a year that some of them have not been here. Oh, well, I don't care very much if they don't come back. I like you real well and would rater be with you than with the gang, for what you call being honest is just what I would like to be.

"My mother tried to teach me how to be a good boy, but she died and Dad never said any more about it. So I took up with the gang and here I am. Half the time I am afraid to meet an officer, for our gang has done some awful things. Things that my mother used to tell me not to do, but you know how it is, when your mother is gone. You just think the whole world is against you, and that nobody cares whether you are good or bad."

"Say, Eddie," cried Ted Lewis, "If you could just get started right you would be a real boy. You have the making of a general, and as for handling a patrol of Scouts, you would be a prince."

"Look!" cried Tony, "here comes the gang. Where could they have been down that way. We didn't pass them on the road, or at least I didn't see 'em. They are headed this way, and if they jump you they have got us to lick, too. Aint's they Wop?"

"I'll say they have!"

Hello, fellows," cried Mick Hanlin, as he came up to the three lads, who sat down to rest after their long hike.

"I am in pretty good shape myself; but, say, just look at my army—all shot to pieces—played out, I had to drag three of them the last four miles."

"What do you mean?" asked Ted.

"I mean that I overheadd you tellin' Irish and Tony about the Boy Scouts, and I took my troop of bums that is here and we followed you just to see if we could be real Scouts if you would give us a chance. Now we are ready to join you, if you will learn us to fight like you do, and how to be honest and look the world in the face without feelin' guilty."

"You mean to say you hiked 17 miles, the same as we three?"

"We sure did," echoed the gang. "We are all tired, but happy," said Mick.

Well, boys, this is a wonderful start you have made, and each of you are entitled to a merit bade on hiking. Now, if you want to be real Scouts and will live up to the rule, regulations and obligations, come to my house tomorrow morning. Let me see, there are eight of you. Just enough to fill up a patrol and we have room for you in our troop. With a plucky patrol made up of your endurance, we can make it the leading troop of the city."

Early next morning Mich Hanlin and his gang met at the corner and talked over the prospects of joining the Scouts.

It was a stand-off between Hanlin and Slatery who was going to be the general, as they had heard Ted say something about a general, but didn't just quite catch the meaning. Mick had always had things his own way, and it was agreed that he should hold the highest office in the new patrol.

This being settled, they set out for the home of Ted Lewis, where they were to be considered as a possible patrol in Troop 33.

"Hello, fellows," cried Ted, as the eight boys started up the walk to where he was sitting.

"Hello, Boy Scout," echoed the gang in unison.

"They have appointed me general," spoke up Hanlin, in his next breath, before Slatery had an opportunity to beat him to it to their new friend.

"Boys, this organization is one of the greatest of the twentieth centry. It is based on the good qualities of the young men of all nations. For instance, our laws are Loyal, Helpful, Friendly, Kind, Obedient, Cheerful, Thrifty, Brave, Clean and Reverent. Now, boys, to be a Scout you must know the laws, motto, salute and significance of the badge."

"Say, Boy Scout, I guess you had better let the Wop be the general. I don't believe you could make one of them things out of an Irishman. Any way, I am willing to let Tony be the boss for a while, or until we get more familiar with this kind of life."

These boys were not long in learning the qualifications of a Scout. After drilling them for a while, Ted found them quite interested, and each was willing to do just what was asked of him. After they were properly taken into the order, Eddie Slatery was made patrol leader and Tony Ruddi was assistant patrol leader. Mick, having learned so much in the last few weeks, he was no longer a bully and had learned the art of being a real Boy Scout.

Balls, gloves and bats were being laid away, while the pig skin was coming in season.

"Say, Eddie," cried Ted, "how are you in taking punishment?"

"If you was ever around a bunch of Irish kids, you would not have to ask such a question, for our motto is 'Stay to the finish.'"

"All right, Slatery, round up your patrol Saturday and I will see if you can handle the pig skin—make forward passes, kick goal, run the end and buck the line."

The days that followed were busy ones for the Shamrock Patrol, that being the name hung on them by the Scout Master of Troop 33.

No better name could have been given them as they were true sons of old Ireland. Six of their patrol were given a regular berth on the team, with the Wop as quarter, and Mick was holding down fullback.

They had an excellent coach, pushing them through the signal practice, turning their muscles into iron. Each boy was in the pink of condition and was anxious for the kickoff to come that they might bring home the victory to Troop 33.

"Say, Mick," shouted Tony, "If you ever bumped into anyone in all your life, you must do it now."

"Just leave that to me," said Mick. "I'll make Five's bunch think that one of Uncle Sam's sub chasers is coming down through the field."

Just then Ted Lewis, who was captain of Troop 33's team, called his battling grids together and gave them their final instructions.

"Listen, you fellows!" shouted Ted. "You must all know that the team that is opposing you today is a two-to-one favorite throughout the city. Now, if they win, they only keep their own standing; but if we win it sure means a big victory for Troop 33. Now play as you have never played before, and play square.

Captain Lewis won the toss-up, and took the kick-off. As the referee blew the whistle every boy was on his toes and the battle was on between the rivals of Scoutdom, who were to do their better than best to bring victory to their own troop.

When Ted's toe connected with the pig skin, it took to the air as though it was equipped with a Liberty motor.

"Fine," said Eddie, "tha't the best I ever saw." The ball had landed at Five's 15-yard line, and Mick was there with a tackle that gained a few more feet for Troop 33."

Hanlin was now the hero of his troop.

Back and forth the boys struggled, each putting all his strength and wit against his opponent.

First, second and third quarters were finished and still neither side had scored. The game was now of great interest. The rooters were about evenly matched, and each was trying to outdo the other. So much noise was being made that it was impossible to hear signals, when the last quarter was called for play.

This quarter seemed to bring fatigue to the boys of Troop 33. They seemed to lose their fighting spirit and Five's team crowded them back at will. They were confused and bewildered, even losing sight of the ball. This was Five's opportunity for a touchdown and they took advantage of Thirty-three's condition. Bob Marsh, Five's worthy captain, went around the end and over the line for a touchdown.

This was the awakening of Mick Hanlin, who had always bluffed his way through and had never lost before. But this time strategy had beat bull strength and he was sliding rapidly to defeat.

While Five was getting ready to kick for a goal, Mick was wrestling with a problem that had never entered his mind before, and that was, to win you must play the game square.

When Captain Walsh made the kick, he was over-confident. Catching the ball a trifle high, it sailed through the air about eight feet high, but before it reached the goal, Hanlin made a flying leap into the air and pulled down the ball, holding Five to a single touchdown.

When play was resumed, Walsh made the kickoff to Thirty-three. Tony picking the ball out of the air on the run, and made a 50-yard dash before he was thrown to the ground on Five's 15-yard line.

Lewis started in on silent signals, which proved very effective. With an end run made by Hanlin, with perfect interference, he layed the ball over the line for a touchdown, and the score was now tied.

But when Lewis kicked a perfect goal, with but 30 seconds to play, Five conceded Thirty-three the Winners with a yell of Hanlin, raw! Hanlin, raw, raw, raw, raw Hanlin.

This was followed with a yell for the Shamrock Patrol of Troop 33, who were the victors of a hard fought battle.

They had been given a chance and made good.

BROADVIEW, PRIDE OF THE HILLTOP

Heed & Holton's 'Latest Enterprise Makes Rapid Strides in Development.

There are but few people living on the West side who have not been watching with keen interest and satisfaction the amazingly rapid development which is taking place on the Hilltop south of Broad street, as it is had already begun to the north of Broad some years ago.

The latest evidences of this vitality and power for growth are shown by the location of two new school sites west of Hague avenue and midway between Broad and Sullivant, one on the west line of Broadview and the other on the east. These are, logically enough, placed on either side of the most active residence section of the entire Hilltop, the rapidly building Broadview Addition.

In selecting these sites the board of education was undoubtedly influenced by the past record of Heed & Holton, the developers of Broadview. They know that every addition handled by this firm has been quickly supplied with every city improvement and that consequently, the lots were built up within a short time. Hillcrest and Hillcrest Park, located north of Broad street, are examples of the quickly built-up additions which have gained this firm its reputation, not only with lot purchasers, but with the board of education and other city officials. Broadview, which was farm land less than two years ago and now has 40 fine homes built or under construction, is the latest example of fast development which city improvements make possible.

Heed & Holton were the first firm to offer fully improved homesites on the Hilltop. Their long experience with real estate had shown them that lots without full improvements seldom increase in value. To obtain these improvements for their clients has been one of the principal aims of this successful firm.

No better example of this faith in the necessity for improvements and their anxiety for quick profits to their clients, could be shown than their expenditure of large sums for gas and electricity, which can be obtained only by the advance of cash to the utility companies by the owners of a new addition. In Broadview, for example, the electric service cost Heed & Holton over $10,000, and the gas was many thousands more.

It is only fair to say that the greatest share of credit belongs to this one firm of realtors for the amazing progress which Hilltop property has made. Its additions are by far the most attractive in the entire section, their values most stable and future developments extending through to Sullivant avenue will be a further enterprise of Heed & Holton and one which is certain to meet with big success.

HEALTH HINTS.

By DR. O. E. McFadon.

OVEREATING.

There is no health interest which so constantly calls for the exercise of won't power as overeating. The overkindness of friends, the element of politeness and sociability, the highly seasoned desserts—all contribute to our downfall. Yes, downfall is the proper word, for, if not corrected, the habit becomes confirmed and lifelong, and the discouraging feature is that we may not realize it.

The habit of overeating is well nigh universal. Many who may read this will deny the charge vehemently. They will admit that they overeat occasionally, but they may not realize that this occasional over-indulgence insidiously leads to the habit of eating beyond the body requirements or beyond the capacity to digest and assimilate.

Oversized people are congratulated on their healthy appearance. They take pride in their stoutness and in their ability to take care of three square meals a day. Their "good living" may be leading them before middle life into a lot of misery after middle life and to premature old age and possibly sudden death. No healthy man dies suddenly except by accident.

We all know many people who have wonderful natural resistance, attractive physique and good appetites and digestion, who make the mistake of eating to capacity and imagining that the food they eat and enjoy adds to their strength. More than likely, they are led by their perverted tastes and appetites to eat beyond their needs, in which case the balance of vitality is weakened instead of strengthened.

The nerve force necessary to digest and appropriate the surplus, uses up the vital energy that represents the difference between health and disease or between success and failure in any business or profession. The food addicts are slow to be convinced of their folly, and when convinced, are loth to deny themselves their beloved food. "Their belly is their god," and we are all more or less guilty.

Overeating is more likely to happen if the wrong kinds of food are eaten, because, the wrong food will not satisfy the taste and appetite and, so, naturally, too much is taken.

The right food, in the right quantity, and eaten in the right way, will restore to the blood the energy which it is constantly giving up, just as winding replaces the tension in the mainspring of a watch, but an excess of food is worse than not enough, because of the additional burden which the excess imposes, which is still more serious if the food be not properly chosen.

Dr. O. E. McFadon, Osteopath, 106 W. 10th Ave. N. 7904-W.

THE COINCIDENCE OF THE VASES.

Most persons can remember at least one startling coincidence in their experience. The elder J. Pierpont Morgan liked to tell of one lucky encounter he had while he was seeking a pair of vases to complete a set of Sevres table decorations on which he had set his heart. Collectors had been ransacking Europe for them in Mr. Morgan's behalf, and then one stormy night—as Mrs. Jr Borden Harriman tells the story in From Pinafores to Politics—he arrived in London from Liverpool, having come from America without warning the servants when to expect him.

As he ran up the steps and put his latch key to the door a shivering figure in the vestibule drew two vases from under a torn coat and cried, "I've been going from house to house all day; won't you buy these, sir? My children are starving."

The light from the half-opened door fell on what seemed to be porcelain from the famous set. While the man waited Mr. Morgan rushed upstairs to compare marks. They seemed the same, but it wasn't possible!

"How much do you want for them?" he demanded when he came down.

The man asked a small price, took the money and melted away into the night.

The next day all the London connoisseurs were at Morgan's house, exclaiming, "It's impossible but true!"

The vases matched and the set was priceless.

"I wasn't expected in London," said Mr. Morgan. "The man didn't know what Sevres was worth. I never could trace him. How did it happen? Out of all London to come to my house and at that moment!"—Youth's Companion.

HARLEY D. CULP, Secy — J. W. DINSMORE Prest.

These are typical Broadview homes, built on the west side of Binns Boulevard—the first street to be paved and developed.

Homes like these illustrated above are representative of the entire addition. City improvements have made this rapid development possible.

CITY IMPROVEMENTS have made all this possible

BROADVIEW, by far the finest residence section of the Hilltop district, was a farm less than two years ago. Today it is a part of the great city of Columbus. More than forty modern homes have either been completed or under construction. Many more are planned for this fall and next spring. City improvements have made this wonderful growth possible. City sewers, water, gas, electricity and asphalt streets have converted a farm into a splendid community of homes and home sites, where owners are reaping substantial profits, both in money and satisfaction.

This development has not been accidental. It is the result of foresight in selecting just the right location. It is the result of honesty in recognizing that city improvements are absolutely necessary to proper development. It is the result of energy and persistence in seeing that these improvements were installed without loss of time.

Another Example of Foresight—In order to secure easy and quick access to Broadview from the South, Heed & Holton have secured the beautiful wooded tract extending from the south line of Broadview to Sullivant avenue. It will be a continuation of Broadview with the full support of Heed & Holton, which means proper restrictions and every available improvement.

The Board of Education has secured a ten-acre tract at the southeast corner of Broadview and will soon erect thereon one of the very finest high schools in Columbus. They are now negotiating for another ten-acre tract at the southwest corner for an intermediate school.

NOTE: There are a few very desirable and fully improved home sites available in Broadview. The extension will be ready for the market within a short time. These special lots are absolutely the finest investment open today in high, healthy, fast developing Hilltop property. Remember, prices are not advanced and payments are so small you won't miss them. These are Broadview lots. Phone Main 1462 or Citz. 9477—now!

View looking west on Crescent Drive showing north end of Binns Boulevard Park. Homes under construction in the back ground.

Access to Sullivant avenue from Broadview will be through this beautiful wooded tract which is to be a continuation of Broadview to the south.

FIREMEN'S JOKES

It was told that a certain West Side fireman, reported as having gone fishing at the storage dam one morning, taking a basket along; he "filled it with fish, then crossed to the west side of the river and gathere a bushel of chestnuts, and strolling homeward also picked several gallons of blackberries, after which he stopped at a corn field and 'plucked' three or four dozen roasting ears." The wonder is, why he did not get a bushel of snowballs and icicles.

We have sametimes wondered how many of our Hilltop people appreciate the beautiful flower beds and well kept lawn which so beautifully adorns the engine house corner at Wheatland and Broad. Wouldn't it be fine if more of our corners could be made to look as pretty as this one?

A visitor stepped into a fire station and asked for the captain, and was sent upstairs to find him. At the top of the stairs he was met by the old matron of the station, a colored woman, and he asked: "Do you happen to know anything of the captain's whereabouts?"

"Ahs not sure, sir," replied the colored lady, "but ah think they are in the wash."—Ex.

A member of the Columbus fire department, who lives on the Hilltop, tells this one: "One of the boys had taken a fishing trip up to the storage dam and returned in the evening with big luck. An acquaintance of his (an Englishman happened along the next morning on his way to the river to spend the day fishing. The fireman recommended to him the cer of his good luck, to which place, after explicit directions the Englishman went.

After spending a fruitless day, he returned home disgusted. On being accosted by his fireman friend as to his luck, he expressed in no mild terms his opinion of the said fishing place. Mr. Fireman argued with him that he was not at the same place he had been, and being answered with emphatic affirmatives that he knew he was, wound up by saying that he sat on the same rock Mr. Fireman had sat on and knew it, because he saw where he "spat."

HILLTOP PIONEER DAYS AND ITS OLDEST CITIZEN

Reminiscences of Early Times as Told By the Oldest Living Resident of the Hilltop, Mr. James Fippin. Four-Mile House and Land Values Recalled.

In the year 1856, when there were few families living in this locality, and especially to the west of what is now the Hilltop section, with a very large area yet in woods, some of the trees therein being exceptionally large and reaching to the height of nearly 100 feet, and where wild turkeys, raccoons, foxes and other creatures of that sort abounded to no small degree, there moved to this locality a young man with his family, including his wife and two sons, who took up their residence in a little building north of the National Road on what was known as the Wilson farm (the building was afterward used for a blacksmith shop.)

This young man, whose name was James Fippin, had lost his father by death while a young lad, and consequently had received a lot of experience in the school of hard work. In order to make a living for his family he chopped wood, which he piled along the railroad track (Little Miami, now the Pennsylvania R. R.) or hauled it to Columbus, five miles away. After a couple of years he managed to gather sufficient means to start farming for himself, so he rented a small farm on the north side of the National road, known as the Haridon farm, not far from a mile race track that was situated on the south side of the road, which afterward became a part of Camp Chase. Later on Mr. Fippin purchased a 50-acre farm not far from this with a few improvements on it and only a log hut, into which he moved with his family. Afterward he built a dwelling house and barn and other outbuildings.

A few of the old pioneers of those days were J. S. Cromwell, on the Fisher pike, near where North Hague avenue now crosses the pike; also Josiah Tom, not far from there. In order to reach those farms people took a road that then followed the south side of the river to a point near where the stone crushers now are, a mile or so north of the hospital grounds, then went west on the Fisher road.

Other pioneers of that time were William Clime, who lived farther south; also Henry Briggs, Russell Demorest, Thomas Deems, John Sperry and Adam Plank.

In 1861, the first year of the Civil war, the government confiscated a large tract of land that belonged to southern heirs, which lay south of the National road, clear through to the Sullivant road (now Sullivant avenue) and from west of what is now Hague avenue to where the West Side Lumber Co. is now located. (This land was turned back to the heirs after the war.)

At that time about a third of the land was in corn, which was nearly four inches high. By a process of rolling, dragging, etc., it was put in shape for a parade ground, and building were erected preparatory for a recruiting and training station for newly enlisted men going to war.

The amphitheater at the race track was converted into a hospital building and the place soon became a full-fledged army camp, which grew more and more as the war went on. Later on a high board fence was built around part of it and more buildings were erected, some of it becoming a prison for newly captured Confederate soldiers.

The present Camp Chase cemetery contains 2300 graves of prisoners who died in that prison.

A few conveyances carried people to and fro between the camp and Columbus. Also to the old Four-Mile House that stood opposite the camp entrance about where the corner of Broad street and Chase avenue now intersect.

Most of the soldiers going to Columbus and back walked the whole distance, excepting when they could catch a ride, and Mr. Fippin, in going along that road, nearly always had a load of them. They generally piled in whether they had permission or not and there was nothing else to do but let them ride.

The road at Sullivant hill (Glenwood park) was very rough and steep and at times all hands had to get out and help get the vehicle up the hill, or a detour was sometimes made by driving north at what is now called "Lovers' Lane," several hundred rods, go up the hill and then return past the old Sullivant homestead that stood north of the present main entrance to the hospital, back to the National road.

There were two farm houses on the present hospital grounds. One was the Sullivant homestead and the other the home of a son-in-law of William Sullivant, named Rodger.

Then there was an old log homestead that stood on that knoll of ground northeast of the present main gate entrance, not far from the edge of the hill. A placed call a "deer lick" was situated over on the south side of the road where Glenwood park and the tourist camp is now located. It is said that quite a number of deer and elk were kept there for a while.

Persons living in this locality and wanting to vote in those days had to drive to the old courthouse that then stood in what was known as the town of Franklinton, at the corner of what now is Broad and Sandusky streets, the present site of the Franklinton school.

There were a couple of dozen houses around this locality and a stranger going through alone was generally in luck if he got through without getting into some kind of a "mixup." A portion of that locality was nick-named "Sodom," and a small bunch of houses to the east, near the river, was termed "the bottoms," and we are told by some that it was called "Gomorrah."

It is said that at one time Mr. Fippin had gone upstairs in the old courthouse to cast his vote, and his son, John, waited in the wagon on the outside, when all at once a tremendous racket was heard inside. Then an old fellow, who was "tight"," came tumbling outside and into the street amidst a fusillade of bricks, stones, boards, etc.

About from 1861 to 1872 it is said land could be bought along the National road on the Hilltop and to the west of the town of Franklinton for from $40 to $80 an acre. From 1872 to 1885 the price of land began to raise. Land where Camp Chase had been, sold after the war for $85 an acre, so it is said, and was purchased by a settlement of Quakers from Jefferson county. The names of some of the purchaser being Messrs. Hague, Binns, Husy, McGrew and Gibson.

In 1870 a Quaker church was built at the intersection of the National and Wilson roads.

In 1885 James Fippin was offered 50 acres of land on the National and Wilson roads corner for $50 an acre, with no improvements, but finally bought farther north on the Wilson road at $60 an acre, with a double log house, a log barn and a spring.

Today the 50-acre farm on the National road is said to be worth several times as much as the other one.

We were told that the Charles Postle farm, one mile west of this tract, was sold not long ago for $400 an acre.

In closing we will state that Mr. James Fippin is still living, being, as we learn, the oldest continuous living resident in this locality. He is 91 years old and lives at the home of his daughter, Mrs. F. P. Sperry, 45 South Harris avenue and has never lived farther than five miles from the statehouse since 1858.

EMBROIDERY CLUB

A Philanthropic and Social Organization of Hilltop Ladies.

The Hilltop Embroidery club is a philanthropic as well as a social organization. From the time it was first organized (twelve years ago) up to the present time, the club's bank account has always been used for charity. Especially at Christmas time we strive to bring joy and happiness in a home where little children are, and if our finances are so we can, we continue to help a needy family throughout the year. Our biggest adventure along this line was about two years ago. We gave a lawn fete, which I am sure would not have been such a great success had not Mr. Westlake, of the Hilltop Record and Hoge Memorial church donated help in printing and use of the church grounds. There were several other donations, which along with the hard work of twelve members, enabled us to turn over to the Columbus Baby Camp over one hundred dollars. We are privileged to have twelve members, consisting of: President, Mrs. T. S. Fox; vice president, Mrs. L. M. Seiller; secretary, Mrs. P. G. Gantz; treasurer, Mrs. W. K. Merriman; regular members, Mrs. G. A. Payne, Mrs. G. W. Matson, Mrs. C. O. Irwin, Mrs. J. T. Evans, Mrs. C. J. Randall, Mrs. R. C. Millikin, Mrs. D. E. Wells, Mrs. E. E. Shaffer. Of these members Mrs. Fox, Mrs. Seiller, Mrs. Payne and Mrs. Shaffer are charter members.

Our social meetings are held every two weeks, when every member makes an extra effort to be present, either to work or rest, just as she desires, for it is easy to rest in every sense of the word where there is sisterly love and congenial feeling, which the members of the Hilltop Embroidery club have for each other.

DOES THE TRUTH PAY?

We have often asked ourselves this question, especially when applied to advertising. It is a debatable question that many have never really settled.

Stores have become large and successful, with continuous fictitious, circus advertising, and when you argue with one of these successful merchants, they claim the public wants to be humbugged, and they point to their successful institutions as a mark of evidence to back up their assertion.

Our advertising is truthful. Our merchandise is one quality only—the best that price will buy—reliable goods always. If bought especially for a sale we say so. If reduced from regular price we say so without exaggeration.

And we go further than that. If goods are not satisfactory to you for any reason we cheerfully make good to you—AT ONCE. Satisfaction guaranteed in each sale. This policy has taught the Hilltop people that you may read our advertising, and purchase our merchandise with confidence. The truth does pay.

BRIEF HISTORY OF W. BROAD SCHOOL

On Sept. 19, 1911, the new West Broad Street school, then the finest elementary building in the city was opened with an enrollment of 262 pupils, under the care of six teachers, with grades first through the sixth.

Later, the seventh and eighth grades were added, then removed when Highland Avenue school became a Junior High.

West Broad had grown to a school of 700 pupils when Burroughs was opened, and was then considerably relieved. It has now grown to 807, and an addition of six rooms is in process of building.

Until this is finished it is necessary to have all first grade and 2B pupils on half time.

The Kindergarten and the Individual school have been added to the original six grades.

Miss Harriet A. Judd, opened the school as its principal and still remains.

Of the original teachers, with the school on this opening date, only two remain, Miss Bessie Sperry, teacher of the 1B, and Miss Katherine Hutt, 6A teacher.

WESTWOOD LODGE No. 770 K. of P.

Several citizens of the Hilltop realizing the need of a Pythian lodge west of the river, and taking into consideration the growth of this section of the city, met at Mitchell's barber shop in the spring of 1916 and perfected a temporary organization, out of which has grown Westwood Lodge No. 770, K. of P. John W. Haunts, W. E. Dolby and T. C. Mitchell were named a committee on organization.

After a number of preliminary meetings were held, application was made to the grand lodge for a charter; this being granted, the lodge was instituted on July 6, 1916, by George L. A ROBIN IN THE CHOIR.

A robin—the English robin, it should be said, is a different bird from the American robin—has joined the choir of St. John's church at Glastonbury, England. People knew that he had built his nest somewhere in the roof of the church, but they were genuinely astonished when one evening as the violins began to play the opening bars of the Messiah the little bird started to sing. With only a few breaks for rest, says a writer in Country Life, he continued to sing beautifully during the whole of the 'two hours' performance.

That is the second grand sacred concert which he has honored with his presence and song, for recently he sang constantly through the Crucifixion and enjoyed helping. Beautiful as the string music is in those two oratorios, the finer and sweeter notes of the robin could be heard above it all and made it sound almost heavy and common by contrast.

HILLTONIA

HILLTONIA is now a neighborhood of several hundred home loving people, and 70 per cent of these folks from the North and East parts of Columbus. Many were so prejudiced against the Hilltop that they had to be shown the merits of this section, and today they are live-wire boosters for Hilltonia.

The original price of lots on Nashoba avenue north of Sullivant avenue, June, 1922, was $450.00 to $750.00, and within six months' time they were selling from $1000.00 up.

You now have the opportunity to purchase lots on Nashoba avenue in Hilltonia Annex, where an immediate building program is a guarantee of similar profits. The low prices that still prevail in Hilltonia Annex lots offers an opportunity to those who have the vision of a future growth here to make even greater profits.

WILSHIRE HEIGHTS

THE things that have taken place in Hilltonia and Hilltonia Annex will be duplicated in Wilshire Heights. A building program has already been started, with five homes under construction on Harris avenue, one square south of Sullivant. Sewers have been laid in the east section of Wilshire Heights, and as the entire subdivision is a part of the City of Columbus, other city improvements will follow soon. Wilshire Heights is only two blocks from the new John Burroughs School, and Parcel B of Wilshire Heights is directly across Sullivant avenue from the new city school site and the new city park.

Fully restricted.
On city car line.
No factories.
No railroad.
Prices not yet advanced.
All lots inside the city limits.
Free from noise and dirt.

Ten-minute car service. Seven minutes' drive to Broad and High streets. Close to schools and churches.

HILLTONIA HOMES

SIZE OF LOTS

All lots are 40 feet to 60 feet wide, giving ample room for side drives for autos, insuring plenty of light and air, no possibility of crowding. The majority of streets in Hilltonia are restricted to singles, and there are shade trees on every lot in this section.

In Wilshire Heights you may build singles, doubles and duplexes, with the exception of properly located business sites.

Larcomb and Sullivant Avs., October, 1922. Same Block Eighteen Months Later.

It is generally accepted that wherever improvements are going in and a building program is taking place, provided the location is right, there is certain to be an increase in land and home values. No other than members of the Caucasian race permitted to buy, rent or occupy prior to 1983.

Are you going to take advantage of increased values which are assured with activities now going on the Hilltonia section?

PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION

Its Aims and Purposes Toward the Parent, Teacher and Scholar.

The membership drive for the West Broad Street school Parent-Teacher association is now on!

The children of this school are doing this, also parents and friends of the children, who are interested in their welfare. You can help them win! The room that secures the most members will be given a beautiful pennant.

Miss Judd, the principal of the school, and her entire organization of teachers are now 100 per cent members. Of this the association can be justly proud.

Each teacher in her report to Miss Judd at the close of last year's school term, did not forget to tell her of the benefit she had derived in her school work from the co-operation of the P.-T. A.

The aims and purpose of the organization are given below:

To interest all men and women in the Health of the growing child and in his Education, mental and spiritual. It endeavors to awaken

Parents and Arouse teachers to the inalienable
Rights of all children to Equal chances for developing their Natural abilities and for the special Training adapted to their needs. It aims

To bring about, through united community effort, the Elevation of the Standards of home and school life and the Alleviation of all conditions anywhere unfair or detrimental to Children, so that these may become, not only healthy, but Happy, helpful citizens of the nation. It attempts to Educate parents regarding the schools and school system and to Reduce the waste due to failures and absences.

As members of this community, we should Surround all children with wise, loving care and Secure for them the best educational Opportunities; we should
Co-operate with each other and the school,
Inspired by this purpose and
Actuated by the desire for better trained
Teachers and trained parents,
In maintaining in this district a working Organization that is affiliated with the Ohio Branch of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations.

STRONG-THATCHER.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Mae Strong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling W. Albert, 90 North Warren avenue, to Mr. Willis V. SUNSET LITERARY CLUB.

The Sunset Literary club truly may be called a Hilltop club, for a woman at the time she joins the club must live on the Hilltop. As the hilltop is the extreme west end of the city, so from that the name is very appropriate. As we find the beautiful sunset colors in in the west, the club has adopted them for its colors.

The club was organized April 22, 1910, with seven members. There are still two charter members, Mrs. Charles W. Lents and Mrs. Lafayette Woodruff.

It now has a membership of 30 active, one accosiate and four honorary members.

The club has not only grown in the number of members, but also in its activities, becoming city federated in 1913, state federated in 1918 and national federated in 1924.

The object of the club is to stimulate good fellowship among its members, and the motto is: "Infinite Is the Help Woman Can Yield to Woman."

The club is and has always been interested in welfare work, having had speakers and donated money at times to the cause. It is also interested in any worthwhile enterprise on the Hilltop, especially the library, having donated $25 the first year and $50 the second year.

The programs are always interesting and very beneficial. They cover a wide field of subjects. Last year's program was given over to literature and industrial arts. This year's program has a library day on it.

The club meets the second and fourth Wednesday in the month from October to May, inclusive. The first meeting this year will be Oct. 8.

The officers for the year:: President, Mrs. F. P. Ireland; first vice president, Mrs. M. H. Prior; second vice president, Mrs. D. Elliott; recording secretary, Mrs. C. W. Michel; corresponding secretary, Mrs. O. V. Metzger, and treasurer, Mrs. T. R. Fletcher.

The other active members are: Mrs. H. C. Biddle, Mrs. Bruce Bidwell, Mrs. C. H. Campbell, Mrs. A. H. Dohn, Mrs. L. N. Earle, Mrs. D. W. Grove, Mrs. M. Grove, Mrs. C. W. Haldy, Mrs. E. B. Hooper, Mrs. Austin Hutt, Mrs. V. O. Jeffries, Miss Delia Jenny, Mrs. C. W. Lents, Mrs. W. H. Mann, Mrs. W. S. Murray, Mrs. M. W. Seiller, Mrs. J. R. Sheeders, Mrs. M. W. Simpson, Mrs. W. L. Stevenson, Mrs. E. Singley, Mrs. H. D. Strausbaugh, Mrs. C. V. Williams, Mrs. G. C. Woodin and Mrs. L. Woodruff.

The associate member is Mrs. C. A. Armbrust; and the honorary members are Mrs. J. Daugherty, Mrs. C. C. Hott, of Columbus; Mrs. D. J. Hanger of Vinton, Ohio, and Mrs. J. M. Ater of Canton.

Confidence

Is the fruit of knowledge, which always arises from concentration upon a given subject.

To do one thing and do it well always adds to the store of human knowledge and welfare.

THAT IS WHY

They take this opportunity to thank the residents of the Hilltop for their continued confidence and assure everyone that they will continue to so conduct their business as to merit at all times that confidence.

And while the personnel of the office needs no introduction to the Hilltop, we believe it well to mention them and their fitness for the business.

ALPHA CEMENT.

The uniformity of Alpha cement is safeguarded by systematic testing which begins with quarry borings. These tests by expert chemists are applied hourly at every Alpha plant. The Alphat policy is to make its chemists men of real authority. Their decisions as to quality are absolute. The result is that it is practically impossible for any cement that will not set properly to be shipped from an Alpha plant. Every bag is guaranteed—and stamped "guaranteed"—invariably to meet standard specifications. Test Alpha if you prefer, but you don't have to. Sold by the West Side Lumber Co.

THE CHURCH

Stands as a Beacon Light pointing all classes of people to the way of life. Have you ever stopped to consider the wonderful influence for good that the church has upon the life of a community?

Is the Church, as an institution, exerting as great an influence in the world today as it should, or is it being hindered because we are not doing what we should to help it?

Remember, the Church needs you and you need the church. Let us all find our place in the work of this greatest of all institutions that it may not be said of us that we did not fulfill our mission in life.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

TRUCK WRECKS BUILDING FRONT

In Attempting to Pass Between Street Car and Milk Wagon Truck Runs Into Building.

W. F. Smith, 505 Bolivar street, driver of a large truck for the Cleveland Trindad Co., attempted to pass between a West Broad street car and a Home Producers' Milk Co. delivery wagon at Broad street and Oakley avenue about 8 o'clock Tuesday morning with the result that after colliding with the car the truck smashed into the rear of the milk wagon, damaging it and its contents of bottles to the amount of $25, also injuring Arthur Fladt, the driver, then run over the curb and sidewalk and crashed into the United States Grocery store, breaking one of the plate glass windows, tearing away the door posts and door and did damage to the amount of about $300.

The horse hitched to the milk wagon started west on Broad street, scattering broken milk bottles as it went, and the driver, Mr. Fladt, after being struck, in his injured, bleeding condition, started after the horse, but fell to the sidewalk in front of the Cussins & Hartsough store. Witnesses of the accident carried him to Dr. Turner's office, and from there he was taken to Mt. Carmel hospital in a police ambulance.

The horse turned north on Park avenue, bumping the curb and spilling the balance of the bottles, and was stopped a short distance up the street.

Mr. Fladt, who was injured about the head and bruised on the leg, is reported to be improved. He lives at 300 Dakota avenue.

RECEPTION FOR REV. SEESHOLTZ

St. Paul's United Evangelical Congregation Holds Reception for Pastor.

St. Paul's United Evangelical congregation met on Tuesday evening to welcome their pastor, Rev. W. E. Seesholtz, who was returned to his charge by the Ohio conference for another year.

Between 90 and 100 were present. D. F. Baker was in charge of the program, and his remarks were well chosen and helpful. Congregational singing, special numbers by Julia and Freda Armstrong and Mrs. Flora and Laura Link, and a splendid solo by Master Paul Link, with a reading by Thelma Houdashelt provided enjoyment for all.

The pastor's remarks thrilled the audience with the thought of real spiritual life. All were glad to welcome the pastor back again.

A little surprise was in store for the pastor's family in the shape of a "pound donation," the packages being secretly transferred to the parsonage table.

Ice cream, cake and coffee were served.

Mrs. George F. Barber of 74 Highland avenue, has gone to Toledo, Ohio, to speak at the Inter-denominational Missionary rally of Protestant churches. She will return the last of the week.

F. L. Shoenberger of North Warren avenue gave a very interesting talk to the pupils of the 6B grade of West Broad Street school this week, on the subject, "Siberia." He made everything so plain and yet so interesting that the pupils felt they, too, had been to that strange land. He showed them how the Russian peasant works, eats, and celebrates his holidays. In one village, although the peasant could neither read nor write, yet they were musical and loved poetry. The class hopes he will come again some time and talk about Japan.

BETA LAMBDA WEINER ROAST

Glenwood M. E. Sunday School Class Entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Holder.

Tuesday evening of last week, Mrs. S. O. Holder was hostess to the Beta Lambda Sunday school class of Glenwood church, and at 7:30 the auto caravan drove out to the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Holder, one mile north of Dublin.

The host and hostess had their beautiful lawn illuminated with Japanese lanterns and gave the class a most cordial welcome. The ladies repaired to the house and had a very important meeting, while the men gathered around the big bon-fire and indulged in happy recollections of bygone days.

After the meeting the ladies repaired to the lawn and under the direction of the host and hostess and the entertainment committee, the men were lined up on one side and the ladies on the other, and the fun of the contests began. Ever since Adam and Eve had their first lawn party apples have figured in these contests and this was no exception, though of course this party also had a clothes pin contest, which was unknown to the fig leaf era. Peanuts also played quite a part of the fun. After all this violent exercise another novelty to Adam and Eve was enjoyed, this was a wiener roast, of buns, weiners, doughnuts and marshmallows, all being placed on tables near the bon-fire. On another table the coffee was served piping hot.

The men did their part well by getting sticks and roasting the wieners, and it was a real pleasure to serve them.

The entertainment committee, of which Mrs. Sheron was chairman, with Mrs. Walton, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Sweigert, Mrs. Randall, Mrs. Snyder, Mrs. Timms, Mrs. Megaw, Mrs. Spring, Mrs. Fargo, Mrs. Wilcox and the hostess, Mrs. Holder, did their work well.

The class wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. Holder for the hospitality and all wish them prosperity and happiness, and best of all the Holders extend a cordial welcome to make this meeting place an annual affair at their farm.

REV. G. F. BARBER ADDRESSES H. I. A.

"Safety" Talk Much Enjoyed My Members at Dinner on Tuesday Evening.

More than 50 men, members of the Hilltop Improvement association, met at a dinner served at 6:30 Tuesday evening at the club rooms and enjoyed a social time together and an address by Rev. George F. Barber, newly appointed pastor to Glenwood M. E. church.

Rev. Barber's subject was "Safety," being in line with the observance of "Safety Week," which was observed last week.

He stressed the point that an individual does not intend to do injury to anyone or anything, but does it by carelessness and unthoughtedly and especially emphasized that injuries should not be taken lightly and soon be forgotten, but that the individual thus injured often receives permanent injuries, suffering for years and often time for the balance of their lives.

These dinners are weekly affairs at which it is intended to have a speaker. The next dinner will be held Tuesday evening, Oct. 9, at 6:30.

Mrs. Clara Ditrick, Mgr. Subscription Hilltop 582-W

Last week was observed as "Safety Week." A big effort was put forth in several ways to propagate the habit and necessity of carefulness, both to drivers of automobiles and pedestrians. It is to be hoped that those efforts have not been in vain, and that not only will we have one week in the year set apart as "safety week," but we will make it 52 weeks each year.

But while there are various civic laws by which all are subject in regard to safety, isn't it, after all, mostly up to each individual and the moral low within himself?

An auto driver may be obeying every civil regulation and yet meet with a mishap that might have been avoided had he just been a little more careful. For instance, the write a few days ago was going south on a street car in Hague avenue. Three small girls were playing on the sidewalk near the curb, when, just as the car was passing, two of the girls suddenly and unthoughtedly jumped backward off the curb into the street directly in front of an automobile that was running alongside the street car in the same direction. We held our breath for fear of an accident, but luckily the driver had his machine under control and stopped within about four feet of the little girls, who scampered away. We felt like shaking hands and commending the driver for his carefulness.

Another recent incident: A little two-year-old baby girl, on seeing her grandmother across the street, before she could be stopped, started across the street to meet her grandparent, and nearly reached the middle of the street, when an auto approached from her left, but the carfeulness of the driver enabled him to stop about six feet from the child; but had she reached a point five feet farther she would have been in the path of another machone on her right, which was going so fast that he driver could not stop and would undoubtedly have hit the child. Everybody who saw the incident held their breath.

A certain Hilltop woman was driving east on Broad street when a boy suddenly darted out from behind another machine parked at the right curb and ran directly in front of her machine so quickly that she could not stop, without coming in contact with him, but as her machine was under control she was able to stop within a few feet, expecting to see the boy hurt, but as she was going slow, the boy was able a grab the bumper and when the car stopped jumped off and ran away, saying he was not hurt, but was badly scared.

Last Sunday we were riding on a Camp Chase car and noticed that the motorman, after passing each street crossing, "boosted" the car some, then shut off the controller until after passing the next street. We wondered why he did that so often, but had not gone more than half a dozen blocks when some careless auto driver popped right out of a side street so close in front of the street car that had the motorman not had his car under contral and suddenly applied the brakes, an accident would surely have occurred. Right there we though, "Mr. Motorman, you're doing a wise stunt by keeping that car under control."

So after all, isn't "safety" the one big thing to keep in mind? If driving a vehicle, safety not only for others but for self also. For pedestrians it is just as important, as not all of the automobile accidents are the fault of drivers, but carelessness of pedestrians as well. Little children cannot be depended upon to look out for themselves, so it is the duty of all to look out for them.

Let's have "safety week" all the time.

HEALTH HINTS.

By DR. O. E. McFADON

OVEREATING.

The right functioning of our body organs depends upon our nerve energy to date. Without this vitality, no organ functions properly. The digestion of food is a tax upon energy and we are supposed to generate more than we use up. But do we? That is up to the individual. If the quantity of food eaten be too great, or if it be not properly chosen, or improperly prepared and eaten, or improperly combined with other foods, there is sure to be an unnecessary drain upon nervous energy to take care of it, for it must be cared for. We can no more maintain our vitality if we constantly use more than we generate, than we can keep our credit at the bank if we draw out more than we deposit. And our dietetic errors, if habitual, will, sooner or later, use up our bank account of nerve energy.

We do not realize how much of overeating is caused by sugar. Starch is better without sugar but they are used freely together in cakes and cookery in general. The cream we use with our cereals interfers with the insalivation of it and, added to these two indiscretions is the fact that in a dish of cereal with cream and sugar, we have three concentrated foods combined. Surely no potatoes or meat should be added to that—especially by people who would reduce their flesh.

Would I eat cereal without cream and sugar? Yes, I would eat it slowly and as dry as possible, make sure that it is properly insalivated, and enjoy the grain flavor.

It surely requires won't power to cut down on the staples of a dinner and then again on the dessert, either of which is all a normal person should eat at one time. But we ate to fulness yesterday and imagined we recovered from it and do it again today and tomorrow. We rejoice in the ability to do so and even boast of it, not thinking of the gout, rheumatism, hardened arteries, liver and kidney diseases, apoplexy or other hell and early death that is sure to come. (The hell comes before, if not after.)

Overeaters and overweighters should read Blythe's "The Fun of Getting Thin" (50c, Forbes Bros., Chicago.) He reduced 60 pounds, but he worked at it.

There are thousands of so-called diseases that are simply efforts of nature to throw off harmful impurities that have been brought into the body. Boils and all skin eruptions are nothing but impurities being discharged through the skin.

Neuralgia, headaches, fevers, rheumatism, pneumonia, etc., are such manifestations in different parts of the body, and the pains experienced are nothing more than nature's outcry and protests against overtaxing the digestive organs.

Sedative medicines may be given to relieve pain and the doctor is often praised for it. But the real disease—if causes are to be looked after—lies in the perverted tastes, ignorance and weakened will of the patient. Read what Bernarr Macfadden—an enthusiast for athletics—says about overeating:

"Many victims of this vice will say, 'I never overeat. I hardly eat anything—I have no appetite—I merely eat enough to keep up my strength.' The eat-to-keep-up-my-strength-idiot never allows his stomach to prepare for food, never gives it sufficient rest that it may develop an appetite, and under these circumstances indulgence in the smallest possible quantity of food would be overeating."

The Gogetters.

(Published by request.)

Two business men on the Hilltop
Who claim to be good shot,
With two big guns went hunting
For some squirrels they have not got.

They left in the night in a little red car,
Away they went like a streak.
One a building contractor,
The other a barber shick

They were gone about thirty hours,
And their wive's heads were in a whirl,
When in walked the two great hunters
With some mellons and five little squirrel.

The builder, he said, it wasn't his day,
For her got only one.
But we got some nice sweet mellons
And had a lot of fun.

The barber got four and had nothing to say.
And with fingers still on the triggers
At last he spoke and it was no joke—
He was covered all over with chiggers.

keep the family Spirit — build your home now

WHEN you were little you had a home. Your mind harks back to it every now and then. The finest memories you have cluster around it. You have promised yourself that some day you would build a home, so that your family, too, would have something good to remember.

You have paid rent, owned a car—bought a lot of things. There is no difference between "buying" and "building," except that building is a permanent investment. There is no way of estimating how much a home is really worth to you and your family. Looking at it in a cold business way, it is always an asset.

Get the advice of your building material dealer. He will do his best to serve you in such a way that he will have your good favor afterward. He knows materials and costs; and his recommendations will be conscientious and fair.

WILL ASK FOR NEW TAX LEVY

Schools Will Request New Levy of Voters at the Election in November.

At the meeting of the building and finance committee of the public schools Monday it was indicated that the Board of Education would ask for an extra tax levy at the November election to take the place of the special three-mill levy which expires next year.

That it has been necessary to add $100,000 to the tuition budget was shown by the September pay roll, which was larger than estimated, according to officials. It has been necessary to provide additional teachers at schools where class enrollments were too large to be adequately cared for by the existing force.

OBITUARY.

Miss Grace Shrum, daughter of Lyle and Margaret Shrum, was born at Marble Cliff, Ohio, Nov. 13, 1877, and departed this life Sept. 24, 1924, aged 46 years, 10 months and 11 days.

She leaves to mour her departure an aged mother, Mrs. Margaret Shrum, two sisters, Miss Elva Shrum and Mrs. Thompson of Columbus; two brothers, Roy of Columbus and Oliver Shrum of Hilliards, Ohio.

Grace's life was given to Christ and the church in beautiful faith and devotion. Her happiest moments were those spent in the service of her Master.

There was that something about her which won all hearts. Those with whom she met not only knew her, but loved her. Her creed of life was love and service. She never missed the opportunity to do a deed of kindness, no matter how small it be, to those with whom she came in contact.

Though she had been in ill health for several years, she had that rich faith from above, which enabled her to spread joy and happiness wherever she went, in spite of her suffering.

We all must answer when our God decrees. Her call has come. Is it the end? 'Tis but the beginning. Though in grief we bow, we know her spirit lives. She is not dead.

Dear one, we will not say good-bye, but just good-night while those on the heavenly shore greet thee with good-morning.

Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me!
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea.

But such a tide as moving seems asleep,
Too full for sound and foam,
When that which drew from out the boundless deep
Turns again home.

Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark!
And may there be no sadness of farewell
When I embark.

For tho from out our bourne of Time and Place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have crossed the bar.
—Tennyson.

So after all, isn't "safety" the one thing to keep in mind? If driving a vehicle, safety not only for others but for self also. For pedestrians it is just as important, as not all of the automobile accidents are the fault of drivers, but carelessness of pedestrians as well. Little children cannot be depended upon to look out for themselves, so it is the duty of all to look out for them.

CONFIDENCE

How important is confidence? Without it our country could not continue. Business is founded on confidence. What is not? How important is the child's confidence in the parent? The first duty of a parent is to his child. The child has a right to be grounded in principles that will make his life happy and successful. The teaching of children in the way they should go requires knowledge, patience and sincerity, and, above all, an Example of right living on the part of the parent. Children are imitators and very often follow in the way of parents.

Parents! Stop, Think and Live

Do you as a parent set the example you should for your children? Do you treat them as inferior beings, or do you give them reason to have confidence in you? Do you want your child to pattern after you in church attendance? Are your children proud of you? Would you be glad to have them follow your example?

"You Go" or "Let's Go"

Do you take them to church with you, sit with them in church and in every other way try to teach them by practice to do the things you want to see them do? Do you answer fully and frankly the questions of life which they are entitled to know? This church will help you answer your child's questions, as well as any questions to which you would like to have the answer. This church wants to be the greatest possible service to the Hilltop.

Come and help us, and we will try to help you.

NEW LAUNDRY IS TO BE BUILT

Building Destroyed by Fire Last Friday Will Be Rebuilt at Once

Reconstruction of the laundry at the Columbus Hospital for Feeble-Minded, which was destroyed by fire last Friday morning was be started at once. This was made possible by a special session of the board of control Saturday, which authorized the transfer of funds made for other improvements at the institution.

The board declined to make an emergency appropriation for the rebuilding of the plant as there is a balance of only $78,000 in the emergency fund and it is estimated that it would require this amount or more to replace the plant.

The building destroyed had been in use only two months. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is thought to have been caused by spontaneous combustion.

While the building is in progress of reconstruction the laundry work for the institution is being done at the Orient branch, where a night shift has been employed to care for the extra work.

GLENWOOD BARACA CLASS ENTERTAINS

The men's class of Glenwood M. E. church had a most delightful time Monday evening in the social room of the church. Covers were laid for 150 or more. A chicken dinner was served by the ladies of the Home Missionary society. The splendid menu, together with the prompt and efficient serving, could not be surpassed, so they greatly bow to the ladies. The presence of the wives of the men added much to the pleasure of the occasion.

Ex-Mayor George Marshall was the speaker-guest of the evening. In his speech he declared that the usual method of business was unchristian and that the only remedy was first to observe the two great commandments—love God supremely and your neighbor as yourself. Incidentally he thought the constitution should be amended so the government could regulate the assessing of immense fortunes and see to it that the masses had better opportunities. The subject is a great one and worthy of much consideration and study.

Following the same line of thought the pastor, Dr. George F. Barber, made a few well chosen remarks and later pointed out the great opportunities for service that such a class of men had as was represented there.

Splendid vocal music was furnished by a male quartet lead by Frank Brown. Much credit is due C. H. Campbell, president of the class, and his committee in making the evening pleasant and helpful to all present.

The Personal Workers' Bible class of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church held their regular business and social meeting at the home of Mrs. Bruce Oyler, 159 North Ogden avenue, on Monday evening, Oct. 6. A large number was in attendance. After the business hour spent in discussing matters of interest to the class the committee in charge, Mrs. Metzger, Mrs. Wagner and Mrs. Winget, entertained with contests and served delicious refreshments. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. G. Davis, South Burgess avenue, on November 6.

The Way to Keep a Laundress

Is to Keep the "Universal" Electric Washer in Your Laundry

"No washing!" is the battle cry of the modern maid who is requested to scrub clothes on the washboard and parboil her hands in hot, sudsy water. The easier the washing, the easier to keep the laundress.

The "Universal" Washer calms the rebellious spirit of the temperamental laundress. She likes to work it just for the fun of it. She works the washer without working herself to excess. She rests while it washes, saves time while it wrings.

The "Universal" does the cleanest washing the quickest, safest way. It has every improvement that can be devised to give it enduring value. Let us prove its greater worth by its better work.

We'll place it in your home on trial. Call or phone.

VITAMINES.

When an astronomer finds a new star it doesn't mean that he has been wandering around aimlessly and stubbed his toe on one; but rather that he or his fellows have reasoned, that because of the movements of other known stars, together with their gravitation theories, another yet undiscovered star must be located, at, or near (within a few million miles of) a given location. Then they vie with ore another to find it, and their interest is like that of a boy hunting for his lost ball. They have visions of their posterity pointing with pride to their bust in the hall of fame. That, or some similar ambition is their hoped for reward.

Vitamines, that we hear so much about of late, are not insects that you or I might hope to discover by the naked eyes wandering around without the consent of their parents, nor are they visible by aid of the strongest microscope. But, like the astronomers, he scientists reason from what they know, and decide that vitamines must exist and they know about where they may locate them.

If two articles of food known to contain identically the same nutrients—protein, fats, carbonhydrates and minerals—produce different results, then there must be a cause for it and for that cause they hunt. They reason that the difference must be in the quality of the mineral element. Then if one such food produces more vitality than the other, they have reason for naming that mysterious something "vitality-amine," which, abbreviated, becomes "vitamin," and the credit goes to the food that furnishes the extra vitality. This is the vitality difference between butter and lard. Butter has vitamines and lard has not. So far, by extensive experimentation, the nutrition experts have agreed upon vitamines A, B and C, and they are sure there is a D, but its approximate whereabouts are all that can be announced up to date.

We are told of some things vitamines will do if we use them, but more especially are we warned of what will happen to us if we don't use them, so, we'll have to get along with this negative information till the scientists go deeper, and possibly do with this ethereal something that we can't see, as was done with the atom. Not long ago the atom was the smallest known unit, but it is now divided into billions of electrons and all we have to do is to "tune in" on New York to hear at first hand how the states are voting for McAdoo and Smith. We simply must believe in it, or be ridiculed, as was the old lady who, looking at a giraffe the first time, turned away and said, "Aw, there aint no sich animal." So, we'll enjoy the three vitamines for the present and hope that vitamine D shall be duly lassoed and brought into line, making a quartet. And why shouldn't we expect to hear such harmony as when the morning stars sang together?

The foods richest in vitamines are greens, whole grains, vegetables, fruits, beans, peas, nuts, egg yolk, milk, butter, cheese, oranges, lemons, grapefruit, cod liver oil, yeast, lean meats and fruit juices.

Anr if we don't eat many of these foods we may have anemia, neurastheni, rickets, scurvy, infantile paralysis, neuritis, asthma, tuberculosis, rheumatism. "The gobeluns 'll git you ef you don't wach out."

FIREMEN INJURED AT A. I. U. BUILDING

Hilltop Fireman Injured When Beam Falls While Fighting Blaze Sunday.

J. B. Logan of 107 South Ogden avenue and J. S. Emmons, 142 Sandusky street, were painfully injured Sunday when a beam fell with them at the A. I. U. building, Front and Broad streets, which is being razed.

The blaze was caused by workmen using an acetylene torch in the process of their work which caused a wooden beam to ignite.

Emmons was sitting on the beam directing a stream of water at the blaze where the beam joined the wall, and Logan was on a ladder leaning against the beam, assisting Emmons in holding the hose. The blaze weakened the beam until it fell, carrying Emmons to the floor of the building and knocking Logan from the ladder.

BOND ISSUES

Every voter wants to know the effect he will produce by supporting or opposing the bond issues and extra tax levie to be voted on this fall. Therefore the Record is printing this week a short catechism form informing the voters as to the results that may be expected if the bond issues either carry or are defeated.

Question—If I vote for the extra 8-10 of a mill levy submitted by the county, and it carries, what will the result be?

Answer—It will increase every taxpayer's tax 80 cents per $1000 for each of the five years the extra tax is to run.

Q.—If I vote against it and it loses, what will the effect be?

A—Present tax rate will not be increased. The county will not get this extra $400,000 a year, or a total of $3,000,000 in the five years, for proposed road improvements.

Q.—If I vote for the 2.4 mills the school board is asking to be given for five years, and it carries, what will be the effect?

A—It will not increase the tax rate, but will reduce the amount of revenue the city and county can get, at the same time giving the school board more revenue than it now has for next year, being the whole amount asked for.

Q.—Why will it reduce the revenue for city and county?

A.—Because the law fixes a maximum levy beyond which the tax rate cannot go. If the school board gets a still larger part of the next tax levy, then the balance is less for the city and county to divide.

Q.—If I vote against the school levy, and it is defeated, what effect will it have?

A—The tax rate in the city, and also in the school district will be reduced below the present rate. To illustrate: The Columbus tax rate would drop from $19.50 per $1000-rate to about $17.70 per $1000.

Q.—What effect would follow if I voted for the various bond issues that are now before the people for the November election, and they would carry?

A.—The issue of these bonds would not increase the tax rate for the next year. The extra expense the city will have to pay on the bonds and interest on the bonds, must, of course, be paid, but the taxpayer will pay no more dollars.

Q.—How can that be?

A.—The extra levy to pay the interest and principal of these new bonds must come within the maximum tax rate specified by law. This means that if the city now gets from taxes the amount of $10 per year, using $5 to pay off old debts and their interest, and the remaining $5 to city service of all kinds, then it will not have this $5 to pay for city service if the bonds are issued.

Suppose the new bonds require $3 extra tax to pay the interest of bonds and for maturing bonds each year. Under the law the city cannot raise more than the $10 referred to. Adding together the annual amount the city must pay on bonds and interest on bonds would be the $5 above mentioned plus the $3 just mentioned, or a total of $8. This would leave only $2 to pay for city service costing $5. The next step would naturally be, as has been made necessary in the past, to appeal to the state legislature to permit larger tax levies than are now possible. This would of course bring a largely increased tax rate to the taxpayers.

Q.—If I vote against these bond issues, and they are defeated, what will be the effect?

A.—The anticipated improvements for which they are to pay for will not be put through so rapidly. Instead of authorizing all of them in a lump, they will probably be put through singly, as conditions permit. The financing of the city and county service will not be interfered with, and appeal to the legislature for the right to levy higher tax rates will not become necessary.

Q.—Can the present tax rate on Columbus property be raised above the new rate of $19.50 per $1000?

A.—It cannot be raised at all under present laws, unless the voters authorize additional tax levies. Voters absolutely control all future tax rates under the present laws. On election day next month the voters can decrease or increase the rate of $19.50 as they may decide to do by their votes.

Q.—Now, Mr. Editor, how do you think I should vote on the extra tax lexies and new bond issues?

A.—The only vote I am going to influence is my own. I shall vote the way I conclude will be best. That is what you must also do, Mr. Voter.

HEALTH HINTS.

By Dr. O. E. McFaden.

FRIED FOODS.

We sometimes marvel at what the scientists are doing for us in discovery along nutrition lines. We read of their findings and talk intelligently about them, yet how few of them do we vitalize and really make a part of us by actual practice. We do not realize how our perverted tastes and the fashions have led us astray and how habit keeps us following the line of least resistance. Fried potatoes and other fried foods are set before us and we oblige the hostess and appease our appetites and gratify our tastes by eating them. It is no conscious sacrifice for our nerves of taste are satisfied and that settles it. Nature's record of the insidious results is not consulted.

The fried food fashion has fastened itself upon the American people and so lured our tastes that co-operation with the cook has become ingrained. Yes, it is a national fashion just as moldy cheese with skippers is in England; seaweeds and candied grasshoppers in Japan; fried rhinoceros hide in Africa; and rats and mice, cats and dogs in China.

Have some chop suey by the way, and no matter what it may contain in nutriment you can depend upon enough condiments in it to appeal to your taste that you'll come again and sooner or later will recommend it to your friends as "a most delectable dish that as the Alpha and Omega of a well balanced diet."

All this will happen to you if it tastes good and you give it a half a chance to win your confidence and cultivate your taste to thinking well of it. That's the point. It is your taste that thinks—your scientific, logical and most profound taste.

That's the business of a chef—to so juggle the condiments that your taste will be convinced. After which you follow your nose wherever the proper flavor leads it and difficult digestions becomes a secondary consideration.

But, you say, why not eat fried foods?

First, because of difficult digestion. The intense heat and long cooking necessarily fries into the vegetables the non-containing vitamines of the lard. It is much better to parboil your vegetables; then, if you must add the fat, finish the cooking quickly by heating in vitamine-contained butter and you still have vitamines of your parboiled vegetables, which should not be sacrificed—and much heat is disastrous to vitamines.

RESOLUTIONS UPON THE DEATH OF ELDER FRANK P. SPERRY.

Inasmuch as it has pleased Almighty God to call home from our Church Universal, Frank P. Sperry, elder in Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church, therefore be it resolved:

That our church has lost one of her most valued and faithful ruling elders;

That our fellowship has been most harmonious and helpful and that his presence will be greatly missed;

That our heartfelt sympathy goes out to the wife, the daughters and sons in their loss and that we express thus our most active sympathy to them upon this occasion;

That Elder Sperry was a constant attendant at divine worship and as such was a thoughtful and interested listener to God's truth;

That we commend the family to his good example in all things, especially in his faithfulness to his beloved home, his church and Christ and to the work of God's Kinghom throughout the world;

That these resolutions be expressed in writing, one copy to be spread on our Session Record, one copy to be handed the family and one copy be placed in the community paper, The Hilltop Record.

Done this eighth day of October in the year of our Lord one thousand, nine hundred and twenty-four as Columbus, Ohio.

Women Voters Listen!

Women Voters are numerically equal to Men Voters!

Women Voters help to elect Men Candidates for public office.

Every Woman believes that, of EIGHT executive County Officials to be elected this year, ONE should be a woman.

Every Man Voter who believes in woman's ability to give good service, agrees that in fairness she is ENTITLED to at least ONE out of eight public offices.

This year is the right time to prove women's interest and strength in government.

It means women's influence will be so emphatically established that it will beneficially affect all future political campaigns.

It is the most wonderful opportunity women ever had to demonstrate ability to act as a UNIT and to prove the value of their votes!

While Democrats, Republicans and Independents are dividing their forces, let us unite on our ONE WOMAN CANDIDATE for an Executive County Office! She has no woman competitor. There need be no division of Women's Votes.

As Women, we will help put SEVEN men in to fill SEVEN County Offices; but as women, we want the ONE office of COUNTY RECORDER!

MRS. BERTHA M. DILL is Candidate for County Recorder.

Look for her name on the ballot and put your cross in front of her name.

She has that education, temperament, personality and character which commends her to become Franklin County's first tangible evidence of women's voting power and the first recognition in this county of women's right to hold COUNTY office.

WOMEN—Go to the polls and vote for Mrs. Dill for COUNTY RECORDER, then, vote for SEVEN MEN to fill the other seven County Offices.

MEN—Go to the polls and vote for SEVEN MEN to fill as many County Offices—but be your usual generous and gallant selves by giving us Mrs. Bertha M. Dill for County Recorder!

Announcement

HEED & HOLTON have acquired the beautiful wooded fifty-acre tract, extending from the South line of Broadview to Sullivant avenue. Under the direction of William Pitkin, Jr., the noted landscape architect, the tract has been subdivided into about two hundred and eighty home sites; many of them fronting on winding drives and wooded parks.

Reasonable restrictions will insure the future, and every city improvement will be provided. In short it will be a continuation of Broadview with Heed & Holton's well known policy of quick improvements, good homes and profits for everybody.

To early buyers we offer a choice of many forty-foot lots at $800.00 each and the easy terms will be a surprise.

We invite you to drive through the new tract which will be named Broadview Extension.

DISCUSSION OF BOND ISSUES

Director Duffy Addresses Hilltop Improvement Association Tuesday Evening.

The semi-monthly meeting of the Hilltop Improvement association held at the rooms of the association Tuesday evening marked the end of the membership contest between the teams captained by Jack Shank and Fred Suisberger and was the best meeting of the year. Ninety-six sat down at the banquet which was of the best and enjoyed by everyone.

Rev. George W. Barber of Glenwood M. E. church returned thanks.

After the dinner the meeting was opened by remarks from Dr. L. B. Turner, president of the association, who introduced Col. Duffey, director of public service, who gave an interesting illustrated talk on the bond issues to be voted at the coming election. There is no question about which the public have had so little definite detailed information, up to this time, and which is more important for the average man in Columbus, than this series of bond issues. Anyone who hears Col. Duffy's talk certainly has food for thought on this question before he casts his vote in November. For the first time in the history of the city a regular budget of improvement expenditure has been decided upon.

H. A. Miller, former sporting editor of the Columbus Dispatch, called attention to an important item, which was, that next year the city retires $1,900,000 in bonds. He also called attention to the increased valuations to be placed on the tax duplicate by the erection of the Neil house, A. T. U. building, Columbian Building and Loan building and all the other new structures going up in the heart of the city.

Wyatt L. Millikin reported the result of Heed & Holton's conference with postal authorities, in which R. F. D. deliveries would be made to the scattered houses in the new additions west of Hague avenue.

Resolutions to be presented to the safety director asking that the Hilltop be given adequate police protection were submitted by C. B. Cranston and unanimously adopted and referred to the public service committee for action and presentation to the director of public safety.

Resolutions urging that the city purchase, by condemnation proceedings, if necessary, all the land directly west of the new park in Westgate addition to the Durr road, and south to Sullivant avenue, making the new park extend its present limits both south to Sullivant avenue in the Westgate addition and west along present lines and Sullivant avenue to Durr road, were also introduced and passed. Copies of the resolutions were directed to be sent to the mayor, city council, director of public service and city engineer. This is one of the biggest things yet suggested for the Hilltop and is the outcome of the first fall meeting of the association when Director Raymond of the public recreation department, was brought out by Mr. Cranston to present this subject to the association.

The returns of the membership contest were made known and it was found that Jack Shank and his team had brought in 47 new members, while Fred Suisberger and his team had reported 35 new members.

The new members were then advised that they were guests of the association at the feed and the old members told that they were entitled to the privilege and pleasure of paying the bill, which all present did.

The membership of the association is now well over the 200 mark and the spirit of the contest, in accordance with the suggestion of G. W. McKendry, will be carried right on. The new members will now divide themselves into teams and engage in a coutest of their own and the prize for the winning team will be decided upon later. One thousand members is the goal of the association, for it will take that number to put over the big things the association has ahead for the good of the entire Hilltop.

Dr. Turner then reported the negotiations parties in the Prospect addition had started to have Eureka avenue improved, and the elimination of the grade crossing over the Big Four and Pennsylvania tracks would be accomplished automatically when this is done. The association went on record as favoring this improvement.

The theater party to be given by the association at the Rivoli on Tuesday evening, Oct. 28, was then announced and members were advised they could get tickets for themselves or to sell from E. W. Dolby.

The last question before the meeting was the gas situation, and council was again commended for their stand on the question.

C. B. Cranston then announced that relief could be obtained by anyone who had been refused service by the gas company, and it was then suggested that any person having any difficulty getting gas call and see him.

The meeting was a rousing one from start to finish, and the prediction that new life had hit the association last July was proven by this gathering more than any previous one.

What every member should do now is to see that the new members have an even better contest than the old ones did.

ODD FELLOWS' HOMECOMING

Hilltop Lodge No. 662, I. O. O. F., will hold their homecoming Wednesday evening, Oct. 29, at their hall, corner Oakley avenue and West Broad street. A good program has been arranged. There will be plenty of orchestra music, good singing and splendid speaking.

All Odd Fellows, their families and friends, are invited to attend. This means not only the members of Hilltop lodge, but all Odd Fellows and friends.

ENTERTAINMENT MARKED SUCCESS

A full house saw the home-talent entertainment given in John Burroughs school auditorium Tuesday night by the Ladies' Aid of Burgess Avenue U. B. church. The one-act comedies, "Aunt Susan Jones," and "The Rummage Sale," were well presented, held the interest and attention of the audience throughout and received generous applause.

In addition to the plays, Mrs. Ero Cartright and Miss Helen Hays gave excellent readings, while the vocal solo of Mr. Will Hamilton and the violin solo of Mr. Cecil Dixon were much appreciated. The Columbia Heights band made a big hit in its concerts before and after the entertainment and while the scenes were being shifted.

CHILD CONSERVATION LEAGUE.

The Hilltop Circle of the Child Conservation league will hold its next meeting at the home of Mrs. Brown, 64 North Powell avenue, Monday afternoon, Oct. 27, at 2 o'clock. The program will be in the hands of Mrs. Hoelle, Mrs. Hunt and Mrs. Hohenstein. An experienced kindergarten teacher will have charge of the children. The president of the circle, Mrs. Bradfute, together with two other members, Mrs. Warner and Mrs. Rucker, are attending the Ohio State Federation meeting which is being held in Cleveland this week. They expect to bring back many helpful thoughts for the advancement of the organization

PARKING LIMITS RECOMMENDED

At a special meeting Monday afternoon Safety Director McCune recommended to council safety committee that the two-hour parking limit be extended to include all streets and alleys between Front and Fifth streets from Main street to Chestnut street.

The recommendation also includes Front street in the limited parking, but that Fifth street be not included. All cross streets and alleys, however would come within the limit to Fifth street.

At present there are only two down town north and south streets, High and Third streets, which have two hour parking limits. This throws the all-day parkers into Fourth and Third streets and into the alleys, McCune said.

REV. RIEBEL TO LECTURE.

Rev. Wallin Riebel, pastor of Burgess Avenue U. B. church, will give his lecture on "Africa and the Africans As I Saw Them," at Avondale U. B. church Sunday night as the special feature of the Woman's Day program. He was a missionary in Africa and will show his large and interesting collection of curios while dressed in the garb of an African chief.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Clifford (Helen Dunlap) 918 Cleveland avenue, announce the birth of a son, Wednesday, Oct. 22, at Mt. Carmel hospital.

The fire department was called to 255 South Harris avenue Wednesday forenoon where a gas stove setting near the wall had caused the lath in the wall to become ignited. Small damage was done.

The Junior Endeavor society of Burgess Avenue U. B. church received a banner for the second largest percentage of attendance of members at the county Junior Endeavor convention held at Northminster Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon. They had 44 out of 47 members present.

A card party and bake sale under the auspices of Democratic women will be given at the Elks' club, Oct. 24. All friends are welcome. Tickets may be secured through Mrs. W. L. Millikin, 85 south Warren avenue.

LIBRARY NOTES

Exceptional interest is being shown by the children in the Hilltop library supplementary list of the public schools. These books have been selected with care by educators to be used for book reports. We are glad to place them within reach of our own Hilltop young people. Three new books have been added to the former collection.

Seaman—Jacqueline of the Carrier Pigeons.

French—The Lance of Kanana.

Grenfell—Adrift on an Icepan.

The last of the three is a thrilling account of Dr. Grenfell of a trip in Northern Newfoundland. This devoted Christian doctor, who went from England, spent his life helping the people of the far Northland, was on his way to a hospital to operate on a young man for some serious trouble. The unexpected rain and thaw made the way impassable. He and the faithful dogs climbed on an icepan, where they kept afloat all day and night. His struggles were almost past human endurance. By unique methods he fought off death from freezing. His love for the dogs is pathetic and the affection of the people among whom he labors is proof of the work he accomplishes among them. It is a book worth while.

The following books have also been recently placed at your disposal:

Parker—Donovan Pasha.

Bollome—Helen of Troy.

Johnston—The Veneerings.

Johnston—Patricia Brent, Spinster.

London—Smoke Bellew.

Oppenheim—A Prince of Sinners.

Packard—The Adventures of Jimmie Dale.

Packard—Further Adventures of Jimmie Dale.

Swinnerton—Young Felix.

Bennett—Riceyman Steps.

Buck—The Disturbing Charm.

Brown—The Boy Grew Older.

Adams—The Secret of Bogey House.

Stackpoole—The Garden of God.

Knittel—Aaron West.

Conrad—The Rover.

Mackaid—Summertime.

Wynne—Warning!

Smith—Beyond the Sunset.

MacGrath—The Green Stone.

Locke—The Glory of Clementina.

Foster—Humdrum House.

Robinson—The Man From Smiling Pass.

Watson—Gordon of the Lost Lagoon.

Packard—The Locked Box.

Le Queux—The Crystal Claw.

Bindloss—Carson of Red River.

OBITUARY

REV. G. R. ROBBINS.

Rev. G. R. Robbins, D. D., formerly pastor for 26 years of Lincoln Park Baptist church of Cincinnati and later of Columbus, passed away suddenly of agina pectoris, at his residence, 67 Midland avenue.

He was born in New Jersey, where at the age of 12 years, he with two other boys united with the old Hamilton Square Baptist church. All three of these lads became Baptist preachers.

He was graduated from Colgate academy, Madison university (now Colgate) and Hamilton Theological seminary, from which he received his degree of D. D. later in life.

June 27, after graduation, he married Florence Mix of Binghamton, N. Y., and became pastor of the Baptist church of Hoosick Falls, N. Y., and during a pastorate of 12 years, through his wise guidance, the work of this church went ahead with great strides. A parsonage was built, an organ installed, and then in 1884 the present edifice was built. The high-water mark was reached under his pastorate. It was an opportune time for a strong young man, consecrated and zealous, and he filled the place and over 400 were added. He left a lasting impression on church and community. A Catholic citizen of that place said to his son last week: "Your father had the 'realest religion' of any preacher I ever knew."

In his long pastorate of 26 years at Lincoln Park Institutional Baptist church in Cincinnati he led in building a great structure, both temporal and spiritual. The people had a mind to work and sacrifice. He received into that church about 3000 believers, and was instrumental in organizing five churches, one the First Roumanian Church of America. A severe illness necessitated his resignation. Coming to Columbus he held a short pastorate and then resigned to enter upon the work of pastor-evangelist.

Funeral services were held at his home Oct. 9 largely attended and were conducted by Dr. Thomas Hopkins, pastor of the Tenth Avenue Baptist church, assisted by Rev Awater of Cincinnati, Rev. Rittenhouse, Rev. Bilicisen and Rev. McFarland of Columbus. Church services were held in Hoosick Falls, N. Y., conducted by Rev. A. M. Prentice, a valued friend, and burial was beside the eldest son in that cemetery.

John T. Thomas, aged 70 years, who made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Elmer Simmons, 1963 Floral avenue, died Tuesday morning. He had been a sufferer from stomach trouble for some time. Mr. Thomas was a retired farmer and had lived in Columbus for eight years. Surviving him, in addition to the daughter with whom he lived, is another daughter, Mrs. E. E. Osborn of 55 North Terrace street, and a son, Vernon Thomas of Groveport. The body was taken to Pomeroy Thursday morning for burial.

SUGGESTED OUTLET TO THE NORTH SIDE

This is just visionary, but we believe it is worth thinking about, so we're going to mention it.

How many times each day is there occasion for people to go from the Hilltop to Upper Arlington or Grandview, or up the river road to the region of the storage dam?

In order to do so one must either go east in a round about way or go west on Hague avenue, then north several miles before reaching a thoroughfare leading to those places.

Why not a more direct route? North Eureka avenue ends in the Prospect addition just after crossing the Big Four and Pennsylvania railroad tracks. We have sometimes wondered why this street could not be extended to the northeast until it intersected with the river road on the west bank of the Scioto, then at a convenient point a bridge across the river could be built connecting with an accessible thoroughfare leading to the above places.

In these days of modern road building it would not seem a very big undertaking and we believe the increased valuation of land in the territory between the present terminus of Eureka avenue and the river would profit by the extension.

Of course the building of a bridge across the river would cost considerable, but with the rapid growth of the two sections on both sides of the Scioto river it is not likely to be many years until a bridge connecting them will be an absolute necessity.

Then, also, anyone going from the Hilltop to the north part of the city must either go the round about way through Grandview or through the congested district of the city, which of course is a slow process, especially to go up High street. Now if there was a suitable thoroughfare across the river by way of Arlington or Grandview it would be the means of cutting the time and distance between the Hilltop and the north section of the city by at least one-third.

The Hilltop is rapidly being extended westward, also southwest, so why not on the north also?

If there is anyone having any ideas along this line, we would be glad to have them express their ideas, and invite them to use the columns of the Record.

Sebring's machine was parked on West Broad street at Oakley avenue when the accident occurred.

THE DISAGREEABLE TASK.

Do you ever try to get out of doing disagreeable tasks? If you do, does it ever cross your mind that you are leaving these tasks for someone else to do, who perhaps dislikes them as much as you do? You slip out of doing the dishes, but someone must wash them; you do not go on an errand to the store, but someone must go. Did you ever think how selfish you are, when you leave the disagreeable tasks for someone else? The next time that you are tempted to act in this way, think of the person who will have to do the task if you slip out of it. Don't shirk.—Ex.

Two men who had been chums in their younger days had become separated in the course of their respective dishes, but someone must wash each other for a number of years. One day they chanced to meet on the street and in the course of their remarks, recalling old times, the following conversation ensued:

"Do you remember?" asked the first man, "I acted as best man as your wedding."

"That's so, isn't it," replied the second, "Do you remember what a fright I got that night?"

"Yes. Have you still got her?"

HEALTH HINTS.

By Dr. O. E. McFadon.

IS HEALTH "CATCHING?"

There is no satisfaction that can come from intemperance or excesses of any kind that can compensate for lost health. Moreover, health, in itself, is a source of more real enjoyment to one who has it and appreciates it, than can be found in the bewildering mazes of modern society. Every move of a healthy, honest, self-respecting, self-controlled, moral man or woman may be a pleasure, if he be co-operative and not self-centered.

The best life—for ones self and for others—is a proper balance of vocation and avocation; of temperance and moderation in all things; of consideration and justice for self and others and of harmony with God.

The man or woman whose life program embodies these principles will not need supervision to get the most out of life. Health will be as contagious and "catching" with him as disease is to the rank and file, most of whom are intolerably careless and prodigal.

Nature would give us health by forcing upon us, without cost: air, water and sunshine, and, with no cost but co-operation: food, clothing, shelter and exercise.

Our great-grandfathers, almost without doors or doctors, "caught" health at every breath, and so much of it that diseases, even colds, were rare. A similar heritage is ours, in unlimited pure air to breath, but it is a peculiar anomaly that the more protection we have in the way of shelter and clothing, the more diseases and doctors. We have advanced (?) so far in our boasted civilization that we are constantly looking for some elixir or other to "take," that will make health for us, when we might easily see that the world is full of health, going to waste. We not only ignore it but we pollute it. Man adds attractive poisons to our pure water and pays dearly to get it back. The miller buys our grain for a dollar a bushel, mills away the healthy mineral and other parts and we get back what is left, in cartons, paying ten times as much. Their beautiful white flour, so highly prized because of its whiteness, has lost the health elements enjoyed by the animals and our forefathers, but the highly colored, misleading ads make us easy marks. Then we have neuritis, or colitis, and the children have infantile paralysis or their teeth don't develop and we call it "God's will."

Are the wild animals ever sick? No. If they were would they take medicine or even food? No. Their instincts have not been perverted; they know better. Would they take oxygen that so free and abundant in the air? Yes, and nothing else, thank you, except rest.

God, in His providence, is as kind to man as to the animals, and it is not only man's privilege to appropriate nature's provisions, but, because of our intelligence it becomes a duty. But how few humans feel this responsibility. Health is provided by nature and is ours for the taking, but we choose disease instead and go out of our way to get it. We live in foul air, banquet at midnight and overwork our digestion with a diet too strong for laborers, then wonder why providence sends us Bright's disease, rheumatism, gout, liver, stomach and bowel troubles, the burdens of which are all shared by the faithful heart, which must always work all the time. Can the reader see any reasonable cause here for heart failure?

Verily, health is "catching." But we should "expose" ourselves to it by accepting pure air, water, sunshine, exercise and temperance and not run after disease.

Dr. O. E. McFadon, Osteopath, 106 W. 10th Ave. North 7904-W.

"To what do you attribute your longevity?" asked the reporter of the town's oldest citizen.

"My what?" asked the oldest inhabitant.

"Your longevity," repeated the reporter.

"As far as I can remember, I ain't never had such a complaint," replied the old gentleman placidly.—Tit-Bits.

RECIPES

APPLE MUFFINS.

1 Tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon lard, 1 tablespoon sugar, pinch of salt, 1 cup sweet milk, 3 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder.

Have apples chopped fine. Put 1 spoonful of dough in well greased muffin pans, one spoonful chopped apple, then 1 spoonful of dough. Bake in a moderate oven. Serve with sugar and cream.

CREAM LOAF CAKE.

Cream ½ cup shortening well with 1 cup sugar; add 2 egg yolks; add 1 teaspoon lemon extract; add, a little at a time ½ cup rich milk or thin cream. Add 1 cup flour sifted with ½ cup of cornstarch and 3 teaspoons baking powder. Fold in 2 beaten egg whites and bake in greased loaf pan in moderate oven about 45 minutes. Make frosting as follows: Put in 1 unbeaten egg white into shallow dish; add gradually 1½ cups confectioner's sugar beating with wire whip until of right consistency to spread; add 1 teaspoon vanilla and spread on top and sides of cake.

ORANGE CREAM LAYER CAKE.

Cream 1-3 cup shortening; add 1 cup sugar slowly, beating well; add 1 beaten egg. Sift together 1¾ cups flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, and 4 teaspoons baking powder and add alternately with 1 cup milk, a little at a time. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and bake in 2 greased layer cake tins in moderate oven 15 to 20 minutes. Spread 1 cup sweetened flavored whipped cream thickly between layers. Cover top with orange frosting made with 1 cup confectioner's sugar added slowly to 1 tablespoon cream. Add pulp and grated rind of 1 orange, ½ teaspoon orange extract and 1 tablespoon melted butter.

THREE-EGG ANGEL CAKE.

Mix well and sift together four times 1 cup sugar; 1 1-3 cups flour, ½ teaspoon cream of tartar, 3 teaspoons baking powder, and 1-3 teaspoon salt. Add 2-3 cup scalded milk very slowly, while still warm, beating continually; add 1 teaspoon almond or vanilla extract; mix well and fold in 3 egg whites which have been beaten until light. Turn into ungreased angel cake tin and bake in slow oven about 45 minutes. Remove from oven; invert pan and allow to stand until cold. For icing add ½ teaspoon butter to 2 tablespoons hot milk and gradually add 1½ cups confectioner's sugar; add ½ teaspoon vanilla and spread.

Many of these aged patients are mentally and physically incapacitated and under the present plan will be housed by themselves. ## OBITUARY.

MRS. MAMIE S. MULLEN.

Mrs. Mamie S. Mullen, aged 49, wife of Christopher C. Mullin, 370 South Oakley avenue, died Saturday at her home. Death was due to pneumonia. Funeral was held at 1:30 Tuesday in the Oakley Avenue Baptist church. Burial was made in Green Lawn cemetery. She leaves her husband, one daughter, Miss Anna Thomas; a son, Beverly S. Thomas; one grandchild, two sisters and one brother.

CECIL SMITH.

Funeral services for Cecil Smith, 23, who died Friday in Chicago, of heart trouble, was held Sunday at the Plain City M. E. church. Mr. Smith was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Smith, 259 Ogden avenue. Burial was made in Forest Green cemetery.

EMBROIDERY.

Do you ever embroider? Not the kind of embroidery that you do with a needle! Oh, no, I mean the embroidery that you do with your tongue! When you are telling your friends about something that has happened to you, do you add a touch here, and a touch there, so that the real truth is hardly to be recognized. You do not tell an actual falsehood, but you "embroider" the truth.

You have been visiting at the seashore; when you tell about it, you make your surroundings seem much grander, than they really were. You saw an accident, and in your account of it, it seems much more serious than it really was. It is said that few people are able to see and to report an event exactly as it happened. So it is wise for us all to try to tell the truth as closely as possible, because, even when we try, we are apt to report events wrongly. Be careful not to add the little "trimmings" which make a story interesting, but which give a false impression.—Ex.

The Woman's Home Missionary society of Glenwood church will hold a bake sale Saturday, Oct. 25, at Seiller's and Cussins & Hartsough.

Charm Beauty Shop, 78 South Richardson avenue. Hilltop 444-M.

"Mr. Jones, did your garden win first place?"

"Indirectly, yes. My neighbor's chickens won first place in the poultry contest."—Boys' Life.

SCHOOL OBSERVES EDUCATION WEEK

Special Visiting Days Observed with Speakers for Each Occasion.

"American Education Week" has been celebrated with much interest at the Highland Avenue school. Notices were sent out the week before to all parents and friends, extending a special invitation to visit the schools this week and thus get into closer co-operation with the school and the things that are being attempted in the education of our boys and girls. Special visiting days were observed, Tuesday being elementary day; Wednesday, seventh grade day; Thursday, eighth grade day, and Friday to be ninth grade day.

On the particular day members of that group acted as hosts and a keen contest was developed between the classes to have the most visitors on their day. Boy Scout ushers conducted the visitors to the class rooms and other members of the class had charge of the registration.

At the end of each day a half-hour meeting was held when special features of entertainment were given and a discussion of matters of interest to parents engaged in.

C. J. Randall, a member of the school board, was the speaker for Tuesday, Mrs. R. L. Heid, president of the P.-T. A., spoke Wednesday, and Rev. R. E. Shields spoke Thursday.

Celebrate 90th Birthday

Oh, fair are youth and strength; but fairer still
The fact of age when sculptored by a soul
Where love of God and man have held control.

On Oct. 22 the immediate relatives of Mrs. Pauline Whitehead of 121 Clarendon avenue, gathered at her home to celebrate the anniversary of her ninetieth birthday. Many messages of love and congratulations were received from friends, both near and far; also many beautiful flowers.

A bounteous dinner was served and among other good things on the table were two fine cakes, one the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Green. Ninety candles are a great many to put on one cake. This difficulty was overcome by placing the candles to form the Roman characters XC. The other cake, made by Mrs. H. P. Whitehead of Chittenden avenue, was done in pink and white with the word "Mother" written across the top.

Mrs. Whitehead, who has always led an active life, bears well her 90 years. A loyal woman, she has been a true home maker, one, "who looketh well to the ways of her household." Her many friends could tell of her kindly hospitality, her helpful ministries to others and her interest in all good things. Always a lover of flowers, she has great reverence for the good and beautiful.

As the fine October day was drawing to a close the guests departed with many good wishes and an appreciation of her who lives in the ripeness of her years.

LIBRARY NOTES

Nothing can supply the place of books. They are cheering or soothing companions in solitude, illness, affliction. The wealth of both continents would not compensate for the good they impart.—Channing.

Everybody for books. Books for every walk of life. Home, school, office, church or club. Something to suit each one. Novels for lovers of adventure and romance. Bedtime and other stories for children. Books of travel and of biography and history. Good books are life teachers. ## TAX LEVY FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Board of Education Asks for 2.4 Mill Levy to Replace That Expiring Next Year.

The board of education is asking the citizens of Columbus to indorse its request for a 2.4 mill levy in the coming election. The 3-mill levy granted by the electors for a period of five years expires next year. The proposed 2.4-mill levy is a renewal of the 3-mill tax.

In 1902, according to school enumeration, there were 34,587 boys and girls of school age in Columbus. Of this number, 19,604, or 56.6 per cent, were enrolled in the public schools. In 1911 the enumeration showed a school population of 41,308, with an enrollment of 25,514, or 61.8 per cent. In 1923 the enumeration reached 48,889; at the same time, the school enrollment registered a total of 40,063, or 81.9 per cent. In 1902, 56.6 per cent of our boys and girls were in the public schools and in 1923 approximately 82 per cent of our entire school population were actually in school. The remaining 18 per cent is practically all accounted for by those enrolled in the parochial schools and by those legally out of school under employment.

Increased numbers have increased school costs. There has been an expansion in the school population, also an expansion in the school program to supply the needs of a rapidly growing city consisting of courses beginning with the kindergarten and running through the elementary, junior high, senior high and normal school; also a trades school, an open air school, an opportunity school, a school for crippled children, individual schools for special problem cases, part-time schools and evening schools. The board is asking for the proposed levy in order that this present program might be continued.

The data on the enrollment of the Columbus school system shows a rapidly increasing enrollment and an expanding program. Since 1910 the number of persons reached by the activities of the schools has grown from 25,000 to 44,000, an increase of over 18,000, or more than 71 per cent. The greater part of this increase has been in the regular school classes, but the expanding program is indicated by the fact that there are now enrolled in various special classes and schools 5230 persons as compared with 320 in 1910. The greater number of this 5000 were not reached at all by the schools 10 years ago.

For years our school building program did not keep pace with our increasing enrollment.

The schools cost last year $4,200,000. This is a little more than $100 for each child enrolled in the day classes. This means $2.50 per week for each child or 50 cents a day.

The 2.4 mills now asked is not an addition to the present tax rate. It replaces a three-mill levy which the schools now enjoy and which expires next year. The new levy will go into effect at that time and will not operate to increase the tax rate.

Voting for the school levy will not increase the tax rate, neither will it affect the amount which the other taxing subdivisions can get, because this school levy is outside all limitations.

Buy your fall coat or dress at Sellers. You'll save money.

Your best asset— is a HOME

YOU have in mind owning a home some day. Own it now. Do not wait any longer. You have worked two or three years—maybe more—to build. Figure it up. Are you ahead a penny? Not a bit of it.

Have you ever looked at statistics when wondering, "Can I afford to own my own home?" Figures gathered over a long period of years show this: You can afford to own a home and let which costs twice as much as your income for one year. This is based on a plan of paying for it off within ten or fifteen years.

Talk it over with your dealer. He is a practical one in building problems. His interest conditions right here; you will deal with his organization personally. He wants to give you the kind of service which will make a business friend of you. He will show you how to build economically and at the same time satisfactorily.

HAROLD L. (LEFTY) — KIME

Friends of Harold Kime, former O. S. U. athlete and known as "Lefty" Kime, feel that he stands an excellent chance of election as representative for Franklin county in the legislature. He, of course, has the good will and support of a large body of Ohio State men here, and he has been given the indorsement of the federation of labor and the railroad men's association.

Mr. Kime was born on a farm in Medina county, near Lodi, and finished a course in the high school of that village with the highest standing in the class, in 1916. He graduated from the arts college of Ohio State university with the degree of A. B. in 1920, and two years later graduated from the law school of the university with the degree of LLB.

While in the university, he was the winner of the Western Conference medal in 1920, and was a member of the Sphinx honorary senior society, took his varsity "O" in baseball, and was a member of the Toastmasters' club, his class debating team, and was football manager in 1920. In 1922-3 he was connected with the law firm of Johnson, Sharp, Schooler & Davis, and then for a half a year in the state securities division. He is now in the practice of law under the firm name of Fogle & Kime, at 16 East Broad street. He did not receive help for his higher education from home, earning in various ways every penny that the long courses at Ohio State required. He is a World war veteran and a member of the newly organized Varsity "O" Alumni club. He is a candidate for the legislature on the Democratic ticket.—From The Columbus Dispatch, Sunday, Oct. 19, 1924.

I have personally known Mrs. Romans for years and can testify to her upright, beautiful life, as wife, mother, teacher and welfare worker and know her to be capable and trustworthy. So whether you are a Republican, Democrate, Prohibitionist—no matter, give Mrs. Romans your support and you will not regret it. M. M. Marshall.

MERCATOR CLUBS ATTEND SERVICES

Eighty Members Hear Rev. R. E. Shields Discuss "An Abundant Life."

Members of Mercator clubs from Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, Cleveland and Detroit honored Rev. R. E. Shields Sunday morning by attending services at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church, of which Rev. Shields is pastor.

The visitors came Friday to call on Rev. Shields, national treasurer of Mercator clubs, and included Oscar T. Taylor of Pittsburgh, international president of the organization, and C. Verne Shoup, also of Pittsburgh, international secretary.

"Fellowship, service and enlightenment are the three big ideals of the Mercator club and other luncheon clubs," Rev. Shields said, and in discussing "An Abundant Life" pointed out that "too many men today are acting as if religion was outworn. They indicate that the sermon on the mount was beautiful, but impractiable; that the church is all right, but not indispensable, but we, in Mercator clubs, believe the opposite.

"We believe that out of Jesus' life was born three big ideals, for which Mercators ought always stand. These are fellowship, service and enlightenment.

"Fellowship is the reason for existence for so many luncheon clubs and especially Mercator. Jesus showed this by holding fellowship with men of every kind.

"Service is not a word shrdl cmfw y

"Service is wrought out of Jesus' own life. 'I am among you as he serveth.' was the first gleam of establishing for men service instead of selfishness.

"We are woefully ignorant of each other's business. Our motto, 'Better business through closer fellowship' will mean we humbly open our minds to learn."

Officers of the church conducted the visitors on a tour of the new building which was recently dedicated.

Women Voters Listen!

Mrs. Bertha M. Dill

Women Voters are numerically equal to Men Voters!

Women Voters help to elect Men Candidates for public office.

Every Woman believes that, of EIGHT executive County Officials to be elected this year, ONE should be a woman.

Every Man Voter who believes in woman's ability to give good service, agrees that in fairness she is ENTITLED to at least ONE out of eight public offices.

This year is the right time to prove women's interest and strength in government.

It means women's influence will be so emphatically established that it will beneficially affect all future political campaigns.

It is the most wonderful opportunity woman ever had to demonstrate ability to act as a UNIT and to prove the value of their votes!

While Democrats, Republicans and Independents are dividing their forces, let us unite on our ONE WOMAN CANDIDATE for an Executive County Office! She has no woman competitor. There need be no division of Women's Votes.

As Women, we will help put SEVEN men in to fill SEVEN County Offices, but as women, we want the ONE office of COUNTY RECORDER!

MRS. BERTHA M. DILL is Candidate for County Recorder.

Look for her name on the ballot and put your cross in front of her name.

She has that education, temperament, personality and character which commends her to become Franklin County's first tangible evidence of women's voting power and the first recognition in this county of women's right to hold COUNTY office.

WOMEN—Go to the polls and vote for Mrs. Dill for COUNTY RECORDER, then, vote for SEVEN MEN to fill the other seven County Offices.

MEN—Go to the polls and vote for SEVEN MEN to fill as many County Offices—but be your usual generous and gallant selves by giving us Mrs. Bertha M. Dill for County Recorder!

WILL REGULATE FILLING STATIONS

None to Be Erected Within 500 Feet of Schools, Churches or Hospitals.

City Council Monday night passed an ordinance prohibiting the erection of a filling station within 500 feet of the grounds of a school, church, hospital or similar institution. The ordinance is not retroactive and cannot be used against the filling station being erected at Sullivant and Richardson avenues, next to John Burroughs [illegible].

Residents of this section appeared before council last week and asked that the erection of this filling station be prohibited.

Council also requested City Health Officer Beer to appear before that body next Monday night and make a report on the prevalence of smallpox in Columbus and steps being taken to prevent its spread. The request follows charges of laxity by Columbus Anti-compulsory Vaccination society.

SUSTAIN GAS RATE BY HUGE MAJORITY

People Vote for 40-cent Gas Ordinance Passed By Council.

The voters of Columbus Tuesday sustained council's 40 cent gas rate ordinance by a good majority.

The voters in effect cast their verdict for a finish fight with the gas companies through the courts, the public utilities commission or any other channel that may elected.

It is said that the first move of the gas companies would be a suit in the United States district court, branding the ordinance rate as confiscatory and asking the court to grant an injunction preventing it from becoming effective. The action will ask that a temporary rate be fixed until the differences between the city and the gas company can be adjudicated, it was said.

The gas companies, it was further stated, are expecting to continue the circulation of the referendum petition, started some time ago.

The present rate of 45-30-25 cents will give way to the 40-cent rate on Nov. 10, when a temporary agreement on the present rate will expire.

"Miracle Money" the story of a medical missionary's life in China, in the three-reel motion picture to be shown Sunday night at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church when the ladies of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary society have charge of the services. Mrs. Benton will sing. The society's study book is "China."

J. W. Hanawalt, Hilltop postmaster, who has been confined to his home on South Oakley avenue for the past three months on account of illness, is able to be about again.

FIRE DAMAGES WOODED TRACT

A 25-acre tract of woods west of South Harris avenue and about half a mile south of Sullivant avenue, owned by the Barnett Realty Co., was swept by fire Monday night while the firemen were powerless to stop the flames on account of the lack of water.

The fire is believed to have started from a bonfire built by a small boy.

Little damage was done, except the burning of a lot of underbrush.

Fire totally destroyed a double garage in the rear of Broad street and Warren avenue, Wednesday afternoon. The garage was unoccupied when the fire occurred.

Carl Birle, 20 South Ogden avenue, attended a halloween party and visited relatives in Chillicothe last week.

A great many people are lamenting the defeat of the sewer bond issue, thinking it will forestall work on the Hilltop sewer improvement, but such is not the case. The Hilltop sewer improvement has already been authorized by council and bonds in the amount of $263,000 were sold Oct. 15 to finance this project. The bonds were purchased by Pendigrast and Co. of New York and Robinston & Co. of Toledo.

We are sorry to see the bond issue for the elimination of the grade crossing at the Big Four railroad tracks and West Broad street go down to defeat. But, maybe, we'll try it again.

What has become of the effort of a few months ago to have the street car company run their cars to the Big Four crossing on West Broad street?

Our friend, "Bill" Link, was on the Hilltop streets Wednesday, having come in town from his "camp" on Big Darby. Bill says fishing is "punk," whether on account of the dryness of the season or not, but it's no good.

Now that the election is over, let's turn toward Thanksgiving, which comes three weeks from today.

REDS ENTERTAIN BLUE DIVISION

The "red" division of the Young Married People's Bible class of Hoge Memorial church entertained the "blues" at a masquerade party last Thursday evening in the basement of the church-house.

The "reds" were losers in a membership contest conducted some time ago and the affair was given to pay the debt.

The hosts and hostesses were all masked as ghosts, while their guests appeared in varied masquerade costumes.

Various contests had been arranged for their enjoyment, chief among which was an airplane ride with the "old man himself," to which each "blue" was treated.

A "light" lunch of cider, weiners and pumpkin pie was served.

Near Accident.

One sometimes hears it said that when a woman is driving an automobile and gets into a tight place, she "loses her head." A disproval of this statement occurred Sunday morning. A small boy, going home from Sunday school, started to cross Sullivant avenue, right in front of an approaching machine, and the woman driver being too close to stop, like a flash turned her machine toward the sidewalk and ran across it to a fence before she could stop. She missed the boy who had already fallen down on the street.

Monday night of this week a small fire at the home of Milton Reed, 328 North Ogden avenue, called the department. Loss about $75.

HEALTH HINTS.

By DR. O. T. McFADON

ADDICTS

The addicts most prominent in our minds are drug addicts. They deserve our sympathy, for, in many cases, their craving is far beyond their control, and the kindest thing we can do to them is to place theme where the favorite drug will be beyond their reach.

There are thousands of unknown cases, who secretly indulge in sedatives and opiates, but who are nevertheless addicts, insofar as their appetites have been perverted from the natural.

Then we have the alcoholics—the liquor addicts—and the same arguments apply with equal force to them as to the unfortunate drug addicts. The man who must have his drink and imagines it is necessary, might with equal reason start his fire with dynamite, but the uplift from that sort of explosion would not be so pleasant. The moderate drinker is an addict, to the extent of his craving, for craving is unnatural.

And there are food addicts. A healthy man often has a natural hunger, but no craving. One who craves a special food, or any food, if his dinner must be an hour later, is not entirely healthy, and the extent of his suffering—his craving—is a fair index of his addiction. His appetite and taste have become perverted by wrong habits of eating. His food may not have been well chosen or adapted to him; it may may have been improperly cooked; he may not eat properly or at the right time; or, he may habitually eat too much. One or more of these faults, continued even for a short period, would pervert him somewhat, and all of them, followed carelessly, would not only upset his natural appetite and genuine enjoyment of good food, but would shorten his life.

The resulting diseases, whatever their names, would be really nothing more nor less than faulty alimentation, if causes are to be considered.

The sad part of this is, that there are so many food addicts who are oblivious to the fact that they are really below normal. It has a much greater significance than the mere discomfort of the craving for food. That is only one of nature's warnings, and the difference between that sensation and natural hunger is a matter to be learned.

Variations from the normal—perversions—are so common as to be the rule rather than the exception, and it is easy for us to drift along, feeling that we are "pretty well, thank you," and allow ourselves to sink deeper and deeper into the quick-sand of custom and perverted appetites—to follow the line of least resistance, and—to state it in a few words—get out of order, and what then?

You call the doctor and he gives you "something to take." He knows very well—or ought to—the history of your case, but simply patches you up—stimulates you—so you can make another run. Yes, that's all you expect of him. That's what you pay him for and you think him a good doctor if he doesn't give you a long lecture and cut down your feed.

I am saying "you," and sometimes I say "we." Am I guilty? Yes. What did I do? I went back and commenced over.

Miss Ruth Thatcher announces the opening of her studio at 124 Highland avenue, for instruction in piano music. Although without sight, Miss Thatcher is a graduate of the normal department of the Morey School of Music and is an excellent player. She has devised a system of teaching which completely eliminates all disadvantages produced by her handicap, and this, combined with her keen sense of hearing, her sensitive touch and her remarkable memory, enables her to teach successfully. ## NEXT NUMBER ON LYCEUM COURSE

At Glenwood Church Will Present W. Rawei, a Native Polynesian.

All who enjoy reading and hearing of the South Sea Islands—and who does not?—will have an opportunity to get vrst-hand information on this subject in the next number of the Glenwood Lyceum course, Tuesday evening, Nov. 18, at Glenwood church.

At this time Wherahiko Rawei, a native Polynesian, will appear and entertain with a story of his life and customs of the people of the South Sea Islands.

Rawei is a man truly conspicuous in the entertainment world. He is a product of modern culture as contrasted with the primitive savagery of his native South Sea home. This entertainment is not a travelog, but on the contrary is a living picture of Polynesian life, in the person of one who has lived it and knows it all by experience through and through. Rawei sets before you the arts, craftsmanship, customs, beliefs and musical talents of the native Polynesians, from the ranks of whom he sprang under Christian culture to his present position.

He will appear in native costumes, which are marvels of beauty, and throughout his recital creates the very atmosphere of the South Seas, and reproduces the music and spiritual melodies of the paradise of the Pacific, which makes his program most delightful.

WHAT'S A GRANDFATHER WITHOUT A WOODEN LEG?

What should a man do to be a perfect grandfather? That's a hard question of course, and it seems to grow harder the more we think of grandchildren and of their tastes. Should we be willing for example, to meet the requirements of Johnny as set forth in the following amusing story?

Johnny's grandfather from the far west was visiting the boy's home. Worn from the journey, he retired early the night of his arrival. Johnny slipped up to his mather's side and whispered, "May I see Grandpa go to bed?"

"Why do you want to see him go to bed, dearies?" his mother replied.

"I want to see him take off his wooden leg."

The mother was astonished. "But this grandfather has no wooden leg; it is your other grandfather."

"Then this one is not my real grandpa, or he would have a wooden leg," protested the small boy.

No amount of persuasion could convince him that a grandfather could be real without at least one artificial member. If this old man from the west were a real grandpa, then why didn't he have a wooden leg? Johnny had no use for him.

The next day when the discarded grandfather was all alone with his young grandson, he removed his upper teeth, which were false.

Johnny gave a cry of astonishment and admiration. "How do you do it?" he demanded and pulled upon his own teeth.

Grandfather smiled and then, wonder of wonders, removed the lower row also.

Johnny's admiration now knew no bounds; he jumped and clapped his hands in glee. "You are my real grandfather, aren't you, grandpa? If your leg can't come off, all your teeth can come out, can't they?"

From that moment grandfather's embarrassment began; for Johnny insisted that all the other members of the family be convinced of grandfather's genuineness.—Youth's Companion.

SWEEPING CHANGE IN TRAFFICE CODE

Includes All Streets and Alleys and Front and Fifth Between Naghten and Main

Sweeping changes in the city traffic code will be made by an ordinance passed by city council Monday night and which was signed by Mayor Thomas Tuesday. The ordinance will become effective in 30 days.

The two-hour parking limit which exists in the business district was extended to include all streets and alleys from Naghten street to Main street, between Front and Fifth streets.

Parking in High street is limited to one hour from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. in the territory between Naghten and Main streets.

Parking was prohibited on the north side of Oak street, between Fourth street and Grant avenue. This is due to the narrowness of the street.

Parking in East Broad street between Fifth street and Grant avenue was limited to two hours, between the hours of 6 a. m. and 6 p. m.

Wall street and Pearl street were made one-way streets, southbound bound and northbound respectively, between Naghten and Main streets.

Head-in parking was abolished in all streets with the exception of East Broad street, High to Fourth street and West Broad, Front street to the river.

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK, NOV. 9 TO 18

Holmes Library Well Equipped with Books for Children—List of New Books.

The week of Nov. 9 to 18 has been designated as Children's Book Week. Children's Book Week was originated in 1919 by the American Booksellers' association, the American Library association, the Boy Scouts of America and the Associated Publishers. It has become in five years a national annual campaign which thousands of communities use to stimulate interest in boys' and girls' books. Its influence is felt in selecting books which children love and need. Each year over 1,000,000 children come to the reading age. What books shall we buy for our children? This question we are glad to help parents solve in preparation for the Christmas buying. It is possible to get the books they should read and not the books they should not read. The windows of the down-town bookstores are full this week of beautiful books honoring Children's Week.

In our library are book lists and catalogues of choice books. These may guide parents in selecting books for the holiday season.

This week the children are asked to vote on the book they like best which they have read from the library. A box will be found in the library for the votes.

Below is a partial list of the good juvenile books which the children are reading: Arabian Nights, Heidi, Hans Brinker, Adventures of Pinnochio, Peter and Wendy, Alice in Wonderland, Doctor Doolittle, Treasure Island, Robinson Crusoe, Last of the Mohicans, Water Babies, Greek Heroes, Wonder Book, Man Without a Country, Roosevelt's Letters to His Children, Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm, Tom Sawyer, Penrod, Master Skylark, Master Simon's Garden, Little Women, Wild Animals I Have Known, Legends of King Arthur and His Court, Lambs' Tales from Shakespeare, The King of the Golden River, At the Back of the North Wind.

The following new books have been added to the adult fiction:

McCutchen—East of the Setting Sun.
Parker—Three Knots.
Tarkington—Monsieur Beaucaire.
Isham—Black Friday.
O'Brien—Trodden Gold.
Parrish—The Red Mist.
Oppenheim—The Devil's Paw.
Rohmer—Brood of the Witch Queen.
Canfield—Rough Hewn.
Richmond—Red of the Redfields.
Wilson—Professor How Could You?
Barbour—The Fighting Scrub.
Barclay—The Rosary.
Chipperfield—Unseen Hands.
Mansfield—Jim Davis.
Seaman—The Edge of the Raven Pool.
Richmond—Round the Corner in Gay Street.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET

The program directed by Mr. Bruce Oyler, president of the Men's class, will consist of scripture readings, songs, male quartet, boy's solos and an address by Professor Leonard of Central High school and Crestview Presbyterian church. This is one of several hundred Father and Son banquets being held all over Columbus and the United States in entering nationally into the Father and Son movement.

The following pupils of the Robbins-Greiser School of Music will be presented in a recital Thursday evening (tonight) at the school, 67 Midland avenue: Paul Warner, Carl Edward Boos, Marie Kent, Helen Moorman, Paul Zellers, Charles Johnston, Inez Beesher, June Eleanor Simmons, Rudolph Schmidt, Kenneth Bishop, Robert Dye, Emma J. Nelson, Mabel Adair, Ruth Walpole, Ralph Hill, Betty Lou Earle and Mildred Morris. They will be assisted by Miss Blanche Collins, vocalist, pupil of Mrs. Samuel Richard Gaines.

The Women's Democratic club of the Eleventh ward will hold their regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Charles Barrell, 83 North Burgess avenue, Monday evening, Nov. 17, at 7:30.

Rev. Richard E. Shields, pastor of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church, will preach at First Presbyterian church, Westerville, Sunday morning in the general exchange of Presbyterian pulpits in Columbus and vicinity. Rev. Frank Stephens of Bremen comes to Hoge Memorial.

PRESENT PINS AT HIGHLAND

Members of Excelsior Society Received Honors Wednesday Morning.

At a general assembly held in Highland Junior High school Wednesday morning the annual presentation of the Excelsior society pins was made. Opening remarks were made by Assistant Principal E. N. Littleton.

He spoke of the value and worth of this honor conferred on pupils, it being a recognition not only of high scholarship during the three years, but also of admirable qualities of character. Members of the Excelsior society, who are annually selected early in the 9-A year, represent pupils who have made the required 67 points in grades throughout the seventh, eighth and ninth grades and have also received high grading by their teachers in character and personality. These additional 16 points are based on the following: School spirit and loyalty, courtesy, participation in outside activities and general deportment, including punctuality.

After these remarks the names of the present Excelsior pupils were read and the pins presented. Pupils receiving the pins this year are as follows: William Huffman, Ray Elsey, Herbert Booth, Dorothy Hammerstein, Margaret Varos, Geraldine Ginsberg and Dorothy DeBow.

After these pupils had received their pins a further list of names was read of pupils who have received all E's and G's so far this year in school work, with at least half of E's. These names represent the honor roll, for the first six weeks of the present year. They are as follows:

WILL REQUEST MORE FACILITIES

For Scientific Treatment of Delinquent Defective Boys in Ohio.

Dr. E. J. Emerich, head of the bureau of juvenile research, will ask the next general assembly to provide institutional facilities for scientific treatment of the deliquent defective boy, from whose ranks is being recruited an ever increasing number of criminals, it was announced the fore part of this week.

The problem of the delinquent defective girl has been met by the provision of facilities for caring for 500 of the type at the State Institution for Feeble-Minded, located in this city. The problem created by the boy with the same defects has never been approached.

Dr. Emerick will ask either for a separate institution or for a department to be created in connection with one of the two projected institutions for feeble-minded to be erected, one in the northeastern, the other in the southwestern section of the state. Developed to its maximum, this plant would have a capacity for caring for 1500 boys.

The head of the juvenile research bureau hopes by this method to break the circle of "reform school-Mansfield-penitentiary," followed by hundreds of Ohio youths, who, he claims, are not normal, and consequently not subjects for attempts to reform through the medium of detention for a stipulated period of time.

"Many of these boys are not feebleminded; they are precocious, often, but they have mental twists which cannot be made to respond to ordinary correctional methods. They go to Lancaster, come out, land in Mansfield when they are too old for the boys' school and then, ultimately finish their career of crime in the penitentiary. There is only one proper method to handle them. Put them into an institution where they may be scientifically treated. Those who cannot be cured should be segregated permanently."

Boys of that type, Dr. Emerick holds, constitute a very real menace to the reform of normal boys in such institutions as Lancaster and Mansfield. Their influence is bad and tends to break down any constructive results that might otherwise be obtained in these institutions.

The atmosphere at Delaware, he says, has been improved wonderfully since the practice of weeding out the deliquent defective was established and he is convinced that similar results can be obtained in the treatment of boys.

The plan, if put into execution through favorable legislative action, would give Ohio leadership in this field of crime prevention.

HEALTH HINTS.

By DR. O. E. McFADON

SPECIAL MEALS.

The term "balanced ration" is much misunderstood. It is well enough to balance up daily—as a bank would do—but a bank would not balance every hour, nor would it be best to take a balance of protein starch and fats at every meal, for that would bring incompatible elements together, encourage overeating and result in disease.

The best way to balance is to have one protein meal, then a starch meal, and a third meal of fruits and perhaps of non-starchy vegetables.

No food is wholly protein, but some foods, strong in protein (as milk, cheese, etc.) carry starch and fat. Likewise some foods strong in starch (as all bread and cereals) carry protein and some fat. A food, strong in protein should lead in the "protein meal"; and a starch food should be prominent in a "starch meal," and each may be supplemented by lighter foods.

After eating one "starch meal," one might well say, "Get thee behind me starch," for the balance of that day; then look with equal disfavor upon protein food after a protein meal, supplementing, always, with fruits and vegetables.

Occasionally, a meat meal may be eaten, but not on the same day as a protein and starch meals. That would be too much of the staple foods for people not doing hard manual labor.

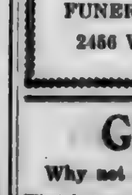
Strangely enough, the foods after which these special meals are named, are to be eaten sparingly—no second helpings—but of the lighter foods—fruits and garden vegetables—we may eat freely, without injury, if not already loaded up with bread, meat, eggs, potatoes, etc.

The starchy foods are: All the grains and flours, with bread, cakes, crackers, etc. Irish and sweet potatoes, rice, tapioca, Hubbard squash and bananas.

Protein foods are: Lean meat, eggs, milk, cheese and all nuts. When sweet corn, peas and beans have passed their "greenness" they become protein foods.

The fats are: Butter, cream, lard, fat meat, nuts and olive oil. Acid fruits go well with fats. Nuts may take the place of meat, but should not be eaten in addition to any meal.

The above list is a very dangerous list. The easiest thing for the reader to do is to look it over and congratulate himself that he lives largely on those foods. But I say to you that it is a list of foods that is, primarily, the cause of two-thirds of all the stomach, liver and bowel troubles, rheumatism, gout, hardened arteries, high blood pressure, apoplexy and heart failure.



The foods, in themselves, are innocent enough, and harmless enough if kept in abeyance, but that thing we or very few of us, do. The correct dosage would be about one part of these staple foods to four parts of fruits and vegetables. Think it over. Try it and these special meals for a week. After a day you will probably say: "I'd starve to death that way," but after a week of it your new habit would be formed, natural hunger would take the place of your craving and you would be more angelic and do better work.

There's no place like HOME

WHEN your children hear some one sing "Home, Sweet Home," what will their memories picture to them? A flat, or a boarding house—or a nice, comfortable house, with a stretch of lawn and some trees and flowers, and mother and you!

This is the home-building year. Here is what Herbert Hoover says, in a survey of the home-owning situation: "A family that owns its home takes a pride in it, maintains it better, gets more pleasure out of it and has a more wholesome, healthful and happy atmosphere in which to bring up children. . . . An increasing number of business groups have publicly acknowledged their responsibility and interest in it. They realize that unnecessary barriers that may encompass a man determined to own his home are hindrances to good community spirit and to good business."

HILLTOP RESIDENT KILLED IN TOLEDO

Accident in Railroad Yards Proves Fatal to Carl M. Groninger.

Carl M. Groninger, aged 48 years, a well known resident of the Hilltop for a number of years, was killed in a railroad accident in the Toledo railroad yards Wednesday evening, Nov. 5.

Mr. Groninger was a railroad engineer for the Toledo & Ohio Central Railroad Co. and had been in the employ of that company for 21 years. Early in the evening his engine broke down just outside the Toledo railroad yards and while awaiting help from the roundhouse he sat down on the footstep of another engine on an adjoining track. This engine was struck by some shifted cars which caused Mr. Groninger to be thrown off and rolled for some distance between the footboard and the rails and he was internally injured. He died in an ambulance en route to a Toledo hospital.

Mr. Groninger is survived by his wife, Mrs. Martha Groninger; a stepdaughter, Monabelle Barbee; two sisters and a brother. He was a member of York Lodge of Masons, Loraine Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, Franklin Lodge, Knights of Pythia and of the Locomotive Engineers and Firemen. He also was a member of Glenwood M. E. church.

Funeral services were held Saturday from the residence, 95 South Richardson avenue. Burial was made in Green Lawn cemetery.

NEXT NUMBER ON LYCEUM COURSE

At Glenwood Church Will Present W. Rawel, a Native Polynesian.

All who enjoy reading and hearing of the South Sea Islands—and who does not?—will have an opportunity to get vrst-hand information on this subject in the next number of the Glenwood Lyceum course, Tuesday evening, Nov. 18, at Glenwood church.

At this time Wherahiko Rawel, a native Polynesian, will appear and entertain with a story of his life and customs of the people of the South Sea Islands.

Rawel is a man truly conspicuous in the entertainment world. He is a product of modern culture as contrasted with the primitive savagery of his native South Sea home. This entertainment is not a travelog, but on the contrary is a living picture of Polynesian life, in the person of one who has lived it and knows it all by experience through and through. Rawel sets before you the arts, craftsmanship, customs, beliefs and musical talents of the native Polynesians, from the ranks of whom he sprang under Christian culture to his present position.

He will appear in native costumes, which are marvels of beauty, and throughout his recital creates the very atmosphere of the South Seas, and reproduces the music and spiritual melodies of the paradise of the Pacific, which makes his program most delightful.

Thornton W. Burgess is the favorite author at the library, according to the vote taken last week by the children. The Tom Swift books rank second. Then comes Augusta Huiell Seaman's mystery stories for girls and the Twin Books by Perkins, with an equal number of votes. Following are the Pollyanna books, the Bunny Brown series, Hans Brinker and the Out Door Girls. The rest of the votes were scattered, a good many books having one vote.

The following books were placed on on the shelves of the library last week:

Mason—The House of the Arrow.
Burroughs—The Chessmen of Mars.
Aldrich—The Story of a Bad Boy.
Sabatini—The Sea Hawk.
Dix—Merrylips.
Curwood—The Wolf Hunters.
De Knoop—Pauline.

ADOPT BY-LAWS AND CHARTER

The Hilltop Civic association met in regular session in the United Brethren church, corner Burgess and Sullivant avenue, Tuesday evening, and adopted the charter and by-laws governing the association.

Regularly monthly meetings will be held at the U. B. church on the second Tuesday of each month at 8 o'clock p. m. until further notice is given. All persons living in the section generally known as the Hilltop are invited to become members of this body. The association is still open for charter members.

Choir Singers Notice.

All singers of all the church choirs of the Hilltop are requested to meet for rehearsal at the Hillcrest Baptist church next Sunday afternoon at 2:30. The one big number will be "All Hail Immanuel." Bring copies with you if you have a book which contains this selection. It will be great to see what church can muster the greatest number of singers by percentage of the size of their regular choir. The Thanksgiving service will be held Thanksgiving morning, all Hilltop churches uniting.

Trolley Breaks.

A broken trolley wire on the Camp Chase car line at Sullivant avenue and Catherine street, last Sunday night became entangled under a passing street car, causing the flames to shoot from underneath it to such an extent that it was thought for a while the car would be consumed. The fire department was called, but no damage was done aside from the delay of traffic for a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Lake, 2490 Steele avenue, entertained the following out-of-town guests for the State-Michigan game: Mr. and Mrs. George Holman, Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. George Lasher, Detroit; Mr. James Holman, Grand Rapids, Mich. Lieutenant and Mrs. Charles Steinmetz, Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. James Hock of Detroit.

Rev. Richard E. Shields, pastor of Hoge Memorial church, broadcasted twice on Monday for the Columbus Community fund drive. Friends tuned in to hear the late facts of the progress of the campaign.

Mrs. Edward Poole of Baltimore, Md., is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Pool, 2488 West Broad street.

Club Elects Officers.

The Women's Democratic club of the eleventh ward held their regular monthly meeting Monday evening, Nov. 17, at the home of Mrs. C. W. Harrel, 88 North Burgess avenue.

HIGHLAND P.-T. A. HEAR REPORTS

Speaker and Dramatic Play on Program of Next Meeting of Association.

The regular monthly meeting of the Highland Parent-Teachers' association was held in the school building Thursday, Nov. 13. One of the most interesting features of the business meeting was the report from the membership drive, which was conducted the preceding week. Mrs. Alspach, the chairman, reported that about 95 new members were listed in the roll call, and it was hoped that more would join the organization throughout the year and make the Highland P.-T. A. one of the most active in the city: Plans were also made for a paper-selling week for raising money for the school, to be conducted the first week after Thanksgiving.

Mrs. R. L. Held, president of the association, and Mrs. Ryan, secretary, who were delegates to the recent P.-T. A. convention in Toledo, gave interesting reports.

The topic for discussion for this meeting was "Religious Education in Our Schools," and most interesting papers on the subject were read by two faculty members, Miss Cherry and Mr. Littleton, assistant principal, and by Mrs. Alspach.

The next meeting will be an evening meeting on December 4. There will be an interesting speaker for this meeting and a play by one of the dramatic classes, so it is expected that a large crowd will be present.

MRS. WILLIAMS AWARDED $2080

Mrs. Eliza Anne Williams, 324 South Harris avenue, whose son L. D. Mrs. Williams gets her award under the workmen's compensation act. Her son's medical and funeral expenses also were paid by the industrial commission.

BENEFIT FOR THE HILLTOP LIBRARY

The big event of the second week of December on the Hilltop will be the community concert to be given for the benefit of the Holmes Hilltop Memorial Library. The Westgate chorus has consented to sing several numbers and Mr. Louis Gay has agreed to sing. These numbers are in themselves sufficient to guarantee an evening of unusual enjoyment. Other talent will be announced later. The date is Dec. 11, at Glenwood Methodist church, and the cause is one that appeals to every resident on the Hilltop and to which they will give their hearty support.

IN BUSINESS ON HILLTOP 20 YEARS

Few men in business on the Hilltop today have played the part or seen the development of this section that W. L. Millikin has witnessed in a business way. His line of business has brought him in close touch with the building developments in both the construction of homes and business houses.

The first of November saw Mr. Millikin entering his twenty-first years of continued business activities on the Hilltop, having opened his store Nov. 1, 1904, at its present location, 2420 West Broad street, and if we are correctly informed there is but one other business establishment on the Hilltop having a longer record under the same management, that being the grocery store of Millikin Bros.

Mr. Millikin has always been active in the welfare of the city generally and the Hilltop section in particular. He served in city council for four years and has always been a booster of Hilltop civic affairs.

The Record congratulates Mr. Millikin on his business success and as a booster of this section and wishes his success in his future years.

HELPFUL MEETING LAST FRIDAY EVE.

Members of West Broad Parent-Teachers' Association Enjoy Varied Program.

The Harvest Home-coming of the West Broad School Parent-Teachers' Association was held Friday evening, Nov. 14.

The new Ohio Parent-Teacher song was introduced into the association by a chorus of parents and teachers singing the song.

After a short business session Harry Clark took charge of the program, as Mrs. R. E. Shields, chairman of the program committee, was unable to be present.

The address of welcome was given by Mr. Clark, after which he introduced Prof. Walter King, who played several piano solos, and Miss Helen Meyer, who gave a number of readings.

Rev. G. F. Barber, new pastor of the Glenwood Methodist Episcopal church, gave a very interesting talk on "Puritans' Children," which was greatly enjoyed by the association.

MEETINGS

The members of the Hilltop Church of Christ choir held their monthly business meeting and social at the home of J. M. Fagg, 1578 West Broad street. After the transaction of business a social hour was enjoyed.

The Ladies' Aid society of Glenwood M. E. church will be hostess at the parsonage, to all members and friends of the church Friday afternoon, Nov. 21, from 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon and from 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon and from 7:30 to 9 o'clock in the evening. A silver offering will be taken.

The Bethany Bible class meets in the parlor of Hill Crest Baptist church Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A goodly number attended the last meeting, and it is hoped the number will be greatly increased at this meeting. These meetings are very spiritual and beneficial. Protestant women, won't you make a special effort to be present?

The Hilltop W. C. T. U. are preparing for their annual Thanksgiving offering to the Elizabeth Home. Anyone wishing to contribute eatables or money please leave with Mrs. M. W. Westlake, 2490 West Broad street.

The Win-My-Chum services of Glenwood leagues being held every night this week under the direction of the Indianola Student Center Gospel team of Ohio State university, are giving to the young people many splendid ideas concerning the Christian youth. It is not too late to attend these services. The program for the remainder of the week is as follows:

Thursday—"Fun and the Christian Youth," Mr. C. E. Houston and Miss Arlyne Pearson.
Friday—"Life and the Christian Youth," Miss Kathleen Smith.
Sunday—Sunrise prayer, 7 a. m.

Venerable in appearance, winsome in spirit, picturesque in dress, faultless and eloquent in speech Dr. Wherahiro Rawei completely won a large audience present for the second number of the Hilltop Entertainment Course at Glenwood Methodist church on Tuesday evening.

Dr. Rawei, a native of New Zealand, was adopted by an English lady when a boy and educated in England. His life has been spent as a medical missionary among the Polynesian people. In later years he has turned to lecturing and writing to provide support for old age and to acquaint America with the delightful people of her far away possessions. Dr. Rawei was an intimate friend of Robert Louis Stevenson and expects to write a book on Stevenson as the Samoans knew him. It will be a real contribution to literature.

The Father and Son Banquet at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church last Thursday evening was a decided success both in numbers and entertainment provided for the participants.

B. H. Oyler, president of the Men's Bible class, had charge of the splendid program which consisted of singing, reading of scripture by a son, and a response by J. W. Dinsmore. A paper was read by a son, which was responded to by Professor Leonard, of Central High school. About 100 fathers and sons were present.

Mr. and Mrs. John Graves Wednesday moved into their new home at 78 North Chase avenue from their former residence in the East End. Mrs. Hale Allwood and her daughter, Miss Deloris, will also reside with them.

OBITUARY

Gladys F. Williams, daughter of Christina and Samuel H. Layne, was born in Columbus, Ohio, July 20, 1896, and died in this city Nov. 14, 1924, aged 28 years, 3 months and 25 days.

She was married to Irwin Williams, July 15, 1914. Of this union were born two children, Benjamin and Galena.

She leaves to mourn their great loss her husband, children, three sisters and four brothers. She was a loving, dutiful wife; a kind and gentle mother. She cared not for the outside world, her greatest pleasure was in staying at home and caring for her family.

The family desires at this time to thank their neighbors, relatives and friends for the beautiful floral offerings; also extend thanks to Rev. Lowe, also the Amos McDonald funeral directors for their services.

Sorrowfully we folded her cold white hands,
Gently and lovingly over her breast,
And kissed those pale cheeks a sad farewell
As she lay there so beautiful at rest.

She was a mother, fond and true,
One who loved as mothers do.
She did not seek for outside joy,
But loved to care for her girl and boy.

She was a tender, loving wife;
All that a good wife could be,
But the Lord decided to call her home
And we cannot with him disagree.

Oh, husband and dear children,
We hope that your lives will be,
So you can all meet her in heaven,
Where there is no grief or misery.

You can have the home you are dreaming of HOW long have you been dreaming of a home? Stop and think. You could be living in your own home right now if you had got started a year or two ago. The longer you wait the more you lose—because the money you are sinking for rent and other expenses could just as well be going into a home.

Talk it over with your wife. You will find that she has been thinking along these lines. She has friends who live in their own homes, and who built them and own them without any hardships. You know that a home means everything to a family. It is not a speculation; it is a real profitable investment.

Talk it over with your dealer. He is a practitioner in building. He knows about building and building materials. He is right here; this is his home, and he wants to give you the kind of service that will make you a friend of his.

HEALTH HINTS.

By DR. O. E. McFADON

SPECIAL MEALS AGAIN.

In war time we had an occasional "meatless day," and we patted ourselves on the back because we felt that we were "doing our bit" in a good cause, but we knew we were better off for doing it. If there had been two meatless days each week during the war many would have considered themselves greatly injured, but in reality would have been more healthy on account of it. And if we had been limited to two meat-eating days each week, we would have been still better for it, but would be thought almost just cause for revolution. It might have made some pro-Germans.

If for any reason whatever, President Coolidge had issued an order last September that until Chrismas we must eat bread only once a day, John W. Davis would have been duly thumbscrewed on that subject and if found like minded, La Follette would have carried the election, even if everybody know that the average health would be improved on account of it.

Some modern dietitians and some others are practicing the one-starch-meal-a-day and one-protein-meal-a-day plan and are enthusiastic over the salutary health results.

It is not only the so called good-livers that are beckoning to gout, rheumatism and apoplexy by making the staple foods (bread, meat, potatoes, etc.) the basis of their every meal, but it is the rule, rather than the exception, among people generally. In fact, an abundance of such foods always in sight, is a matter of pride with most families. And why not? Could anything be more commendable? And are not we differentiating too closely?

It is true that protein (bread, lean meat, white of egg) is for building in the young and for repair in adults, but the daily excesses over actual necessities for up-keep represents the contributions to disease. Likewise, starch and fats are necessities for heat and energy, but a daily excess beyond necessities makes digestion unnecessarily laborious and promotes a down grade nerve waste which lessens resistance to disease caused by the excess of protein.

The excess line beyond necessities is the danger line which the dietitians are pointing out and the one-starch-meal-a-day and one-protein-meal-a-day plan simplifies the procedure and helps amazingly to solve the problem of combinations.

Most foods contain several nutrients, but are named for their principal elements. As lean meat, eggs, milk, cheese nad all nuts are protein foods carrying fat; and the grains, rice, potatoes, etc., are starch foods carrying more or less protein and some fat. Rice is heaviest in starch, white of egg in protein, and butter in fat.

Bread, a starch food, has also much protein. Bread and potatoes, supplemented by vegetables, would constitute a "starch meal." Bread and lean meat or eggs or cheese would contain some fat and might be supplemented by fruit and still be a "protein meal."

The problem for sedentary people is to keep the starch and protein foods down in quantity, but no such caution is so necessary with fruits and vegetables. For people not engaged in hard work, the safer way is to make more than half the meals of fruits and vegetables. A few days of will power may be necessary to break away from the solid food habit and install fruits and vegetables, but the results will pay the effort. The fewer the kinds of food in each meal the better. Why not try the one-starch-meal-a-day plan? You cannot cut out starch entirely in other meals, for so many foods have some starch, but you can reduce intelligently, and a week of it will make life more worth while.

Family co-operation is valuable here, and, of all persons, the housewife has a responsibility in leadership. She can, by her management, rehabilitate her family and change their habits without comment, if she is a fair suggestionist.

THE PRESIDENT'S THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

"We approach that season of the year when it has been the custom for the American people to give thanks for the good fortune which the bounty of Providence through the generosity of nature, has visited on them. It is altogether a good custom. It has the sanction of antiquity and the approbation of our religious convictions. In acknowledging the receipt of divine favor, in contemplating the blessings which have been bestowed on us, we shall reveal the spiritual strength of the nation.

"The year has been marked by a continuouation of peace whereby our country has entered into a relationship of better understanding with all other nations of the earth. Ways have been revealed to us by which we could perform very great service through the giving of friendly counsel, through the extension of financial assistance, and through the exercise of a spirit of neighborly kindliness to less favored peoples. We should give thanks for the power which has been given into our keeping, with which we have been able to render these services to the rest of mankind.

"At home we have continually had an improving state of public health. The production of our industries has been large and our harvests have been bountiful. We have been remarkably free from disorder and remarkably successful in all those pursuits which flourish during a state of domestic peace. An abundant prosperity has overspread the land.

"We shall do well to accept all these favors and bounties with a becoming humility, and dedicate them to the service of the righteous cause of the giver of all good and perfect gifts. As the nation has prospered, let all the people show that they are worthy to prosper by rededicating America to the service of God and Man.

"Therefore, I, Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States of America, hereby proclaim and fix Thursday, Nov. 27, as a day for national thanksgiving. I recommend that the people gather in their places of worship and at family altars and offer up thanks for the goodness which has been shown to them in such a multitude of ways."

Vested Choir to Render Simper's "Rolling Seasons" Sunday Evening.

The St. John's vested choir will render Caleb Simper's "Rolling Seasons" cantata for the Thanksgiving season in St. John's Lutheran church on Sunday evening at 7:30. This is a popular and most beautiful chorus that has already been issued in 51 editions. In the choruses, quartets, duets and solos, of which it is composed, there are many charming strains leading up at times to thrilling climaxes. The rendition is directed by L. O. Pearch, and accompanied by both a two manual pipe organ and piano, Miss Elizabeth Raether at the former and Miss Ruth Pearch at the latter. The soprano singers are Mesdames Minnie Raether, Frankie Raether and Adena Smith; alto, Mesdames Bertha Sommers, Jeanette Wolfe, Lulu K. ## VESPER SERVICES AT HOGE MEMORIAL

Presbyterian Church Resume Popular Sunday Afternoon Services.

Dec. 7, Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church will begin vesper services at 4 o'clock each Sunday afternoon, which will continue through the winter months.

By a vote of the officers of the church at a meeting last week, it was decided to adopt this plan of having the services at this hour, replacing the regular evening services. The morning service will remain the same. For the past two years Hoge Memorial has had vesper services during the winter months, which has proven very popular with residents of the Hilltop.

HOMECOMING AT HOGE MEMORIAL

There will be a big church homecoming at Hoge Memorial, Wednesday, Dec. 4, with a dinner at 6.30 o'clock and a social time and program for old and young during the evening. It is expected that the entire Sunday school and church will eat together and play together. Only a free-will offering will be taken to pay the cost of the supper. Mrs. Don Latham is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

THANKSGIVING THOUGHTS

Come! Let us take our prated prayers, review them and examine:
Are they because our feast is full while others share a famine?
Are they because we ride the road with others pick and shovel?
Are they because our walls are wide while others crowd a hovel?
Are they because our limbs are swathed, while some are rawed by weather?

Thanks are not thanks which only make another's want our measure,
Or only by another's pain to gauge a selfish pleasure,
Thanks are not thanks whose words are stones to pelt a lesser brother,
Or that we make our blessedness the burden of another.
Thanks are not thanks for tender palms that others be as leather;
Thanks are but thanks for such good gifts as all hands hold together.

Give us to know the larger day which deprecates Thanksgiving,
Save for the universal feast which spreads for all the living.
Give us to pray the larger prayer whereby our senses quicken
And see no gain in any good whereby another's stricken.
Give us to scorn the captured spoil which asks no why or whether,
Give us to toil toward that gain which all may share together.
Or are they only for the gifts we all may share together?

—Edmund Vance Cooke in Christian Home.

BACK-TRAILING ON OLD SCHOOL DAYS

Who is there of us that does not at times stop and think over those old school days of years ago? How we recall in our memory the faces, one by one, of the schoolmates with whom we studied, recited and played. The songs we sang, the teachers we liked and disliked, and all the affairs co-incident with our school days.

We have thought that a collection and publication of these incidents, now and then, in the Record, would make interesting reading for our people, therefore we begin with this issue the publication of such articles and hope from time to time to continue printing others as we may be able to collect them. We ask contributions from our readers along this line and will publish such if furnished us. So send them in.

Mrs. Mary E. Judd, mother of Miss Harriet Judd, principal of West Broad Street school, contributes the following article reminiscent of the early history of Columbus public schools, forerunners of our present excellent school system:

Previous to 1860 we had but four school buildings in Columbus, the north building, located at Long and Third streets, the middle building at Rich and Third streets and the south building at Mound and Third streets. They were built something after the style of the old Fourth street market house, one-story brick with peaked roof, and six or seven rooms. The fourth building was on State street where the school administration building now stands, and was three stories in height—brick, and was both elementary and high school and was called the State Street building.

A year or two later a new high school building was erected at the corner of Broad and Sixth streets and the high school pupils transferred to it, Mr. George Twiss being the principal.

About this time an addition was built to the North building, consisting of primary and secondary rooms and above in the middle of the building was our new grammar school, consisting of one large room and two recitation rooms and windows which the boys used to like to rattle when the roll was called. Mr. O. W. Fay was the principal and Miss Anna Thomas was a teacher. Miss Thomas' home was on West Broad street and is still the family residence. We used McGuffey's readers and spelling books, Ray's arithmetic, small geographies at first, slates and pencils. Later compositions, orations and spelling contests consumed the time of Friday afternoons. Our principal was exceedingly particular with our reading, and every "and" and "the" and "or," and in fact all words, had to be very carefully pronounced.

About this time the Civil war broke out and Mr. Fay had the children bring the money for a flag, which they did gladly, and the goods was bought and taken to the home of Mrs. Crary, mother of some of the pupils, where she cut and made it and then invited several of the girls to sew the stars on, and when it was all finished we were one happy, patriotic crowd of children. A large, strong staff was erected on top of the building, the flag carried up to it, while we children stood on the north side of Long street and sang this beautiful song, only one verse of which I remember. I will give it:

Are the stars on our banner less bril-
today,
Than when in the hour of their trial
and gloom,
The heroes we honor they led to the fray
To conquer for freedom or hallow her tomb?
Do we love them the less as they glitter afar,
Our herald in peace and our standard in war?
By the deeds of the valiant, the blood of the slain,
By the cause that we cherish, the rights we maintain,
We'll ever defend by the souls of the brave
Their honor wherever that rbanner
shall wave;
Their honor wherever that banner
shall wave.

And that dear old flag was our pride. I cannot say much for the middle and south buildings, for they were far away—at that time. Later the buildings became so crowded that the Park street, Spring street and Fourth street —for the German children—buildings were built, the school boundaries changed and the pupils from the north building transferred to Spring street and the north building was given over to the colored children. The principal was a very capable man, but his name I have forgotten.

I will mention a little school house, about 1867, located on the low ground between the Scioto river and Franklinton—known as Middletown. It was a one-room, one-story frame affair. Our superintendent called it the "store box," but it housed all the school children of that section. Miss Anna Riordan was the teacher and so faithful was she and so anxious to have good reports that she went to the homes, many, many times to get the little ones, for fear of tardiness or absence. This was the forerunner of the Flener school.

BACK-TRAILING ON OLD SCHOOL DAYS

School hours at this time were from 9 to 12 and from 2 to 5 in summer, and from 1:30 to 4:30 in winter.

These schools compared with the four Senior High, Trades High, Opportunity, Open Air, Normal, 11 Junior High and 50 Elementary schools, were but a beginning.

Mr. Edmund E. Evans, 32 North Harris avenue, a well known resident of the Hilltop and a former school master of the old days, when McGuffey's books were the basis of the children's education, hands us the old familiar poem by Longellow, "The Village Blacksmith," appreciated by young and old alike.

Under a spreading chestnut tree
The village smithy stands;
The smith, a mighty man is he;
With large and sinewy hands;
And the muscles of his brawny arms
Are strong as iron bands.
His hair is crisp, and black and long,
His face is like the tan;
His brow is wet with honest sweat,
He earns whate'er he can,
And looks the whole world in the face
For he owes not any man.

Week in, week out, from morn till night,
You can hear his bellows blow;
You can hear him swing his heavy sledge,
With measured beat and slow,
Like a sexton ringing the village bell,
When the evening sun is low.

And the children coming home from school
Look in at the open door,
They love to see the flaming forge,
And hear the bellows roar,
And catch the burning sparks that fly
Like chaff from a threshing floor.
He goes on Sunday to the church,
And sits among his boys;
He hears the parson pray and preach,
He hears his daughter's voice
Singing in the village choir,
And it makes his heart rejoice.

It sounds to him like her mother's voice,
Singing in Paradise;
He needs must think of her once
How in the grave she lies,
And with a hard, rough hand he wipes
A tear out of his eye.
Tolling—rejoicing—sorrowing,
Onward through life he goes,
Each morning sees some task begun,
Each evening sees it close;
Something attempted, something done,
He earned a night's repose.

Thanks, thanks, to thee, my worthy friend,
For the lesson thou hast taught!
Thus on its sounding anvil shaped
Our fortunes must be wrought;
Thus, on its sounding anvil shaped
Each burning deed and thought!

HEALTH HINTS.
By DR. O. E. McFADON

BE THANKFUL FOR WHAT YOU DON'T EAT.

A preacher once told his people that when they had done as he had told them, he would give them a new sermon. I know how that preacher felt, and I know how those people felt. He had their best welfare at heart and they chose to be entertained rather than instructed.

Some of you have told me—as I suppose they told him—that you like the jingle of hy effusions, or words to that effect, but that's too scant material to inspire an annual Thanksgiving. We—the preacher and I—can't feel that our duty is done until you do yours.

I have plead with you to eat fewer kinds of food at your meals and to better balance up your day's intake of food nutrients, and you may have thought your approval "out loud," but effervescence is not acquiescence.

Right here I am jealous of the cook whose culinary designs upon the palate are better vote getters than are any amount of most perspicuous diction of a "dried tongue" specialist. She caters to your gustatory nerves and, enjoying the flavor and taste of her product, you vote, unanimously, to suspend the rules, while that seductive flavor can last, and the essayist is as inconsequential as the king's fool.

I wonder sometimes, why the people I am hoping to reach, are not so enthusiastic over the flavor of my dearly beloved vegetable soup as I am; and I am mentally confronted with, and am duly jealous of that rival of my modest offering—their favorite flavors, as represented by the soda fountain. My ideal flavor has a mento-mineral origin. As I slice in the thoroughly washed but unskinned vegetables, I am not thinking of the overworked nutrients they may contain, so much as I think of the minerals and vitamines—the "vitaminerals"—that that are lurking, most likely, just beneath the skin, and so near as to be sacrificed to the lower animals or the sewers, if not so saved.

My readers cannot hold radium more sacred—valued as it is, at $000,000 an ounce—than the writer values the iron, calcium, phosphorus and vitamines, which he realizes is contained in his humble, home made, vegetable soup; for without any one of these minerals, life could not continue, and the only way to get them is in this second-handed way—through the vegtables we eat. Hold these ideals in mind, dear reader, and your ideal soda fountain flavors will be sunk into insignificance in comparison.

I began writing, thinking to make this a Thanksgiving letter; and, why not, yet? But, here appears to me, another just cause for jealousy. While I am pleading for a simple menu, it is most probably a fact that, as you read this, your housewife, chef, steward or coor—or, possibly all combined—are planning such a Thanksgiving dinner for you as will reduce me to the level of the "king's fool"—if you yield.

By yielding, I have in mind partaking freely of such complexes as the gravy, stuffing and mince pie to be expected on Thanksgiving. Suppose you go with me, mentally, and gastronomically, and so, feel sure, that, by confining yourself to soup, vegetables, meat and ice cream, you are benefitted as much by what you don't eat as by what you eat. Then be good enough to yourself and to me, to read my next week's letter, and so, get more thoroughly grounded in rational methods that spell more vitality and longer, happier life.

Personally, I expect to be more genuinely thankful for the "vitaminerals" I shall surely get from the food I eat on Thanksgiving day, and for the abundance of food which I might have and don't eat, than the so-called good livers can be for their superfluous abundance.

A FRIEND IN NEED.

This friend was a tame stag that belonged to a woman living near Manila, in the Philippine Islands. He was a great pet and was allowed to roam around at his will.

The ponies did not have the same freedom. When they were taken out, they must be tied. One day, the man who fed the ponies tied one of them with a very short rope, and then carelessly put the bunch of hay beyond its reach. The poor little beast strained in vain at its rope to reach its meal. Its owner watching from the window, was about to go to its help, when she saw the stag standing by, taking in the situation. She waited to see what would happen. The stag soon found a way out of the difficulty. He bent his proud head, lifted part of the hay on his antlers, and put it down under the pony's nose. Then he went back for more; in a few minutes the grateful little pony had its full meal before it, and was making a hearty breakfast.—The Outlook.

Cream shortening and sugar together, beat eggs and add to mixture. Roll crackers fine and add baking powder. Add to mixture together with salt and nut meats. Bake in two layers or loaf.

Filling—3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons powdered sugar, 1 egg beaten light, mix sugar and butter, flavor with vanilla, add egg.

SUET PUDDING

STREET CAR AND AUTO COLLIDE

Slippery Streets Cause Injury to Three Camp Chase Residents Tuesday Morning.

Miss Mildred Phillippi, aged 18, of Camp Chase, was badly bruised about the back and hips, and Arthur Morgan and Clarence Seeley, both of Camp Chase, were slightly hurt, early Tuesday morning when the coupe in which the three were riding was struck by a street car at McDowell and Town streets.

Because of the snow and ice on the streets, making slippery surface, it is believed the vehicles were unable to stop in time to prevent the accident.

According to an eyewitness of the accident, the street car was going east on Town street and the automobile was traveling north on McDowell. While the force of the car carried the machine for almost half a square, it failed to turn the machine over.

Occupants of the machine were assisted from the vehicle by pedestrians passing by, who notified police and and ambulance was sent to the scene. The injured people were taken to Mt. Carmel hospital for treatment.

WIDOWS' HOME TO BE OPENED

On South Warren Ave.—Community Plan to Be Adopted.

In the near future Mrs. J. W. Durfinger of West Jefferson will open a home for widows at 25 South Warren avenue. This home, formerly used as a residence, contains 10 rooms on the first and second floors. Rooms will also be fitted out on the third floor.

A housekeeper will be provided and occupants of the home will be allowed the use of the dining room, kitchen and living rooms on a community basis. Garden space is provided at the rear of the residence and grass-covered lots on either side. All the facilities of a home will be provided.

CHORUS TRAVELS TO THORNVILLE

Members of West Gate Chorus Have Novel Experience on Return Trip.

West Gate Masonic chorus, consisting of 35 members, drove to Thornville last Monday night, where they gave a concert for the Masonic lodge at that place.

After the concert they started homeward, singing, joking, etc., when all at once "plump!" the lights of the bus went out (we don't say the singing had anything to do with it), so a lone flashlight was aroused and shone forth about like a lightning bug in a fog, and they finally got to within six miles east of Columbus, when, "plump" again—this time the engine followed the example of the lights and went dead. Neither cranking, coaxing or hiring were effective. Finally it was discovered that, while passing the filling station, all "slumbered and slept"—hence the wherewith to function the engine had vanished. However, the peaceful sleep of a nearby farmer was broken and his phone borrowed long enough to send out an S O S to Columbus. An intermission of one hour is supposed to have elapsed now, during which time myriads of "little" pink toes were kept wiggling around so as to scare off the bugaboo, J. Frost, who was automatically prowling around conspicuously. Finally the welcome lights of a rescuing car hove in sight on the western horizon and in due time their "boat" was hitched onto it and towed into Columbus, but too late for the Morning Journal to chronicle the thrilling affair and the gallant rescue, therefore the Record pulls a "scoop" on all its esteemed contemporaries.

Mrs. Mason Morris, 50 North Warren avenue, visited Thanksgiving and over the week-end with her son, Glenn, and wife, at Detroit, Mich.

Miss Hattie Halliday of Toledo was a Thanksgiving and week-end guest of Miss Marie Schoonover, 163 North Warren avenue.

Mr. E. E. Tom of North Hague avenue, has been confined to his bed for the past few days.

Westwood Temple, No. 460, Pythian Sisters will have their annual inspection Tuesday evening, Dec. 9, at their hall, corner West Broad street and Oakley avenue. Grand District Deputy Maud Foster of London, Ohio, will be the inspecting officer. Sister temples are invited.

Arm Is Fractured

John Postle, driver for the Haunts grocery, was painfully injured the fore part of this week when his automobile backfired when he attempted to crank it, causing a fracture of his arm. As a result he will be off duty for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Errett Loomis and son, Edwin, 151 North Park avenue, and Mrs. A. L. Ditrick and two sons, Charles and Howard, 125 North Park avenue, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Loomis at Beaverdam, O., over Thanksgiving and the week-end. A. L. Ditrick joined his family at the week-end.

SOCIAL AND PARTY EVENTS

Friends and employes of the Felber Biscuit Co. completely surprised H. S. Wilbarger at his home, 179 North Burgess avenue, last Saturday evening. Music, games and a general good time was enjoyed by all. Light refreshments were served.

The Occident Embroidery club met at the home of Mrs. W. T. Jones, 2515 West Broad street, Friday evening, Nov. 28, for their semi-monthly meeting. Quite a few members were forced to be absent, owing to illness of themselves or members of their respective families. Those present reported a most enjoyable evening and did full justice to the ample refreshments served by the hostess. The following members were present: Mrs. P. Benton, Mrs. Elroy Drye, Mrs. A. Elliott, Mrs. G. Goulding, Mrs. F. C. Jones, Mrs. Don Latham, Mrs. J. A. Moore, and Miss Nona Wenger. Miss Geraldine Elliott was a guest. After thanking the hostess for a very pleasant evening the guests departed for their various homes. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Lena Elliott, Dec. 12.

Mrs. C. J. Rust, 261 North Warren avenue, received a Thanksgiving letter from her sister, Mrs. Clark Albright of Denver, Colo., by the new air mail route. It is postmarked leaving Denver Nov. 23, at 5:30 p. m. and received at the Columbus postoffice Nov. 26, 10:30 a. m. Deducting the time it would take in transportation from the central office at Denver to the air field, and likewise the same amount of time here, the letter was probably a day and a half en route.

The Elite Embroidery club gave a progressive rook party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Houdashelt, 205 North Ogden avenue. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Orris Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Creager, Mr. and Mrs. Orman Spencer and Mr. and Mrs. John Reese. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Reese, 206 North Warren avenue, Thursday, Dec. 4.

The Rho Gama club of the Robbins-Grieser School of Music has organized a music club in connection with the school. They meet the second Monday in each month. The next meeting will be held Dec. 8. They plan to give a recital in the near future. The following officers have been elected: Margaret Morgan, president; Rudolph Schmidt, vice president; Blanche Kings, secretary; Robert Dye, treasurer.

The Personal Workers' Bible class of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church met for their regular business and social meeting at the home of Mrs. E. E. Evans, 32 North Harris avenue, Monday evening, Dec. 1. The devotional part of the meeting was led by Mrs. Brokaw, after which the president, Mrs. Oyler, took charge of the business which was followed by an enjoyable Christmas program in charge of Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Brokaw, Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Finley and Mrs. Oyler. Forty guests were present and all departed for their homes feeling that they had been well repaid for their presence. Mrs. Patterson of Ripley, Ohio, was an out-of-town guest.

BENEFIT CONCERT FOR LIBRARY FUND

To Be Given at Glenwood M. E. Church on Thursday Evening of Next Week

We believe that nearly every Hilltop citizen looks upon our Hilltop Library as one of our choicest assets, and points to it with pride as an achievement of the efforts of our people. If he or she does not, they should.

If there were no other reason for its support except witnessing the great amount of interest our school boys and girls take in the books on its shelves, and the volumes of useful information they have access to pertaining to their school work, that alone would be more than sufficient reason for every Hilltop resident, whether parent or not, to do everything in his or her power to make the library a huge success.

If you wish to prove this to yourself, just go up to the Library occasionally when the boys and girls are dismissed from school and watch their interest, and we do not believe there is anyone that would want to see this privilege taken from them.

The library is supported by way of an annual campaign in which a canvass is made, by a committee, of all the Hilltop, and voluntary subscriptions taken whereby a sufficient budget is subscribed to take care of its expenses for one year.

The last one was during February of this year. But the committee did not succeed in getting enough money to carry it through the year, therefore the funds are almost exhausted, and there are yet several months before another campaign will be put on.

Now, in order to supply the needed funds, a fine Community Concert is to be given at Glenwood M. E. Church Thursday evening, December 11. This concert will be composed of splendid talent, among which is the well-known West Gate Chorus, which in itself should guarantee the quality of the concert. Also there will be several soloists, among which is Mrs. Harvard S. Vallance, soloist, a member of the quartet at the First Baptist church and Women's Music club. Mrs. Vallance will be accompanied by her daughter, Miss Charlotte Vallance at the piano.

The price of admission is 25c for adults and 20c for children. Every ticket ought to be sold, and the Record not only hopes, but urges that every Hilltop resident patronize this event, and not only help a very worthy cause, but get the enjoyment of it themselves.

Go and take someone with you. Don't forget the date, Thursday, December 11th.

Important Notice.

There will be no community pictures at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church-house this Saturday night, but the committe, of which Dr. R. F. Rauch is chairman, announces that a specially fine film in the subject: "The Cricket on the Hearth," Dickens' immortal Christmas story, will be shown on Saturday night, Dec. 20. This is the only picture which will be shown during the Christmas holidays.

The dedication services of the Highland Avenue Friends' church will be held Dec. 14. See next week's Record for announcement.

OHIO BOY MAKES GOOD IN AFRICA

R. E. Blosser Visits Cousins, Mrs. Alice Lehman and Mrs. O. E. Spencer.

Mr. R. E. Blosser of Tshikapa, Congo Belge, Africa, and his bride, who was Miss Phinette My of Brussels, Belgium, are spending their honeymoon in the United States.

While in Columbus they were the guests of their cousins, Mrs. Alice Lehman and Mrs. O. E. Spencer of 140 North Burgess avenue.

Mr. Blosser, a mining engineer, is the son of Isaiah Blosser, who formerly lived at Logan, Ohio. Several years ago, he and his partner were the first white men in the region of Tshikapa, Congo, Belge. Their settlement is in the diamond mining belt, and now numbers 35 American inhabitans.

Mr. Blosser's largest find was a gem weighing 21 K, and relates that one of his native miners found one diamand of 47 K weight.

After spending a fortnight in his native land, Mr. and Mrs. Blosser will sail from New York to their future home in Africa.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Etheringham enjoyed Thanksgiving dinner in their new home, 2751 Carol avenue.

HILLTOP BUSINESS and CIVIC BOOSTER

Appreciating the needs of a first-class jewelry store and optical parlor on the Hilltop, Fred L. Sulzberger established his store in a community in which he was thoroughly acquainted and in 1914 opened his store at 2363 West Broad street, now occupied by the Rivoli theater, he then occupying only a portion of the front of this room. His business grew to such proportions and in 1921 he leased the room at his present location, 2391 West Broad street.

In 1916 Mr. Sulzberger received his degree in optometry and in 1920 the degree of Doctor of Optometry. He also saw service in the World war, closing his store that he might serve his country.

While Mr. Sulzberger was not born on the Hilltop, he may be legitimately classed as a Hilltop product, and while Fred is by no means an old man, and would not tell his age, yet he did reveal the fact that he could remember when West Broad street was first paved and had been a resident of the Hilltop for 38 years.

Mr. Sulzberger is a Mason, a K. of P., loves to hunt and fish and revels in tales of his accomplishments, but above all is a genuine booster of all Hilltop civic affairs.

MEMBERS AND FRIENDS ENJOY

Home-coming Dinner and Fellowship Evening at Hoge Memorial.

At the home-coming dinner and fellowship evening at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church Wednesday night a large crowd of people sat down to a chicken dinner served by a committee of ladies directed by Mrs. Don Latham, chairman. Mrs. S. E. Pool had charge of the dining room, which was tastefully decorated.

Following the dinner, the crowd enjoyed a laugh provoking comedy, "Watch Your Neighbor," on the motion picture screen. The West Side Lumber Company Male quartet sang selections and a complete orchestra with all trappings made music during the entire evening.

The principal speaker of the evening was Judge Mahaffey, who spoke on the work of the municipal court and his relation to it.

At 8:30, a one-act playlet entitled, "A Full House," caused great amusement.

The following elders and their wives served as the reception committee: Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Michel, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dinsmore, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Deems, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Kingery, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Chamberlin and Mr. Harry Elder, clerk of the session.

The pastor, Rev. Richard E. Shields, explained the object of such a gathering and gave the devotions at the dinner table.

The church membership was knit more closely together than ever before and everyone reported a most enjoyable evening.

C. W. Barrell, Mrs. Dewey U. Creager, Jack Merriman, S. E. Pool, Mrs. L. A. Warner and Mrs. A. W. Jordan had charge of the program of entertainment.

NERVY BANDIT ENTERS AUTO

Matt Ash Just As Nervy and With Help of Others Gets Best of Intruder.

While the automobile of Matt Ash, 7 Belvidere avenue, was parked in front of the Power Oil Co. station on Dublin avenue, a bandit entered the machine and when Ash returned, he was ordered to drive on, at the point of a revolver.

Instead of doing as directed, Ash turned and drew up to the filling station again.

This did not please the bandit, who became irate and showed fight. However, Ash was just as mad as the bandit was and fought back, and aided by the filling station employes, who joined in the melee, the bandit was soon tied up and awaiting the arrival of police.

While his captors were otherwise engaged, the bandit slipped his bonds and escaped out the back door of the station and "beat it."

PHONOGRAPH AND RADIO COMBINED

A new line of musical instruments, Brunswick Radiolas, has recently been introduced on the Hilltop by C. G. Cooper, combining in one manufactured unit, "the music of the air" by radio, and "the music of one's choice," upon the phonograph. This new type of instrument brings to radio the musical quality of the famous Brunswick method of reproduction, and offers radio reception tone value unparalleled. Brunswick Radiolas are divided into two groups, each consisting of three models. The Numbers 360, 260 and 160 employ the Radiola Super-Heterodyne receiving equipment, and Numbers 30, 35 and 100 are of the Regenoflex type.

The three models employing the Super-Heterodyne receivers are particularly adapted for use in cities, in apartments, and in homes "within the shadow" of broadcasting stations. They require no antenna, and give a selectivity of program which is very decisive.

The models 30 and 35 of the Regenoflex group may be operated with any length of antenna; they have long range and offer high selectivity.

The Brunswick Radiola 100, which contains the Radiola Regenoflex receiver, is the ultimate of refinement and performance in the field of antenna sets. It is non-radiating, supremely selective, simple and economical in operation and fulfills the requirements of an ideal receiver for home use. Using only four tubes, battery economy is particulaly marked, and yet because on antenna is employed, performance is equal to a set having a greater number of tubes.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Foy, 1739 Sullivant avenue, entertained 35 guests on Wednesday evening, Nov. 26, with a 6 o'clock dinner at their home. The dinner was in celebration of the twenty-fifth marriage anniversary of the host and hostess. Barbee, Mr. Chauncey Barbee, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Smith, Mrs. George Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Martin, Mrs. Lewis Schooley, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Martin, Mrs. John Rutherford, Mrs. William Webber, Harold and Honor Foy.

LOVELY WINTER KNITTED TOGS PICTURESQUE WINTER PROMISE

A lovely frame for youth in winter time is heavy sweater, snug cap, scarf and brushed wool gloves all knitted in pure white. A perfect blending into the picturesque wintry landscape, these snow-maidens of fashion clad just so!

Fascinating pure-white knitted sports sets, such as the picture defines, are a veritable challenge to winter to hurry and bring its snow, its sleighbells, its tobogans, skis and skates. Not merely snowlike whiteness of these knitted outfits makes appeal of wintry charm, for there is also rugged beauty in the sturdy stitch and heavy yarn. Indeed, it is fashion's decree that the really smart winter knitted sports togs, especially sweaters, be either heavy shaker or rope-knit. So much has this idea of the mannish sweater taken possession of womankind, it has become a custom to patronize men's stores for either slipover or coat style, knitted of jumbo yarn, all-white preferred to colors.

Some of us cannot resist an added feminine touch and to such as love the esthetic a bit of brushed wool trimming is quite to our way of thinking. Could any feature more effectively "complete the picture" of winter loveliness than that of downy brushed wool borderings carried out in snowlike whiteness?

Speaking of knitted sports sets, among the newer modes are cap and scarf knitted of either nubbed yarn or in loop-stitch to simulate white fur. These carry brush-wool borders across the scarf and banding the cap.

PROGRESS IN SAFETY STUDY

Practical Methods Now Used in Teaching Safety Methods in Schools.

According to the State Department of Education, the study of safety is becoming well established in all schools of Ohio.

During the recent state campaign for safety teaching in the schools of the state, the department ordered teachers to begin the lessons in earnest and promised that textbooks would be furnished.

According to the department, the general aims of Ohio's school course in safety, are:

1—To develop in the child a consciousness of accident situations.

2—Give information concerning desirable ways of meeting such situations.

3—Fix habits of actions to meet such situations.

4—Develop in the child a feeling of responsibility for the safety of others.

5—Aid in forming favorable attitudes toward any steps to promote safety in any walk of life, such as safety devices in industry, safety education and safety ordinances.

HOW WASHINGTON LIVED IN NEW YORK

For the first few months of Washington's presidency the "White House" was in New York; the presidential household accounts from May 24 to August 24, 1789, preserved in the State Educational building at Albany, have recently been pubished for the first time. They also include Washington's personal estimate of his year's expenses, based on the figures; he made them out to be £4925 7s., or about $25,000.

All the items of the first president's records and calculations are interesting, perhaps none more so than one entry of $30 for coal and another of $85 for candles!

When Washington took up his duties as first president of the United States, says the New York Times, he expressed an unwillingness to receive any money from the public treasury beyond his actual expenses. At that time his household included a secretary and an assistant secretary, three aids and 18 servants. He also figured in his yearly expenses a livery of 16 horses.

Washington was fond of good things to eat, and he was far from stingy as a provider. His butcher's bill for three months ran to about $660. The items show four occasions when turkey graced the presidential table. If he continued eating turkey for the nine other months of the year as he did for the three during which he kept an itemized account, it means that he had at least 16 turkey dinners during that year.

The papers show that apparently Washington had plenty of fresh vegetables, for that item alone ran up to $290; and the milk and cream bill for the three months totalled $145. Turkey was not the only food that the first president relished, for it is recorded that he expended $45 during the three months for lobsters. Either cake was inexpensive in those days or else the president ate little of it, because he figured out that the cake eaten in his household during those three months was worth exactly 15 shillings.

Even in those early days it appears from the papers that servants had acquired the knack of breaking dishes, for the item of breakage is set down at $65; the wear and tear on the president's linen is estimated to have amounted to $115.

Compared with $30 for coal and $85 for candles, $145 for wood looms large. But £154 11s.—between seven and eight hundred dollars—does not sound like an extravagant sum for service; many a good-sized family of but moderate wealth pays as much for only two or three domestic helpers nowadays—and Washington had 18.—Youth's Companion.

It is estimated that by means of the telephone and radio, fifty million people heard a speaker in Chicago.

What is said to be the deepest spot in the ocean, about 40 miles north of one of the Philippine Islands, is 32,088 feet below the surface.

protect himself from this on-rushing demon of the night.

The firemen turned their heads and listened for the dull thud of the machine crashing into this object that was in their path.

But that thud did not come, for Captain Bill Riddle had reached out his powerful right arm, and with a vise-like grip, grabbed the child by his pajamas and raised him up out of the snow, and with his free hand waved his driver full speed ahead. Five firemen, with the agility of a cat, were at the captain's side, ready to assist him in the rescue of the little child, who had wandered away from home and a mother's care, and Lewis answering his captain's call, had once more pressed the accelerator down to the foot board, while the big six-cylinder was making 50 miles an hour, spitting a stream of fire 10 feet out of the exhaust pipe.

Captain Riddle got up from the fender and made his way back to the seat with his little bundle that he had just rescued from what seemed sure death. Picking up an old coat which one of his men had thrown on the seat, he wrapped it around the child, just as they pulled up to the fire, which was in Danzinger's planing mill, and it had all the symptoms of making an all-night stand.

The fourth floor of a six story brick building was buring from center to the west end. The building being equipped with a sprinkling system, it is customary to lay in to this system first and then take a line in to the fire direct. With No. 2 in line, Captain Riddle took his men and went up a 40-foot ladder into the fourth floor of the burning hell, and was lost to those who stood on the ground, wondering how men could live under such conditions. But Riddle was a veteran and knew just what his men could do. Other company's were now on the scene and a deluge was being played into this burning building. After several hours of heroic work and many hardships on the part of the fire laddies, the building became dark and the fire was pronounced under control by their gallant chief, who was a general, and had come up through the ranks of fire fighters.

Captain Riddle, seeing no use for so much water at this time, called for a reducer, which was brought by one of his men and placed on the end of the big line.

Not requiring so many men to operate this small line, Captain Bill started back toward the big pump which had been feeding him a 250-pound stream of water so faithfully for several hours of continuous service.

As he now had time to think of other things besides his duty, his mind wandered back to the little hand that was held up to the eyes to keep out this powerful light that was bearing down upon him.

Although Cap was an old bachelor, his heart went out to little children. Many times he had rescued them from burning buildings. Many times he had carried them out, burned to a crisp, but this last rescue was his supreme effort and he made good once more.

Who was this lad that had ventured out into this blizzard alone in night attire? In Cap's opinion, it must have been some reckless mother out to a Christmas eve ball or other entertainment and had left the child at home alone to take care of himself. This little mother, who was being so wrongly accused of neglecting her child, was frantically searching for him. Many times he had walked in his sleep, but never before had little Joe gone out of the house. That is why Mrs. Helen Dean, who had been made a widow by the cruel World war, was frantically searching to make sure that Joe was not asleep in another part of the house before she would believe the little tracks that led out into the snow were that of her little four-year-old boy.

Plunging out into the snow Helen Dean, who was very scantily dressed for this kind of weather, had slipped on a pale blue bath robe over her night attire. A pair of high shoes slipped on and tied about her ankles, and her long black hair was hanging to her hips. Although Mrs. Dean was very beautiful, she loved her child much more than she did society. She must find him quickly or he would be lost to her forever. The wind had all but covered the only clew little Joe had left in the deep snow, but the mother followed fast as she could, expecting every minute to find her boy frozen to death. Many times she pictured him in the snow ahead of her, only to reach the spot and find that it was a dark spot in the street where the wind had uncovered the paved street of its blanket of snow.

On she followed the little tracks until she reached the main street, then her heart sank within her to a depth never before reached—there was the end of the trail.

Death had met her little boy out in this terrible storm alone and overpowered him, and the cruel winds had placed a robe over his body, that he would be hidden from the shining stars that had come out from behind the clouds and clotted the heavens, as a beacon to guide those unfortunate souls that must be out tonight.

She raked the snow from the end of the trail to find her little boy that a few hours before she had put to bed with a prayer and a good-night kiss, with the assurance that old Santa would visit their home tonight with toys to make his little heart leap with joy.

By this time she was working furious and fast at the end of the trail; the cold and worry were fast sapping her strength away. She was hunting for a new trail. Around in a circle she went, many times, without success. It looked as though some angel or demon of this terrible night had spirited him away through the air. At last she sank to her knees in the cold snow. With her hands and face lifted toward the stars in heaven, Helen Dean offered up a prayer to God that she might find her boy. She raised to her feet with a lighter step, but a heavy heart, as she noticed for the first time the wide tread of a big motor truck that had gone east. Had they killed or wounded her boy and taken him away with them, or could he have got fast under the big motor and they not have noticed him? She must find this truck at any cost.

THE FIREMAN'S CHRISTMAS EVE

By ISAAC L. KIDD
38 N. Warren Ave.

Christmas eve showed Columbus shrouded in a foot of snow, with the thermometer hovering around zero, and a 30-mile gale blowing out of the northwest. The rain that came ahead of the blizzard, had frozen on the paved streets in the early morning, which made a great foundation for the 12 inches of snow that followed up fast and furious, until 9 o'clock Christmas eve, when the clouds cleared away and the stars came out in their full beauty.

This only added more fury to the wind, piling up great drifts here and there, leaving the icy covered bricks exposed in others. This was an ideal night for a ten-blow alarm, from fire headquarters, and each company was ready to do their duty. As Captain Riddle and his crew of fire fighters from No. 11 Engine company sat by the telephone discussing the big fires that had happened on Christmas eve, instinct told them that this was just the kind of a night for a bad one. Taking warning from their feelings they did not linger long after 9 o'clock When they had all made their exit from the apparatus floor to the bedroom above, except the watchman, who stood guard through the stillness of the night, everything was quiet except the clock which was ticking away the time, and these brave men that are always ready to protect life and property were peacefully sleeping when the big gong on the wall began clanging out its deep bass notes which is everything but music to the ears of a fireman. Up they jumped and into their clothes, each trying to get through the pole hole first. And as the last man hit the pad at the bottom of the brass pole, the watchman called out, Box 147. This meant a straight run of one mile for No. 11. Each man was at his post in a second, the big 110-horsepower motor kicked off at the first touch of the starter, the doors were thrown open, and the boys of No. 11 passed over the door plate on this Christmas eve at the mercy of their faithful driver and a trusted captain. They had a clear track straight through to Box 147. And as the driver started his machine out, Captain Bill told him to cut her loose, and cut her loose he did. One square from the engine house Jack Lewis had the accelerator pushed down as far as the foot board would permit. Fifty miles an hour was what he was doing, when the Skipper's watchful eye noticed an object in their path straight ahead. He nudged the driver who nodded his head that he also saw the object, but could not stop or turn from the path he was in, as the streets were so slippery that the momentum of the machine would carry him straight ahead. Although he shut off the gas and applied the brakes as best he could, until the men on the back end knew something was wrong, as the machine was trying to slow down. As they looked ahead they also saw the object. By this time Captain Bill was on the running board leaning out over the front fender with an arm outstretched ready to grab the little bunch of flesh and blood which he had recognized a few seconds before as being a child in its night dress and was alone. All firemen saw the great peril the child was in when the three big lights of the motor shone full upon the little object in the snow, who had one hand lifted up as if to

STILL MORE ABOUT SPECIAL MEALS

Now, as you are forming the once-a-day-protein meal and ditto starch-meal habit, don't get discouraged if you find protein and starch in the same food, for nealy all foods contain more than one nutriment. And bread, for instance—whole wheat bread—contains all the nutrients and 12 of the 16 minerals found in our bodies. That's why bread is said to be a perfect food. And the reason why birds, animals and men can thrive on whole wheat flour and can't live on white flour, is that when the bran (which has but little value in itself) is taken away, it takes with it most of these minerals and all the vitamines.

And there were are again, these "vitaminerals" are as necessary to the integrity of the nutriments as the breath of life is to our bodies. Cut off the supply and you are fortunate if, by artificitl breathing, quickly administered, or "vitaminerals" substituted by supply other fods, you may get a partial restoration and, with care, be able to further perpetuate the God-given life. But why toy with nature? Why not say: "Get thee behind me white bread—Satan—Death," and stop this damnable prodigality of vitality which should be so sacred? If you eat wheat flour products and let the juice from your cooked vegetables run down the sink, and do short breathing, you are burying your talent as surely as in any other wasted powers.

But, to return to special meals: If your last meal contained bread and pointoes, with perhaps bacon and a glass of milk, then your next meal should be of fruits and lighter vegetables or vegetable soup, supplemented by a tea biscuit, or something very light.

Then your next should be a protein meal, which might be vegetable soup, eggs and fruit; or baked beans and a vegetable salad; or nuts as a staple with fruit and light vegetables; or baked fish and vegetable salad.

Then, another starch meal would be reasonable with toasted whole wheat bread and butter, with perhaps bacon and milk; or corn bread and butter, stewed beets or onions and ice cream; or green corn, cookies and custard. Then another meal of non-starchy vegetables and fruit, with perhaps vegetable soup.

The best we can do is planning and differentiating. In every starch meal we have some protein and in every protein meal we have more or less starch and fat. As, for instance, bread is considered a starch food, but it carries protein; beans are strong in protein, but they carry starch; cheese and lean meat are protein and fat and nuts are protein starch and fat.

Nature is a better mixer than we are and the less kinds of food we eat in the same meal the less trouble we will have in the Department of the Interior. The writer can testify from experience that this rotation of meals solved the problem, in his case, of hyperacidity and constipation of long standing—common ailments, and the bases of many diseases.

Starch meals and protein meals should be thought of as heavy meals, and one of each, with one meal of lighter, non-starchy vegetables and fruit are enough for people doing heavy work.

Persons of sedentary habits would be beteter off with one starch meal and two of the lighter sort, followed the next day by a protein meal and two lighter meals, and so on. This sort of rotation, with few kinds of food at each meal, but more of it, and frequent change, would soon solve the problem of overeating; less food would be wanted.

The more starchy foods, any one of which is sufficient basis for a starch meal, are: Irish and sweet potatoes, rice; tapioca, Hubbard squash and the various grains, including all breads, biscuit, etc., macaroni, corn starch and hominy. To confine oneself or one's family to one of these once a day is the surest way to cultivate the respect due the lighter vegetables and fruits. Then, next day, build your heavy meal around one of these protein foods: Meat or flesh of some kind, eggs, milk, cheese and nuts. Choose which of these shall be the basis of your one heavy meal, supplement it with lighter foods, and eat very little more protein or starch that day.

This may seem drastic, but it isn't. The vegetables and fruits I am talking about are what you see on the floor of your grocery, and there are plenty of them. In them you will find the invisible, ethereal "vitaminerals" that can be discovered only in the improved sparkle of your eyes and in your otherwise unexplainable activity. Go lightly on the so-called staple foods and do your "filling up" on fruits and vegetables.

A NOBLE CREED

Upon the monument erected to the late Senator Hoar, who represented the state of Massachusetts in the United States senate for 27 years, there is graven this declaration of his political faith:

"I believe in God, the living God; in the American people, a free and brave people, who do not bow the neck or bend the knee to any other, and who desire no other to bow the neck or bend the knee to them.

"I believe that liberty, good government, free institutions, cannot be given by any one people to any other, but must be wrought out by each for itself, slowly, painfully, in the process of years or centuries, as the oak adds ring to ring.

"I believe that whatever clouds may darken the horizon, the world is growing better; that today is better than yesterday, and tomorrow will be better than today."

He had had bad luck fishing and on his way home he entered the butcher shop and said to the dealer:

The city girl boarding in the country spoke to the farmer about the savage way in which the cow regarded her.

"Well," said the farmer, "it must be on account of the red waist you are wearing."

Dear me!" cried the girl. "Of course I know it's terribly out of style but I had no idea a country cow would notice it."

BACK-TRAILING ON OLD SCHOOL DAYS

COUNTRY SCHOOL DAYS.

By Mrs. C. F. Ditrick

School days, school days,
Dear old "Golden Rule" days.
Readin' and 'ritin and 'rithmetic
Taught to the tune of a hick'ry stick.

Who of the old McGuffey Readers' class doesn't hark back to the school days described in the above lines with a feeling of delight? Not that we would criticise present-day methods, but we cannot say the "old days" did not have their place, and gave to the present-day men and women worth while.

We sometimes wonder if the money we put into educational channels today, is as far reaching as formerly; if the student is appreciative of his advantages over the old days and tries to attain heights looming before him in this age. There is no more land space than formerly. The population is more dense, making it necessary to conserve school territory. No more necessity of walking, several miles perhaps, across neighboring farms where there was a possibility of some vicious animal being kept, or, if fortunate enough to have the use of a public highway with its center roadbed of mud and its sides of tangled briars and underbrush, we accepted conditions and were as enthused in our class competitions as we find students of today.

Occasionally a faithful family horse was pressed into service to carry, on its back; three or four children to school, then headed for home (no parking space for old "Dobbin" on the school grounds), the trusted "beast of burden" wended his way, leisurely oftimes to the worriment of the parents because of his late arrival.

Today, both urban and rural children, have, for the most part, hard surfaced highways and sidewalks, and if the distance is great a conveyance is provided by the corporation to haul children to and from school. Many students today drive the family "flivver" a few block and we wonder if it would not be more conducive to health and longevity were they to walk, briskly, to school.

The methods of teaching have also undergone a great change, from the "Chart Class," in which the A, B, C's were taught generally in alphatbetical order (an abomination) to the phonetic method of the present day. The older generation may view critically some of the methods of today and pronounce them "extreme," but the old-time methods should be abolished and put into the discard with other antiquities—a reminder of good things and a booster of the better.

However, let us keep a set of McGuffey readers on our book shelves, a perusal of them occasionally being a panacea for the "blues."

RECOLLECTIONS BY W. S.

"I wonden if ma will ever "cheese" it, Going 'round to the beer saloons to pray."

That's a couple of lines of a little slang song that was heard frequently on the streets of a country town not far from Columbus back in 1872-73. The occasion of the lines was because of what was known as the Women's Temperance Crusade, when bands of Christian women gathered together and sang temperance songs and hymns and prayed in front of the saloons of the town—and the saloons were many.

About that time, dressed up in a brand new pair of little brown overalls, coarse leather, copped-toed shoes with "whang" shoe strings, I first hiked off to school, where a tall, middle-aged woman with a coarse but kindly voice, greeted me and took the responsibility of seeing that my shoe strings were kept tied (one of my early troubles).

With several other "firsters," our stunt was to keep quiet, if we could, and stand in a row looking at a large card on the wall while the teacher, with a long pointer, taught us our A, B, C's, then after such words as ax, box, cat, dog, etc., the first reader. A tall, young man had an old-fashioned war drum and would beat time for us as we marched in and out of the room.

As a small school boy I remember seeing those praying women, I have spoken of above, succeed in getting one saloon keeper, not far from where I lived, to pour his booze into the gutter and quit business. But that was only one of the many saloons of those days. There was no licence on saloons and practically no restrictions, hence all anyone had to do was to buy a keg of beer and a couple of gallons of whisky and then open up a saloon in his own home—those were mostly called "doggeries." A girl or boy could go into most any of these places with a bucket or pitcher and get it filled by paying the small price. If a circus happened around, or at county fair time, in order to get to the grounds one usually had to "run the gauntlet" between several beer stands similar to our present pop or lemonade stands, and possibly hearing the "speeler's" "Here's your nice fresh lager beer; it will make your cheeks rosy and your nose posey." If I recollect right, I believe the present great organization, the Women's Christian Temperance Union, which has been such a great factor in helping to get our present temperance and prohibition laws, was the outcome of the crusade of those days.

But getting back to school. From the first reader we naturally went on to the second, third, etc., spending two years in each reader, that is one year in 2B, one year in 2A, etc., with promotions at the close of the school year in June. School hours were: The first bell rang at 8:30 and the last at 9 o'clock, when school took up and lasted till 12 o'clock (sun time). Then from 1:30 to 4 o'clock. We had a 15 minutes' recess during both the morning and afternoon sessions. And how the children would make that 15 minutes count. I may be mistaken, but it seems to me that the boys and girls of today do not indulge in as many good, wholesome outdoor games as they did in those days. "One-two-three" is what one kind of ball game was called. Nine boys occupied the field positions as at present, from catcher to right field, and three boys took turns at batting and running bases. As soon as a boy got put out, he went right field( last position) and the others advanced one position. At recess the first boy out of the door would yell "One-two-three, my first bat," and the rest would follow by yelling the other relative places till the game's quota was filled. They used to tell it on a certain boy who stuttered, that as soon as he got out the door, yelled "One-two-three, m-m-m-my—right field." He started the game, but the others beat him to all the places but the last one.

MY OLD COWHIDE BOOTS

By Top-o'Hill.

How oft I've recalled the times of my school days,
As those recollections present them to view;
Those songs that we sang, the games and the old plays,
The schoolmates, the teachers and janitor, too.

Those times that I'd hear, while in bed in the morning,
The clang of the first school bell as it rang,
How I'd jump for my clothes at so sudden a warning,
As my feet came out on the floor with a "bang."

I'd rush for a pan, and my face, I'd half wash it;
Combing my hair, surely met with refutes;
But, oh, what a pulling and kicking and crying
While trying to pull on my old cowhide boots.

Those lopsided boots, how well I remember,
The toes were collapsed—I'd got 'em that way.
They were new in the fall—but oh, 'bout December
They'd suffered by going to school every day.

When snow was knee deep, or when ice we called "rubber"
Gave way, and through to the bottom I'd go,
Those boots, smeared with mud on outside all over,
While the water inside would "thrill" me, I know.

At night the wood bootjack—one foot I'd plant on it,
Then pull at the other, I'd try and I'd stall,
But when it came off, and a bunch of hide with it,
Oh, what a relief—I still can recall.

With a chunk of hot tallow sometimes I would grease 'em
And set them to dry, by the stove, on a stool.
But a day or so's wearing would hardness increase them,
The old cowhide boots that I wore to the school.

A number of people, including a couple of city traffic cops, had watched a man heating rivets at the new Nell house structure and throwing them with accuracy up into the air to be caught by an iron worker who was doining the riveting. Much comment had taken place on the skill of the man, but Al Gaulke, traffic cop at State and High streets, took the prize by stating that he saw the man throw a red hot rivet and before it go there the dinner bell rang and the riveter at the top dropped his tools and "dug out," but the rivet went right up to its place and entered the hole in the structural iron without the assistance of the worker.

On a one-way street in Cincinnati a traffic cop stopped a Jew, who was driving his machine in the wrong direction, and asked him if he did not know that was a one-way-street, when the Jew replied, "Oh, yes, I know, but I'm only driving my machine one way."

The water of the Dead Sea is nearly twenty-five per cent salt.

SHOPPING AND MAILING HINTS

Observing the Following Suggestions Will Facilitate Delivery Christmas Mail.

Do your Christmas shopping early. And while you are doing this do not forget to place your packages in the mail early also. Thousands upon of packages of Christmas gifts are sent through the mails each year, and to insure the best of service they should be gotten into the mail as soon as possible, relieving the last-minute congestion of the postal stations.

All parcels should be securely wrapped or packed in order that they may reach their destination in good condition. In wrapping ordinary parcels, use strong paper and heavy twine.

Fragile articles, easily broken or crushed, should be crated or securely wrapped, using liberal quantities of excelsior or like material in, around and between the articles and outside container. Be careful to pack glassware, fragile toys and crockery in such a manner as to prevent the escape of articles or pieces if broken in transit.

Ordinary boxes of cigars should be packed in a manner to prevevnt damage by shock or jar. Wrap in corrugated pasteboard or similar material.

All articles easily broken should be marked "fragile."

Any articles likely to spoil should be marked "perishable," using a special delivery stamp to expedite delivery.

Above all, addresses should be complete with house number and name of street, postoffice box or rural number, typed or plainly written in ink. A return card should be placed in the upper left hand corner of every piece of mail. A copy of the address should be enclosed in the parcel.

No parcel may be more than 84 inches in length and girth combined. For delivery locally and in the first, second and third zones, 70 pounds is the maximum weight; in all other zones 50 pounds.

Christmas gifts and cards addressed to points within one day's travel should be mailed not later than Dec. 20; within two days' travel, not later than Dec. 18; within three day's travel not later than Dec. 16; for more distant points not later than Dec. 14. ## COMMUNITY FUND REACHES GOAL

$656,984.01 Subscribed to Welfare Chest by Columbus Residents.

The Columbus community fund has gone over the top and the 46 social agencies participating in this fund are again assured of sufficient money to carry on their welfare work for the coming year.

This announcement was made from the fund headquarters at 186 East Broad street last Saturday noon. The goal set was for $656,000. At the close of the campaign Friday, Nov. 21, a total of $640,590 had been raised, and since that time pledges amounting to $16,334.01 have come in, making the total subscription $656,984.01.

A shrinkage is expected by officials administering the fund, due to the duplication of the auditing committee's checkup during the campaign, but it is expected this will be made up by any contributions that may come in in the next few weeks.

Many Hilltop men participated in this campaign as solicitors and they are to be congratulated on their excellent work and success in boosting this fund to the desired goal.

The marriage of Miss Opal Southworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Southworth, 170 Clarendon avenue, to Mr. John L. Sullivan, Williamsport, Pa., was solemnized Monday evening at the parsonage of St. Aloysius church with the pastor, Rev. Father R. E. Schwartz, officiating.

The bride was attended by Miss Julia Bice as maid of honor and Mr. Robert Kline was best man. A dinner and informal reception was held for 30 guests at the home of the bride's parents, and late the same evening Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan left for an eastern trip. They will spend the winter in New York.

SMILING AMOS.

It used to be told, writes a contributor to the Youth's Companion, of a certain wealthy and benevolent Quaker business man, as shrewd as he was kindly, that in the store where he served his apprenticeship to trade, his nickname among his fellow clerks was "Smiling Amos." He first drew the special notice of his employer and earned the name through his success in obtaining the payment of an account several years overdue; everybody else had tried vainly to collect it.

The most annoying part of it was that the delinquent could pay if he chose to; he simply did not choose. He liked to defer parting with his money as long as possible. At last, after the patience and temper of all the other employees and the head of the firm himself had been exhausted, Amos, the newest and youngest clerk, was sent to try his hand.

He called upon the parsimonious gentleman, who was as polite as he was parsimonious—a trait that made it even harder to deal with him than if he had been brusque. He never refused to pay; he was always ready and eager. He would pay—soon—very soon—at any time except that particular moment when he never happened to have a sufficient sum available.

He greeted young Amos with his usual courtesy, explained why it was impossible to pay him then and there and added casually, "You need not trouble yourself about the matter, young man; I will make it all right. I will drop in at the store within a few days at the utmost. Make yourself quite easy."

Smiling Amos smiled ingenuously. "Nay, Friend Smith," he expostulated. "I could not let thee do that. The matter has been placede in my charge, and thee will see it would not be proper that I, who am young and of small importance, should compel a man of thy years and standing to come himself to bring a few dollars to lay in my hands. But I pass thy house six times a day to and from my meals, so that thee need not fear thee is putting me to the slightest inconvenience if I step in to see if thee is ready with the money. That I will do indeed, Friend Smith. I shall find it a pleasure to oblige thee."

There was a pause while Amos smiled and Friend Smith did not. Then Smith turned sharply to his bookkeeper. "Pay this confounded smiling Quaker! Pay him now!" he exploded. "I don't want to hit a fellow who's politer than I am and a man of peace who can't fight, but if he should smile at me six times a day for the next six months, I might!"

After the regular meeting of Robert Morris Chapter, No. 872, Order of Eastern Star, last evening a parcel post party was held by the social club. A jitney lunch was also served.

VOLUNTEERS FEED 150 HOMELESS MEN

Also Distribute More Than 200 Baskets of Food Thanksgiving Day.

More than 200 baskets were supplied and 150 homeless men were given a bounteous dinner by the Volunteers of America on Thanksgiving day.

Many homeless men made the fact apparent that the unemployment situation is very acute, as many of the men were without sufficient clothing, overcoats and shoes, and the only way the institution can supply these demands is by appealing to the public for cast-off garments. The articles that would be of much use now are in the closets of home in the city, and will be given out at spring housecleaning time when they are not so badly needed as at present.

The giving of these articles now would do much good. Any calls for the donations of such articles will be promptly attended to by calling M. 1388 or Citz. 3592. Major and Mrs. Collins are very grateful to their many friends for their hearty co-operation in helping to prepare baskets and distributing them to the needy people of the city.

Recipes

DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE.

Half cup butter or substitute, 2 cups brown sugar, 2 eggs, 2¼ cups good cake flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup sour milk, ½ cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon soda, 1½ squares chocolate, melted or ½ cup cocoa), 1 teaspoon vanilla (pure), 1 teaspoon baking powder.

Method: Cream butter, add 1 cup sugar gradually; creaming mixture thoroughly. Beat eggs until light, add the other cup of sugar to the eggs, mixing well. Add this egg mixture to the creamed butter and sugar and beat hard. Sift flour once, measure, add salt and baking powder and sift three times. Then add to the first mixture alternating with the sour milk, beating batter hard after each addition of flour and milk. Into the boiling water stir the soda and the melted chocolate or cocoa, and beat into the cake mixture. Add vanilla. Bake in three small or two large layers in a moderate oven. Spread a white icing between the layers and on top and sides of cake.

RICE CUSTARD PIE.

Mix 2 cups boiled rice, 1½ cups top milk, 2 egg yolks slightly beaten, ½ cup sugar, and grated rind of a lemon. Line pie plate with plain pastry, bake 10 minutes, fill with rice custard and bake 35 minutes or until custard is firm. Make a frosting of 1 cup confectioners' sugar and one tablespoon water, add ¼ teaspoon lemon extract and spread on top of the cool pie. Decorate with fine stripes of angelica or citron to represent stems and leaves, and halves of candied cherries cut to look like flowers.

WOULD ENJOIN GAS STATION

School Board Alleges Gas Station is Traffic Menace to School Children.

Through City attorney Leach, the board of education last Friday filed a petition in common pleas court seeking a restraining order to prevent the Capital City Oil Co. from operating a gasoline filling station at the southeast corner of Sullivant and Richardson avenue.

The petition alleges that the filling station creates a traffic menace to almost two-thirds of the school children who attend John Burroughs school and is also a nuisance and an injury to the school building.

This affair was first taken up by residents and patrons of the John Burroughs school, who protested, to council, the erection of a filling station in such close proximity to the school, and succeeded in having an ordinance passed prohibiting the erection of a filling station within 500 feet of any school. However, this action was not retroactive and did not apply to the erection of this particular filling station.

T'was midnight in the barnyard
And all the sheep were there
Partaking of their mid-day meal
And growing underwear.

The testimony of the world is in favor of the worth of the Christian Religion.

The Christian Religion is valuable if there is no hereafter. In view of the fact that there is a hereafter, the Christian Religion is invaluable.

M. E. PARSONAGE IMPROVEMENTS

Ladies' Aid Society Act as Hostess to Members and Friends of Glenwood.

We have heard a great deal this fall about the Homes Beautiful and how this idea is helping to create a better spirit in every sense of the word. Anything that betters one's home, betters the community in which it is located, and so the influence reaches out.

On Friday afternoon and evening of Nov. 21, the Glenwood Ladies' Aid society acted as hostess to members and friends of the church, who wished to come and see the Parsonage Beautiful.

The parsonage is not a new house, but after being newly decorated throughout, the woodwork enameled, several new pieces of furniture and new rugs, it presents a pleasing appearance.

The rooms express character, dignity and charm and as the guests passed from one room to another, all were most enthusiastic in their praise. The house was painted last summer, so now it presents an appearance of which the Glenwood people are justly proud. Much credit is due the parsonage committee, Mesdames Six, Elliott and Burkett, also Mrs. Lowrie, president of the Ladies' Aid society, as well as the pastor and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Barber, who have been untiring in their efforts to bring about this much needed improvement.

On December 12th the ladies of Glenwood church will have a Christmas party, with luncheon at noon, at the church. Any lady wishing to make reservations please call Mrs. Lowrie, H. T. 3281-W.

Pythian Sisters of Westwood Temple will have a bake sale and bazaar Saturday, Dec. 6, at Cussins & Hartsough's store. All kinds of baking and Christmas things for sale.

Dec. 14 is the dedication of the Highland Avenue Friends' church. Notice next week's Record for details.

On Friday, Dec. 5, all the Epworth Leagues of Columbus district are to meet at Westerville, Ohio, for their mid-winter rally. The members of Glenwood league will meet at the church at 6:15. Automobiles have been provided and it is hoped that the leaguers will attend in large numbers. Come on, Glenwood, let's go "On to Westerville" full strong.

TO GIVE 2ND CHILD WELFARE LECTURE

The second of the series of Child Welfare lectures by Dr. H. P. Rauch, under the auspices of the Hilltop Child Conservation league will be given Monday, Dec. 8, at the laboratory of the State Bureau of Juvenile Research.

The remaining lectures, under the auspices of this league, will be given on Jan. 6 and Feb. 9. All those interested in child welfare are urged to attend these lectures, as they are both interesting and beneficial.

A roast beef supper will be given by the Ladies' Aid of Burgess Avenue U. B. church Thursday evening, Dec. 11. It will be served in the dining room of the church from 5 to 8 o'clock. Adults 35c; children under 10, 25c.

HIGHLAND P.-T. A. MEETS TONIGHT

Program of Unusual Interest—Dr. Rauch Will Speak at Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Highland Parent-Teacher association will be held Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the portable in the school yard. It is hoped that every member and everyone interested in the welfare of this association will attend this meeting as there will be features of unusual interest.

The general subject of the meeting is "Home and School Treatment of Abnormal Children," and Dr. Rauch of the Juvenile Research Bureau will be the principal speaker of the evening. This assures a most interesting and instructive talk and discussion on a vital subject.

Another feature of the evening will be a short play put on by the 8A Dramatic class, and there will also be a short social hour enjoyed after the meeting.

The King's Heralds of Glenwood M. E. church will hold their regular business meeting and Christmas party in the church basement, Thursday, Dec. 11, at 3:30 p. m.

SHELTER HOUSE IS A BUSY PLACE

Gymnasium Classes for Both Men and Women—Kindergarten for Children.

That the people of the Hilltop are alive and wide awake to the community spirit is demonstrated by activities at Glenwood shelter house. Every evening of the week every hour is taken by classes and teams, composed mostly of residents of the Hilltop, in recreational activities, making this place a veritable bee hive of activity.

On Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evening, West High school uses Glenwood shelter house for practice with its basket ball teams.

On Monday evening Mrs. Farrar has gym classes for women which occupy the entire evening hours from 8 to 10 o'clock. The department of recreation in this connection stressing the activities of the adult women. Likewise on Wednesday evening classes for women are held by Mrs. Farrar, and it is the intention that in a short time a joint class of both men and women will be held.

With a program conservative, but interesting, in view of the promotion of community spirit, and with this end in view, a notice will be published in this paper of the visits of Mr. Teeters of the American Playground association, who is working in conjunction with the various recreation center heads. It is Mr. Teeters' aim to promote community spirit through the promotion of playlets and various activities of the community to be shortly instigated.

In addition to this notice an announcement through the Hilltop churches and The Record will be made in the near future in more detail.

Mrs. Farrar also conducts a kindergarten school at the shelter house each morning of the week excepting Saturday mornings and the parents of children of eligible age are asked to interest them in this activity.

Next week we will publish a detailed schedule of all classes active at the shelter house and the hours for each.

LIBRARY NOTES

The Library has now 2650 members. Last Monday 193 books were issued, besides the calls for reference works. We need books, hundreds of them, to supply the growing demand of our library. Books for adults, for wide awake boys and girls, and for young children. Our young people in their early teens are driven to read books from the adult shelves because they have read practically everything in the juvenile department.

Establishing the library is the most difficult part and that is over. The library is here. We hope you will help us find the money to supply the books, the right kind, for all ages and classes.

Recently three books have been added to the pay shelf:

Burroughs—Tarzan and the Ant Men.
Widdemer—Charis Sees It Through.
Waller—Deep in the Hearts of Men.

The following books have also been placed at your disposal:

Burnett—T. Tembarom.
Swinnerton—September.
Brown—The Lonesomest Doll.
Perkins—The Japanese Twins.
Perkins—The Dutch Twins.
Perkins—The Irish Twins.
Gillibrand—J. Cole.
Connor—The Man From Glengarry.
Farnol—The Broad Highway.
Morgan-de-Groot—Gladys.

The principal and teachers of West Broad Street school desire to thank parents and children for the exceedingly liberal donation of food and clothing at Thanksgiving time. Miss Fern Ryerson's school, the 4A-B, brought the highest amount, $10.12.

Mrs. Mangan's class, 5A-B, has had the P.-T. A. banner for two months, for having the largest representation of parents at the meetings. This school has also kept the picture for having the largest percent of depositors in the Thrift bank.

The program, entitled "Music Toyland," will consist entirely of interesting light character pieces and the artist will give short talks and stories about the various numbers. Mr. Davidson is the first Columbus artist to give programs of this nature and this is his most original effort along this line of work. He is doing this altruistic work in the various sections of the city, when not too busily engaged in out-of-town concerts, for the cultural value as well as the delight and happiness it brings to his youthful audiences.

Mr. Davidson was once a pupil of the great Marcian Thalberg, Swiss-Russian virtuoso, and graduated from the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music in 1917 with honors. Since then he has concertized extensively, having given more than 50 professional recitals in Columbus alone in the past few years.

INVESTITURE IS DEMONSTRATED

Troop 21 Hosts at Meeting of Scout Executives of City Thursday Evening.

What proved to be the largest and one of the most enthusiastic meetings of Scout leaders ever held in this city was the occasion of the monthly meeting of Scout leaders held at Hoge Memorial church-house last Thursday evening when 104 representatives of Scouting were present to witness the investiture of a tenderfoot as put on by Boy Scout Troop 21, whose headquarters are at this church.

Numbered among the Scout representatives were Scoutmasters, patrol leaders, older scouts who assist the scoutmasters and officials of the Boy Scouts in Columbus. The investiture demonstrated was that used by Troop 21, of which R. C. Kadel, scoutmaster of this troop, is the author, and was very impressive in its ceremony.

Rev. R. E. Shields addressed the meeting on "Importance of First Impressions of a Tenderfoot."

E. S. Burdell explained the Rover Scout idea, which is used in England and which is being introduced into this country. The Rover Scouts are composed of boys of 17 years of age and over.

The orchestra of Troop 18 of Glenwood church and the Glee club of Troop No. 0 of St. Aloysius church entertained with songs and music.

Among the most novel exhibits of the meeting was the demonstration of the trek-cart of Troop 21, which was constructed by the boys of this troop and which is indeed an ingenious affair and is used by the troop in transporting their baggage on long hiking and camping trips.

This cart is so arranged that when taken apart, which can be done very quickly, owing to its construction, the canopy serves as the sleeping quarters for the scoutmaster. The bottom of the cart, which has folding legs, is taken out and serves as a table; the sides, which also have folding legs, serves as benches. This leaves the frame intact, which is used in this form to haul wood for the camp fire. This cart is an original idea with Troop 21 and they are justly proud of it.

Troop 21 has been in existence for a number of years and at present there are openings for a few more boys to fill out a patrol.

close, her voice was weak, and her stride was unsteady, but Lewis made out her only words, above the hum of his motor, as he caught her by the arm. "Where is my boy?"

Jack led her to the police ambulance just as Big Bill Riddle came up. He, too, was sure this was the mother of this little charge, as he told her that her child was safe at the children's hospital. She listened to the good news that little Joe was not hurt, then with a smile on her cold lips, she began to chill and fell forward into the arms of Captain Riddle.

As he raised her up to place her in the big black ambulance, his face came close to hers, as he had to stoop to get through the door. Then he looked into the cold white face. He could not remember ever seeing anything that looked half so beautiful as did this wonderful little mother who had used up every ounce of her vitality to find her boy.

As the ambulance driver helped Cap place her on the cot, he again felt her warm breath against his face. This gave him such a thrill that he did not want to let loose of her. But duty came first, and he ordered the driver to take her to the same hospital that he took the boy earlier in the night, that the two may be re-united, when she became conscious.

When big Bill went back to his company to tell them to take up and go home, as the fire was all out, the news had spread that a young widow had fainted in his arms (and that he did not want to let loose of her when it came time to break away.)

This was the first he knew that she was a widow, although this was glad news to his ears. He did not take any part in the little joke until the chief, who was a good friend of Mrs. Dean's came over to where they were putting the frozen hose back in the wagon as best they could, grabbed Cap by the hand, and almost shook his arm off to show his appreciation of the noble rescue that Captain Riddle had made, in picking up this lad under such conditions, and if his friendship was worth anything to Helen Dean, he would see how little Joe would like to have a captain to call Dad.

This brought a laugh from all the men. Cap stepped up and took his place on the seat, gave orders to go home as he turned and said to the chief: "Worse things than that have happened."

The boys by that time knew that big Bill had fallen for a woman. All the way back they did not notice the zero weather, as they poked fun at their good-natured leader, and all enjoyed the sport. After the machine was backed into the house the wet hose were taken off and replaced with the same amount of dry, which is kept in the hose tower, the pump was given the once over and found in good working order. With all things ready for the next run, the man made a hasty retreat to the locker room where they exchanged their wet clothes for dry ones, washed and were ready to go to their first meal on Christmas morning and see their little ones gather around the Christmas tree and with great joy gather up the presents that Santa Claus had left for them on Christmas eve.

As the men came back, one by one, from their meals and told of how their little ones' hearts rang out with joy as they got the first glimpse of the Christmas tree, and the toys that were placed around it, the skipper's eyes grew brighter, for he had awakened from a long dream. He saw things now as they had never appeared to him before. He had saved little Joe from sure death. Why should he not claim him? Joe's dad had died a hero at Cedan, France, where the Yanks had shown their greatest bravery, fought their hardest, and lost many of their noble warriors. Had not he, Captain Bill Riddle, of No. 11 Engine company been a hero at many big fires? He had gone into burning buildings when he knew there was a chance to rescue someone, when his own comrades down in their own hears would say, good-bye, to the skipper.

THE FIREMAN'S CHRISTMAS EVE

By ISAAC L. KIDD
38 N. Warren Ave.

Out in the big drifts Mrs. Dean leaped and bounded as though she was a wild deer being chased by a pack of hungry wolves, her long black hair was waving in the air as she trailed this motor down the street at a speed beyond the endurance of anything but a mother's love to force her. Many an artist would have given his all, to get a glimpse of this wonderful specimen of womanhood that was racing through the snow trying to overtake those that held the only evidence of her lost child. Again this wild hunt was telling on her nerves, she was slowing down, she knew she was giving out, but she must keep on going. Many times this little mother, whose nerves were taxed far beyond their strength, would stumble and fall in the deep snow, only to be revived by its coldness. A mother's love urged her on until she came of a sudden upon the big motor truck that was standing out against a background of snow which made it look like a great monster of evil.

Jack Lewis saw her coming and he knew it must be the mother of the little child that their big motor pump had come so near crushing out his life, on their way to the fire. As she came

The day of small home building is here!

HOW long have you been paying rent? Let's take as an example a man who pays $50 a month rent, for say, eighteen years. In that time he will have paid out $10,800 in rent. The interest on this amount comes to $5,832. At the end of eighteen years he has paid in rent and interest $16 632 and doesn't own a blade of grass or a nail. The same man could have bought a home for $5,000, financed it, paid it out in eighteen years, for over $3,000 less than what he paid on the rental basis—and would have the home to show for his efforts.

After you have a home of your own, you find as the years go by that you have a lot more in it than just the building materials. You have comfort and convenience; you have memories and happiness. Your children have something real to look back to, and to inspire them, after they grow up.

Your dealer can help you. He knows the building material business; he knows conditions, and he can advise you all along the line—and help you save money. Get his advice.

GERMAN AND SWISS CHRISTMAS CAKES

The following recipes, appropriate for the Christmas and holiday season, were furnished to us by a prominent lady of the Hilltop, to whom we are very much indebted for her kindly interest in this column. These recipes have been in her family for the past 40 years, have been tested and can be recommended to the practical housewife in her preparations for the holiday baking.

VANILLA WAFERS

One pound pulverized sugar, 6 eggs, beat together until very light, or about one-half hour; place in pan of hot water and stir until the mixture is warmb, then place in pan of cold water until cold; add two small teaspoons of vanilla, a pinch of salt and flour enough to make batter stiff enough to drop from a spoon; drop on to greased pans, leaving room to spread, and let stand over night. In the morning bake to a very light brown.

WHITE PEPPER NUTS

Two pounds powdered sugar, 8 eggs, 2 tablespoons citron (chopped fine), ¾ cup almonds (chopped fine), two teaspoons cinnamon, 2 teaspoons cloves, 1 grated nutmeg, rind of one lemon (grated). Beat one hour, then stiffen with flour containing ¼ teaspoon of baking ammonia. Make dough rather stiff, roll dough to ¼ inch, cut in cakes about as large as a nickel. Let stand over night in pans. In the morning turn each one over and set it down in the same place. Bake.

SWISS GRASS WORM CAKE
(Nice for children)

Add a tablespoonful of ground cinnamon to 1½ cups of sugar and blend with ½ cup of butter. To this add 4 thoroughly beaten eggs and beat all together. Turn this mixture very gradually into a bowl of flour, working the flour into the batter until it becames a dough that can be rolled. Roll in a sheet one-half inch thick and cut in strips, as wide as thick and four inches long. Drop a few at a time into hot fat and fry brown. When cold, pack in crock. Will keep for a long time.

MODEL TROOP FOR HIGHLAND

Scout Headquarters and Board of Education Co-operate in Organizing Troop.

A model Scout troop is to be organized by Scout headquarters in co-operation with the board of education, and the Hilltop has been selected as the location of the troop. It will meet in Highland Avenue school and will be a laboratory for scouting and a model with which to demonstrate to scoutmasters various types of scouting methods.

The Hilltop has been carefully combed for the best possible boy material with which to build this troop, and A. W. Elliott of Scout headquarters and of Highland school, together with several other teachers of Highland will be in charge as scoutmasters. At the first meeting held Tuesday evening about 15 boys were present, and a good start was made. This troup will add another strong link to the scouting front of the Hilltop.

This means every boy and girl banking in the school savings bank every Tuesday morning, the official "bank day."

SOCIAL AND PARTY EVENTS

The Occident Embroidery club met at the home of Mrs. Lena Elliott, West Broad street, on the evening of Dec. 12 for their semi-monthly meeting. The house was tastefully decorated with the emblems of Yuletide, and the dainty refreshments were in keeping to carry out the thought that Christmas would soon be here. The following members were present to partake of the generous hospitality: Mrs. J. W. Burkett, Mrs. A. Elliott, Mrs. George Goulding, Mrs. Herbert Gibson, Mrs. Forney C. Jones, Mrs. W. J. Jones, Mrs. Don Latham, Mrs. J. A. Moore, Mrs. C. W. Walton, Mrs. C. V. Williams, Miss Winifred Mott, Miss Nona Wenger. Two little misses were guests also, Zie Orego and Lucille Burkett. A most delightful time was enjoyed by the members of the Woman's Democratic club of the Eleventh ward Monday evening when they met at the home of Mrs. W. L. Millikin, 55 South Warren avenue, to take part in a pot-luck dinner and Christmas party. The hostess had prepared the dining room, where the table was loaded with everything good to eat. The members then retired to the dining room, each a member of the serve yourself committee, where justice was given the bounteous repast.

A short business meeting followed, at which time four new members were added to the membership. At this time it was decided that every third meeting would be a pot-luck dinner.

Upon the conclusion of the business meeting, the hostess informed her guests that Santa had been there and left a package for each one—each package containing a useful gift and lots of fun.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Milton Rinehart, 275 North Oakley avenue, Jan. 12.

On Thursday evening Mrs. Paul R. Koons entertained 12 friends with a dinner party honoring Miss Thelma Kingery.

Mrs. L. O. Pearch was hostess to the Sew-So club at her home, 26 North Burgess avenue, Wednesday evening. A most enjoyable feature of the evening was the Christmas grab bag. At this time baskets will be filled and distributed.

NEW ADDITION IS NEAR COMPLETION

West Broad School Expects to Occupy New Rooms at Beginning of Next Term.

It is expected that the new rooms at West Broad Street school will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the new term. Teachers and pupils are exceedingly eager to be permanently placed in their rooms. Half-day schools will be entirely eliminated, except the kindergarten classes. These will continue as at present, with two classes each day. Miss Elizabeth Samuels, the kindergarten supervisor, is exceedingly pleased with the bright prospect now opening for the West Broad Street kindergarten.

WEST ENTERTAINS FOOTBALL TEAM

Minstrel Show, Dance and Supper Were Features of Evening's Entertainment.

Seniors of West High schools were hosts at the annual football party given Friday evening at West High school in honor of the 1924 football team. A minstrel show, a dance and a dinner served in the school cafeteria provided a varied program for the guests.

Preparation for the minstrel show were under the supervision of H. E. Hutchinson, director of music at the school. Joseph Linville was the interlocutor and Clarence Ghent, Walter Kidd, Walter Gibson and Owen Reel re end men.

Many special musical numbers featured the minstreal show. A quartet composed of Chester Witherspoon, William Cussins, Harold Bright and George Hardy furnished several numbers, while solos were given by Ghent on the trombone and Gibson on the baritone saxophone. Vocal soloists were Hardy, tenor, and Kidd, comedy song specialists.

Miss Ruth Pearch, the only female member of the cast, acted as accompanist. The dance followed immediately after the termination of the minstrel show, the music for which was furnished by Eldon Brown, a member of last year's graduating class at West, and his orchestra.

The supper was served in the cafeteria under the supervision of the domestic science department.

The event was the first senior class function of the year, and all those participating in the entertainment of the football men were members of the class.

WESTWOOD LODGE ELECTS OFFICERS

Will Enter Team in Recently Formed Basket Ball League.

The following men were elected to fill the various offices of Westwood lodge No. 770, K. of P., and will be installed the first Thursday evening in January: G. T. Bond, chancellor commander; C. A. Birle, vice chancellor; H. E. Wheeler, prelate; W. P. Oliver, master of work; C. W. Ruffing, keeper of records and seal; I. E. Sebring, master of finance; D. G. Lear, master of exchequer; Phil Cunningham, master at arms; G. A. Good, inner guard; A. D. Miller, outer guard; H. A. Lear, trustee for three years; M. Gruesser, property trustee; Claud Moss, captain of drill team. John W. Miller and R. D. Hastings were elected representatives to grand lodge, which meets in Marietta in September.

Westwood has signified its intention of entering the recently formed K. of P. basket ball league, which has been organized under the supervision of the city recreation department. Ham Roebuck of Westwood was chosen president of the league; J. C. Kocker of Joe Dowdall, vice president, and Charles Seddon of the city recreation department, secretary.

As present arrangements stand the league will be composed of six teams representing the following K. of P. lodges: Coil, Ellenwood, Westwood, Champion, Menter and Joe Dowdall. However, it is probable that two more teams may enter, making it an eight-team league. To be eligible to play in this league a man must be a member in good standing in the lodge on whose teams he plays.

The league season will open January 5 and all games will be played at the Olentangy school, corner of Delaware and Poplar avenues.

Westwood has also signified its intention to enter a knight rank team in the county contest for honors in exemplifying the knight rank work. This is a contest of all the lodges in the county, each team putting on the work at some lodge in the county other than their own.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

ILLNESS FATAL TO MRS. ALICE ULREY

Was President of Robert E. Lee Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy.

In the death of Mrs. Alice Rogers Ulrey, wife of Attorney D. B. Ulrey, at her home, 56 South Warren avenue, Dec. 10, the Hilltop loses one of its most prominent and influential citizens.

Mrs. Ulrey, who previously lived in Cleveland, Tenn., was a graduate of Centenary Female college. She was married to D. B. Ulrey in 1893. They lived at 49 Avondale avenue during the flood of 1913, and lost a large part of their household possessions at that time, after which the family moved to 56 South Warren avenue.

Mrs. Ulrey was president of Robert E. Lee chapter, U. D. C., for which organization she was a faithful and loyal worker, having taken an active part for a number of years past in that organization's annual memorial services at Camp Chase cemetery. She was also a member of the Bay Viey Literary club, the Pythian Sisters, R. F. King Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, and of Glenwood M. E. church.

Mrs. Ulrey's illness was of long duration, which was patiently borne by her until her death, which occurred Dec. 10.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. James G. Bennett; a granddaughter; a sister, Miss Callie Rogers, and a brother, T. L. Rogers of Cleveland, Tenn.

The funeral services were held at the residence on Saturday, Dec. 13. Interment was made in Green Lawn cemetery.

CHRISTMAS

The Christmas spirit is in the air,
The breezes waft it everywhere,
The mistletoe and holly wreaths,
Poinsettas red with velvety leaves.
Pine trees standing around on blocks
To be laden with candy in little socks,
And popcodn balls and popcorn strings,
Apples and cakes and other things
Like candy canes painted white and red,
A baby doll with a curly head,
A "jack-in-the-box" and candy toys,
To cheer the hearts of girls and boys.

The Christmas spirit is in the air,
The breezes waft it everywhere.
Christmas bells with gladness ring
Sweet carols to the new born King.
The Christ child that in the manger lay,
Is with us on this Christmas day.
Sweet peace He brings to you and me.
As when He calmed the waves on Galilee.
If we trust in Him and do His will
He will say to us, "Peace be still."
Peace on earth, good will to men,
Lord grant this we pray. Amen.

Mabel Marshall.

THE FIREMAN'S CHRISTMAS EVE

By ISAAC L. KIDD
38 N. Warren Ave.

After a few minutes Riddle would come staggering out of the smoke and flame with a suffocated soul that would have died had not Bill Riddle risked his own life to save others that are less fortunate than he.

At 9 o'clock that Christmas morning a messenger boy walked into the engine house and asked for Captain Riddle, who was sitting at his desk, making out his daily report.

Hearing his name mentioned he looked up to see who wanted him. His heart came near turning a flip-flop when the messenger boy handed him a neatly penned envelope addressed to himself. It was the stationery from the hospital to which he had sent little Joe and his mother a few hours before. As he tore open the envelope he was very nervous, but managed to hold on to its contents, which were penned in a neat hand, and read:

"Have been told of your wonderful bravery and rescue of my little boy, friend of our family.

"Would like to have you call at the hospital this morning, to thank you for your noble deeds and your wonderful bravery in rescuing little Joe."

This put a thrill into Captain Riddle that sounded on every little nerve that lead to his heart. A greater gift could not have been given him this Christmas day, than these few words, penned by that pale-faced little woman whom he held in his arms last night as she fainted after he had told her that little Joe was safe at the children's hospital.

Riddle, very anxious to get away, hurried to his locker room, where he dressed in his best uniform, polished up the two bugles that were on his cap as the insignia of his office, and in a few minutes was on his way to meet Mrs. Dean, or little Joe, he did not know which, but he was hoping that the former was more interested than the latter. Although he loved children, he could win their affection any time by telling them stories of the big fire engine, and how it raced through the deserted streets at the midnight hour, chasing the bob-goblins back to their castles in the sky.

The love that was filling his heart to overflowing was a different love and must be won in a different way. It must be won through honesty and fairness and this was Captain Riddle's motto.

As he walked into the hospital the big oak doors swung shut behind him. For the first time in his life his nerves began to snap, one at a time, until he felt himself getting so weak that his knees were refusing to stand up under this terrible strain, and his breath could not get below his Adam's apple. Just then a pleasant faced little nurse tapped him on the shoulder, and he came ner dying on the spot. He thought the four walls of this big hospital had caved in on him, and he was in the basement with thousands of tons of debris piled over him. But as he saw the lady dressed in the attire of a nurse, his sense of reason came back to him while he made apologies for acting like an over-grown boy. Although he did not tell her that he was having an acute attack of heart failure, she guessed the same, and came to his rescue by asking him if there was a fire in the building. Mentioning his life work brought Bill back to earth, and he was once more Captain Bill Riddle, the fireman.

He assured her that there was no danger of a fire and that he was there to find a Mrs. Dean, who had been brought to the hospital last night. He had saved her child from sure death and he was interested in both the mother and son in regard to their condition.

The nurse showed him to room 16 on the second floor, where Helen and little Joe were both recuperating ffrom their experience on Christmas eve. As Captain Bill stepped into room 16 he looked straight into the big brown eyes of Helen Dean, who was sitting braced up in her bed, with white linen acting as a background. This gave her a touch of beauty that no artist can paint. Right then and there Riddle's heart was lost forever and his love was not in vain. As they shook hands, the skipper could see far into those big brown eyes, and he believed that they meant more than just friendship, as she thanked him many times for his wonderful rescue of little Joe. She assured him that she would never forget his kindness. Just then little Joe came up and wanted to tell the captain how cold it was out in the snow last night, when a big fire engine almost ran him down. This only delayed the thoughts that must some day be put into words.

As Riddle was leaving the sick room he promised Mrs. Dean and Joe that he would visit them quite often, which he did, and always brought her a lovely bouquet of flowers. Now as Mrs. Dean is back home again, Captain Riddle is a regular caller at the Dean home on his days off. The boys of No. 11 are getting worried because he will not tell them just when it is going to happen. They want to give a big banquet in honor of the bride and groom, and little Joe. The only satisfaction they get out of the big, good-natured captain, was that things of great importance, as a rule, happen so—and the boys all shouted together.

SOCIAL AND PARTY EVENTS

The next regular meeting of the Hilltop Circle of the Child Conservation league will be a social meeting for the member and their families at the home of Mrs. Frank Cosler, 926 Ellsworth avenue, at 6:30 p. m. There was a splendid attendance at the second of the series of lectures which are being delivered by Dr. R. F. Rauch, under the auspices of the league. This second lecture of the series of four was enjoyed by about 30 ladies and the privilege of inspecting and visiting the various department and buildings of the state bureau of juvenile research was much appreciated by all.

It is earnestly desired that all who are interested in child welfare work avail themselves of the opportunity to attend the remaining two lectures which will be given in the near future.

It makes the heart leap to witness their joy,
Proud wealth has no pleasures, I trow,
Like the rapture that throbs in the pulse of the boy,
As he gathers his treasures of snow;
Then lay not the trappings of gold on thine heirs,
While health and the riches of nature are theirs."

The snow breezes warmed our hearts and tinted our cheeks and noses and we loved it all. It made up for the chill that came over us when we read:

"The melancholy days have come,
The saddest of the year,
Of wailing winds, and naked woods,
And meadows, brown and sere."

So our school days were one round of profit and pleasure, and the winters passed quickly, when we were alike happy to see signs of early spring. So again we could find joyful inspiration in our dear old reader.

"The very earth, the steamy air,
Are all with fragrance rife!
And grace and beauty everywhere
Are bursting into life.
Down, down they come, those fruitful stores,
Those earth-rejoicing drops!
A momentary deluge pours,
Then thins, decreases, stops.
And e'er the dimples on the stream
Have circled out of sight,
Lo! from the west a parting gleam Breaks forth of amber light."
—April Day.

In a future article I hope to say something of the McGuffey Series literature, and the accomplishments of the old-time school. P. W. Dromm.

RECOLLECTIONS

By W. S.

Do the school boys and girls of today get as much vocal musical training as those of 35 or 40 years ago? Well, perhaps, they do, and maybe get better training than we did in that line, but to my mind we got some pretty good musical lessons. We had a special drawing and music teacher who made the rounds of the town's school rooms each week—she was at our building on Thursdays and used to give us lessons and drills in reading and singing notes, also "two part" songs, etc. It's been many years ago, but some of those lessons yet remain fresh in my memory. There was one song the school used to sing, they called "The Chicago Street Cries." I may not have it just right, but it ran something like this:

Hark to the street cries in the noisy city,
Louder and louder they fall upon the ear;
"Right this way, sir, take a carriage,"
"Apples, peanuts, cakes and pies,"
"Oh, here's your nice sweet oranges,"
"The Adams House close by,"
"Bring out your old clothes," "Her's your fresh fish,"
"Fire! fire! fire! fire!", "Tribune, Times, Evening Journal,"
"S-t-r-a-w," "Police! police! police! police!"
"Burlington and Quincy cars"
"Auction! auction!" "Milk below,"
"Can you tell me, sir, when the 10 o'clock train goes?"
"Mister, black your boots?" "Oh, I've lost my watch!" "Hurry up!"

The schools were drilled so as to sing it well. Then the room was divided into about three sections. The first section would start the song and sing till they reached "The Adams House close by," (but continue singing the balance of the song) when at this time the second section would begin at the first and go along as the first section had, and when they reached the above place, the third section would begin at the beginning. When each section had finished the last verse they would begin at the first again, and go through the song as before. Each section would try and outdo the other, and it was surely a good representation of a "noisy city.' When the teacher thought they had sang enough, she would give the "stop" signal, then they would have a good laugh and get down to the lessons.

In the winter season, when a good snow was on the ground, we would prepare for our annual sleigh ride. The teacher would ask all the scholars who could to bring 5 or 10 cents or even 2 cents to school to pay our expenses, then a big sleigh, which was used for party purposes or to carry people to and from the depots, was hired. Our lessons and books were discarded, and every neck was stretched and every ear primed awaiting the appearance of the big horses and sleigh. Pretty soon the clang of the strands of sleighbells announced that it was coming; then a general rush out the door, through the front gate, into the backed-up sleigh at the sidewalk. It was a general scrimmage among the girls who would sit next to the teacher, and with the boys who got to sit on the seat with the driver. Maybe sometimes we'd have flags, but they were not so plentiful then as now. Well, the horses would start out and the kids would begin to shout. All over the town we'd go. Then we'd sing school songs as we went. And maybe a bunch of boys along the way would shower our sleigh with snow balls, and that added to the joy of the occasion. After an hour or so we would return to the school, then be dismissed for home. Well, the school games and pleasures of today are a treat, we know, to the boys and girls, but somehow those old events have a lingering fondness in my memory, as I recall them.

BACK TRAILING ON OLD SCHOOL DAYS

OLD SCHOOL DAY MEMORIES

Editor Record:

I read with interest your article on Back-Trailing on Old School Days. Some of the most beautiful memories that come to me are those relative to my youthful school days. I had the good fortune to be born in northern Perry county in this state and receive my first public school lessons in a country school house. The furnishings were long desks with backless benches attached. They were long enough to seat about six children, and thus offered splendid opportunities to cultivate our social qualities. Of course there was one single desk for the teacher, and there was also a water bucket, and one tin cup provided for our convenience. The water we carried from a farm house about a quarter of a mile distant, and it required two children to carry the bucket full of water. Happy were the ones who were so fortunate as to be detailed by the teacher for the task, as we were all anxious to go.

Then another thing delighted the small boy, who had the privilege of "passing the water around." Everyone drank from the same cup, and did not know it was full of deathly germs, and as no one got sick or died from its effects, no one cared. There, "ignorance was bliss."

We children had a mile and a half to go to school, and our path lay across the fields, over hills and through hollows with about a dozen fences to climb. Was it not fine? You see no wagon could have taken us, had they wanted to do so.

We feel sorry for the children in the country who have to ride to school in a stuffy wagon. No chance to play tag or run in the snow, or for the boys to wash the little girls' faces, on the way!

Inspired by the unexcelled lessons we learned from the dear old McGuffey readers, we loved sports as well as study. Who does not remember that beautiful poem of the old Fourth reader, by Mrs. Hale?

"It snows, cries the school-boy,
Hurrah! and his shout
Is ringing through parlor and hall.
While swift as the wing of a swallow he's out,
And his playmates have answered his call:

C. J. Kohn Mrs. C. J. Kohn

NEEDY FAMILIES TO BE CARED FOR

If the promise of the charity agencies in the Columbus Community Fund are carried out, which they will no doubt be, there need not be a needy family in the city go without a Christmas basket this year.

Christmas morning the Santa Claus club will distribute presents to children, the Salvation Army and Volunteers of America will distribute Christmas dinners and the Family Service society will help charitably inclined people to find needy families where gifts will be especially helpful. The Settlement houses, the District Nurses, City Division of Charities, Red Cross, Tuberculosis Society and the many other agencies are all joining hands in an effort to prevent any needy family from being overlooked.

Individuals or groups desiring the responsibility of caring for a family in the Christmas time must file their request with one of the agencies not later than Dec. 23.

Such gifts for Christmas time—the effect is electrical.

HEALTH HINTS.

By DR. O. E. McFADON

WASTEFUL EXTRAVAGANCE.

How's your wind Are you getting what rightfully belongs to you or are you, as usual, careless about it?

I hear you say? There he goes again on breathing; he gave us a lot of hot air on that subject, more than a year ago." yes, and for more than a year you have disregarded what I wrote about it. Every time I meet you, you give me a lot of taffy about the stuff I write. That's all right—I've done the best I can for you and it's pleasant for me to be victimized by your effervescence, but when I feel and know that it does you no good, practically, that you really, look upon it as a lot of pleasantry, to be soon forgotten, I wonder why I am, anyway.

The Record has found it necessary to enlarge its facilities to make room for this and other voluminous perpetrations; the years come and go on life-saving time; the average life span is shortening alarmingly and all because you—yes, you—did not grasp and make your own, that thousand-dollar idea I carelessly let drop more than a year ago, but which I should have had copyrighted, and which, if appropriated by you, would have promoted your digestion, assimilation and absorption to the extent of solving some of your chronic gastric and intestinal troubles—or, to be more graphic and poetic, your "bellyaks."

Moreover, it would have cured your possimistic blindness and substituted a more hopeful outlook upon life by its salutary effect upon your liver, speen and other important glands upon which so much depends to make life worth living. And all of this by way of the constant ministrations of your blood which, in turn, depends for its integrity upon its oxygenation by the lungs, which it must have every minute of your life, and which, by your daily, and hourly, and constant carelessness it does not get, only to a very, very limited proportion of what, with a little thought and the acquirement of a very simple habit you might give it.

And it will pay you better than all the "Right Ad" and "Limerick" prizes you can possibly win. Yes, it will help you win those prizes, and, if you begin now, and so ingrain the idea into your system that it becomes an integral part of you, and manifests its individuality at your every movement, you will not only digest better but you will sleep better, work better, plan better and develop a Christmas spirit such as will give you, automatically, a halo that, by its brightness, will reduce your electric light and gas bills and excite the wonder and admiration of your neighbors, and bring around your creditors with receipted bills and so, give you such a New Year as will make you feel so much younger that you wil really doubt the truth of the calendar.

Realizing, as I do, how busy you are, and how many demands there are upon your time at this holiday time, I shall make my preachment so short and snappy and practical that you can practice it while walking, talking, riding, driving, reading, sleeping, telephoning or listening in. In fact, it is already the most natural thing you do and have been doing since you were born, and will continue to do till the moment of your death—only, you do it so carelessly that two-thirds of the life you are entitled to, you don't get.

Now, will you promise me, who has your welfare so much at heart, that you will not only ready my few words but follow it up with aggressive constructive, intensive and thoughtful action, which, by the way may be most incidental.

Are you all set?
Here you are:

1. Shut your mouth.
2. Note your breath rate.
3. Double the length of each breath.

That's the whole story.

Now, do it, and keep it up.

It's easy enough, but keeping it up is not so easy, for very soon you will thoughtlessly lapse back into the old way, by which you are using only about one-third your lung capacity.

Note your breath rate right now, and double it.

Do you realize that a part of younr lungs are never used for breathing? Sometime when lacing your shoes, and while you still have you face down between your knees, notice how little service you are getting from the north part of your lungs and how uncomfortable you are if that position be kept for even a minute. It might be well to repeat the process often and so force this north part into action.

Now, you are forgetting again. Double the length of your breaths and keep it up. I say "keep it up, and yet I don't expect that you will do it only for a short time, but by repeatedly doing it, the persistence will make the habit, and sooner or later you'll not have to remind yourself of it at all—your lungs will get the habit.

Think on this: That our lungs should do more for us than our food and that it costs nothing. But we are not inclined to reason that way. We conserve the things that cost and do not appreciate the most valuable things if they cost nothing.

How is your breathing now? Double the length of each breath right now and keep it up. Then when you don't "keep it up," do it again. We might as well get right down to heart to heart (a)busi(ve)ness, first as last and get this very simple and profitable procedure under our feet and forever after reap the benefit. Yes, double the length of each breath, right now, and keep it up.

The happy possessor of a coat made of one of those warm fabrics that rival fur can look winter in the face and even say: "Pleased to meet you." Manufacturers of these fur-like materials have woven them in the close imitations of natural furs that everyone is familiar with—but they are also weaving them in novel patterns. These fabrics are supple, highly lustrous and very durable and are adaptable to this winter's styles in coats and ensemble costumes.

At the left of the picture shows here there is a good example of the warm, luxurious coats that add to the interest of styles that of novelty in material. It is made on the lines accepted for fur garments and has collar, cuffs and banding at the bottom of a fur that resembles stone marten. It is lined with plain crepe and warmly interlined. A huge and handsome button fastens it at one side and this side fastening completes its equipment for fortifying its wearer against the cold.

A plain weave in the same kind of velvety fabric is shown in the coat at the left. The arresting style note is an applique trimming of the same fabric in a darker color.

LARGE AUDIENCE ENJOYS CONCERT

Harold Davidson Entertains at Baptist Church Monday Evening.

The large audience which attended Harold Davidson's delightful fantasy, "Musical Toyland," given at Hillcrest Baptist church last Monday night, found much enjoyment in this young pianist's novel entertainment. While the program was primarily for the young people, there were older ones present who seemed to have just as good a time as the kiddies.

Davidson, seated at the piano, talked informally about the fascinating descriptive numbers on his program, weaving together with skill and unity a strange adventure in musicland.

This young pianist possesses the technic and tone of the experienced and talented musician and his delinitive powers in program music are unusual. He is a human and unconventional pianist.

CHRISTMAS EVE.

One hour in all the year is sweet,
Tho' passing sweet the rest beside,
When loving friends, long parted, meet,
And hearts with wealth of welcome beat
At Christmas tide.

Dear Christmas eve! When love is strong,
And strife and falsehood lose their sway,
And kindly actions round us throng,
And memories of ancient wrong
All fade away.

And yet, in this wide world I know
There must be always some who grieve;
Who all unloved, unloving go
Or sit at home alone in woe
On Christmas eve.

God grants to hearth thus overcast
Such love and joy as we receive;
That, free from spectres of the past,
They, too, many find sweet peace, at last,
On Christmas eve.

Christmas carol singers from the Christian Endeavor society of Hoge Memorial church will go about the Hilltop Christmas night singing carols. A lighted candle in your window will indicate that you want them to sing at your home. Anyone sick or shut-in will be specially visited if they will call Jack Merriman, president of the C. E. society, at Seiller's store or at Hilltop 332-W. As in Merre Olde England, they will accept gifts of small coins or Christmas foods.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Deems have moved into their new home at 33 South Westmoore avenue. Any and all friends are welcome to call any time. Mr. Deems has built seven homes on the Hilltop, but says he will keep this one.

BACK TRAILING ON OLD SCHOOL DAYS

RECOLLECTIONS

By W. S.

Last week I wrote a little about the singing and sleigh rides of our school days of some 40 years ago. This week I've in my mind one person whose looks, in my memory, seem as plain to me as I saw them in those days—the town school superintendent.

He used to ride around in one of those old-time surreys, drawn by a family horse. He'd suddenly make his appearance in the room unannounced—a large, stern-looking "fat" man of about 50 years, with an abundant supply of whiskers, which prevailed at that time—then he'd stop right in front of the seated pupils, with a large cane in one hand, and adjust a pair of nose glasses before his eyes, throw his head up high and give our bunch the "once over." Say, you could hear a pin drop clear across the room. And studying! Well, about 30 or 35 pairs of eyes were penetrating their arithmethics, geographies or some other text book, so earnestly that one would think that surely was the model school, and that the "Supt" was seeming how fast the "wings" were sprouting.

Then he'd take his departure, and sometimes the teacher would step outside the room to talk with him a couple of minutes. Right then the "spell" would blow up—paper wads, monkey faces, flip-flops, etc., furnished an impromptu program, till—Well the teacher would suddenly step in, then a bunch of kiddies had to pay the penalty by staying in at recess for several days, or perhaps till 4:30 (30 minutes after school) for the rest of the week.

The superintendent's "den" was in a room at one of the town buildings. Once in a while some unruly boy got to be too much for the teacher to handle; then the boy was given a sealed note and sent to the superintendent, who applied the switch to a "queen's taste." It was told of one boy whom the teacher had given a sealed note and sent to the superintendent for correction, that on his way to the superintendent's office, which was quite a distance from his own school, he met another boy whom he told he was going to the superintendent's office to get some chalk, but had a little errand to do and if he (the other boy) would take the note and go and get it for him he would give him a nickel, and would meet him at that corner again at a stated time. The boy took the note (and nickel) and delivered it, and partook of a good sound "trouncing" from the "supt." It is needless to state that the other boy was not at the appointed place, as he said he'd be. How the affair ended is now forgotten.

Boys and girls who broke the rules, sometimes had to sit up by the teacher with their books or a chair. Or perhaps stand up in front with his or her face turned toward the wall, or go out in the "bell room" and sit all alone in the dark for half a day, or perhaps take a note home to his or her parents; but the latter did not generally mean much, as parents did not seem to pay so much attention then as they do now as to the conduct of the children. Sometimes if a boy got a licking, the teacher was "the goat," but in nearly all cases the pupil needed what he got.

And isn't it the case today, that many of us as parents are too apt to take up some complaint of our children about an imaginary injustice received from their teacher, and either use the telephone or rush off to school and give the teacher a "going over," when the real facts would show that our own child, in the vast majority of cases, was to blame?

We believe that the parent-teacher organizations of the present day are a great factor in helping to bring about a better co-operation between the home and the school, and believe that wherever possible all parents of school children should belong to and attend the meetings of the organization.

OLD SCHOOL DAY MEMORIES.

By P. W. Drumm

In a former contribution we referred to the old school days spent in the unfinished school buildings prevalent in the country in those days, but full of good cheer and sociability. We had two recesses of 15 minutes each, and an hour at noon. This time was spent, except about 15 minutes to eat our luncheon, in play; the principal games were round town ball, long town ball and also base and bobbly wobbly. If there was snow, we played fox and geese, or coasted down hill on boards, or anything we could get that would slide. If a boy had a home made sled, he was the envy of the crowd. We used McGuffey's readers, Ray's arithmetics, Pinneo's and Harvey's grammars.

It was the great privilege of the writer to be an instructor in the public schools for about 10 years, and I any better readers than the McGuffey's are in existence, according to our judgment, we have not seen them. The old Fourth Reader contained about a half dozen selections from the Bible, and about as many strong temperance essons. Some of these made a great impression on my mind when a lad.

The Second and Third readers contained the same fine sentiments regarding religion, morality and supremacy of God. It would be very difficult for one who was brought up on these great teachings, to be an unbeliever in God.

Do you recall the poem, "Consolation of Religion to the Poor?"

"There is a mourner and her heart is broken;
She is a widow: She is old and poor;
Her only hope is in the sacred token
Of peaceful happiness when life is o'er
She asks not wealth nor pleasure, begs no more
Than heaven's delightful volume, and the sight
Of her Redeemer. Skeptics! Would you pour
Your blasting vials on her head, and blight
Sharon's sweet rose that blooms and charms her being's night?"

Then there are "The Righteous Never Forsaken," "Religion the Only Basis of Society," "Immortality of the Soul" and many of the same fine moral fiber.

It may also be said that nearly all of these selections are of fine literary value. That immortal poem on Absolom, by Willis, is one of the finest poems in our language. The poet most effectively leads up to the climax by his wonderful description of the scene in blank verse; where he makes King David pour out his soul in the resistless eliquence of woe:

"Alas! My noble boy, that thou shouldst die!
Thou who wert made so beautifully fair!
That death should settle in they glorious eye,
And leave his stillness in this clustering hair!
How could he mark thee for the silent tomb,
My proud boy, Absolom!"

"The Way to Be Happy," another one of the lessons that made an impression on me, was in the old Third reader. Here are some of the leading thoughts: "No person can be happy without friends." "But you cannot receive affection without giving it." "Love is only to be obtained by giving love in return."

The teachings against intemperance were very forceful. "The Intemperate Husband," "The Worm of the Still," "Touch, Not, Taste No, Handle Not," "The Town Pump" and "The Festal Board."

Come to the festal board tonight,
For bright-eyed beauty will be there.
Her coral lips in nectar steeped
And garlanded her hair.

Come to the festal board tonight,
For there the joyous laugh of youth
Will ring those silvery peals, which speak
Of bosoms pure and stainless truth.

Came to the festal board tonight,
For friendship there with stronger chain,
Devoted hearts already bound,
For good or ill will bind again.

The poet here adds: "I went," and after describing the affair, says "We parted," and comments thus:

"The years have flown; but where are now
The guests who round that table met?
* * * * *
How holds the charm which friendship wove?
It broke; and soon the hearts it bound
Were widely sundered: * * *

"And where is she, whose diamond eyes
Golconda's purest gems outshone?
* * * * *

"Beneath youn drooping willow's shade
With eyes now dim, and lips all pale
She sleeps in peace. Read on her urn
'A broken heart.' This tells her tale.

The young man to whom she joined her life that night, gave way to the allurements of the bowl, and he now—"Lies shuddering on a felon's bed."

The author closes with this advice:

"Shun, oh, shun the enchanted cup!
Though now, its draught, like joy appears,
E're long it will be fanned by sighs,
And sadly mixed with blood and tears."

These lessons made such an impression on my young mind that I was early led to be a hater of strong drink.

Doubtless many of the readers in use now are just as good and as influential as McGuffey's, but I have not seen better.

HEALTH HINTS.

By DR. O. E. McFADON

TAKE ANOTHER LONG BREATH

Here we are again. I left you last week trying to make yourself more chesty by doubling the length of each breath, and with the injunction that you keep it up.

It's a very simple thing and cost nothing, only will power and a little effort, with unquestioned benefit that one can realize from the start. The benefits grow like compound interest, and yet, we squander our capital and don't allow its interest to accumulate to our advantage. What is your breath rate right now? Double or (halve) it while you read on, and notice again when you've finished this preachment—see if you've kept it up.

I keep thinking this weekly harangue is necessary, for we are all human—we say we will and then we don't; we think me will and then we won't. I have no means of calling the roll an checking up on you. Possibly when we all get Radio, I can do that thing if the Record will loan me its mailing list, but before that happens you'll have time enough to regain your lost health, see a phenomenal growth in your self respect and to buy up "all the land that joins yours," and all because of this wonderfully simple appropriation of the oxygen that is always present and ready to serve you without cost. Take a deeper breath right now, then do it again. That's important—do it again. Keep it up and make a habit of it. Otherwise there isn't much in it.

I say all this, and then I say it again, a.l because, I suppose most of you, like "Brer Rabbit," who "Kep on sayin' nuthin"—you don't do it. I am wondering, right now, how many there are to "save the city." Let me ask those of you who are practicing this "daily doses" of long breaths to send me a little encouragement on a postal card. Do it right now, before you forget it. (Take a long breath first.) Then if my postman should be overwhelmed with the result, it will all stimulate my confidence (in myself and in you) and may lead to a change of subject, so that I can do even as I have promised—give you another sermon because you have done as you were told.

Now it is time to breathe again. And don't forget when you walk, to inhale during four steps and exhale during four steps. Make that a habit, so that it will go itself and become an established part of your walking. Simply knowing things can amount to nothing to us unless they become a part of us, and the habit method is the only way. Take onther deep breath, and do it again and again. Keep it up. .

LINGERIE JOINS THE LIST OF PRETTY HOLIDAY GIFTS

So far as feminity is concerned this is fast becoming a silken world. From head to foot, under and outer garments of silk are encroaching on the fields of those made of other fabrics until one wonders where all the silk comes from. But all that glitters is not gold and all that shimmers is not silk. Processes for making artificial silk and for giving a silky luster to cotton fabrics have reached a high stage of excellence. "Imitation is sincerest flattery" and these less expensive mediums that have much of the sheen and daintiness of silk help out in answering the demand for silky clothes.

Undergarments have reached a degree of daintiness and beauty that makes them a big factor in Christmas shopping and styles in them are varied a little from time to time. Certain colors and trimmings are promoted each season in silk lingerie and immediately copied exactly in fine and silky cotton fabrics. In silks, crepe de chine, crepe satin, radium and other light weight weaves maintain their popularity and in cottons, batiste, fine voile, sheer dimities, cross-bar and striped patterns in one color, are used.

Both in silk and cotton lingerie this season two or thre light colors are sometimes used, appearing in applique figures or borders on garments of a light color. Pink is far in the lead as a color choice, but orchid, light green, maize and turquoise are well represented. Lace, net and embroidery tucks and plaitings contribute a big share of the trimmings in favor just now. Alencon laces has been revived, but is not more liked than val, filet and cluny laces. Net and embroidery appear on some of the simplest but prettiest new lingerie pieces. In underclothes as in outer garments the mode leans toward simplicity.

A matched set, shown in the picture, is a late arrival and up-to-date in style. It is a "pink crepe de chine with border of alencon lace at the top of the chemise and narrow edging of val at the bottom. Groups of fine tucks and tiny ribbon flowers finish the adornment and shoulder straps are of satin ribbon. The drawers are trimmed in the same way. A set like this, either of silk or fine cotton, is easy to make and an enviable gift.

OBITUARIES

A little son, born to Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Wells, 146 Eldon avenue, on Dec. 13, died Dec. 16.

A little flower from us has gone.
Just a few hours to brighten our home;
Although the parting nearly broke our hearts,
And we know in heaven, we never part.

He's as a light in the heavenly window,
The sweet little face we see
A little bud to bloom and glow,
A beautiful flower to be.

Some day we'll meet on yonder shore
To meet, to part, no never,
Embrace our dear one in our arms
And with Jesus live forever.

Another little hand is beckoning us,
Another call is given,
And glows once more with angel steps
The path which reaches heaven.

Fold him, O Father, in thine arms
And let him henceforth be
A messenger of love between
Our human hearts and Thee.

Father.

CARD OF THANKS.

REPORT EXCESSIVE GAS CONSUMPTION

Councilman Postle Gets Many Complaints From Hilltop Residents.

Numerous complaints of exorbitant gas bills have been received recently by Councilman Fred Postle from residents of the city and especially from those in different sections of the Hilltop.

In a communication to The Record Mr. Postle states that one resident of the Hilltop reported that his gas bill for the December, 1924, reading is 15,000 cubic feet, as against a reading of 7000 cubic feet for the corresponding month of 1923. This same individual reports that he has used a coal furnace this year, while last year he operated a gas furnace at the lower reading. Mr. Postle took this man's name over the telephone, but has misplaced it and is very desirous of getting in touch with him and all others who feel that their readings have been excessive.

Mr. Postle requests that all complainants get in touch with him and can do so by addressing him at 8 East Broad street or at the City Hall.

SHUT-INS ENJOY XMAS CAROLS

On Christmas eve the members of Glenwood Epworth and Intermediate leagues spent one of the happiest and most profitable evening of the whole year. About 40 young people visited the homes of 33 shut-ins, singing Christmas carols and presenting to each one a box of fruit and candy. At a late hour the carol party returned to the church, where hot chocolate was waiting. Each leaguer returned to his home that night just a little happier because they had helped to bring the Christmas message to those who were less fortunate than they.

Escapes Serious Injury

What proved to be a lucky accident occurred Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 24, when Robert Green, 2630 Floral avenue, narrowly escaped serious injury as a result of amusing himself by "hooking-on" behind an auto. The machine was being driven on Ogden avenue, and at Broad street the boy cut loose and coasted diagonally across the street, almost under the wheels of the machine of Dr. L. D. Wolfe, who swerved his car but could not miss hitting the sled, which was demolished. Young Green rolled over to the curb, and escaped with minor injuries.

SCOUT TROOP IN WINTER CAMP

Boy Scout Troop No. 21, with headquarters at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church will go into camp at a cabin near Glenmary park Thursday morning and will remain until Sunday.

This holiday outing is an annual affair with Troop 21, this year making the fifth New Year's camp which the troop has opened. It is expected that 16 members of the troop will enjoy the outing this year. R. C. Kadel is scoutmaster of this troop.

The following Hilltop girls have been selected to assist in decorating Motor Hall for the automobile show at the State fair grounds on Jan. 12-17: Miss Lucille Worch, 80 Midland avenue; Miss Irene F. Williams, 295 Clarendon avenue; Miss Garnet Selby, 379 Whitethorne avenue; Miss Verna Althen, 135 South Harris avenue and Miss Nina Anderson, 1963 Doren avenue.

The fire department made a run to Hague and Sullivant avenues last Monday, which resulted in a false alarm.

New Year's eve was celebrated at Columbus state hospital by a moving picture program at 7:30 p. m. New Year's night a masquerade affair will be held at 7:30 in which patients and employes will participate.

FIRE DAMAGES HILLTOP HOME

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Ecceles Absent When Residence Is Damaged By Fire.

Fire of unknown origin partly damaged the home of J. J. Ecceles, 135 North Park avenue, on Christmas day.

Nearly the whole of the lower floor was burned, including the destruction of all the furniture in one room and damaging the balance on that floor.

It is estimated the loss is about $1000, with insurance covering the loss on the building, but none on the furniture.

Mr. and Mrs. Eccles were spending the day at the home of Mrs. Eccles' mother, being absent when the fire occurred, making it necessary for the firemen to break into the home through the windows.

FRANK NICLEY OPENS GARAGE

Operates Filling Station in Connection with New Plant Just Opened.

Frank A. Nicley, for 14 years a machinist at the Jeffrey Manufacturing Co., and for the past 13 years a resident of the Hilltop, is in charge of Nicley's garage and filling station, which is now open to the public.

That Niceley is a strong believer in the Hilltop is evident, as both he and Mrs. Nicley have shown their faith in the way in which they tackled the job when it came to putting up a real garage and filling station.

This garage and filling station is housed in a brand new concrete block building, just east of the Big Four crossing on the north side of West Broad street.

Special Revival Services

A series of special revival services will be held at the Church of God, corner of South Park avenue and Pomona street, beginning Sunday, Jan. 4. These services will be in charge of Rev. W. Rimmer and Rev. Dale Oldham, both of Indianapolis.

Group No. 1 of Glenwood Ladies' Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. Hungleman, 113 North Hague avenue, Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 6. Assisting hostesses will be Mrs. Lowrie, Mrs. Huston, Mrs. Coberly, Mrs. Young, Mrs. Bon Durant, Mrs. Fishinger and Mrs. Earle.

NEW RULE PROHIBIT FLUELESS HEATERS

Calculated to Eliminate Carbon Monoxide Menace in Rooming Houses.

In an effort to eliminate the carbon monoxide menace in Columbus rooming houses provisions were contained in a list issued by the board of health yesterday. These rules provide that all persons renting rooms to three or more people must obtain a permit from the health department which will be issued free of charge.

However, before these permits are issued, inspection must be made by the department, which will be concerned particularly with heating devices. Flueless oil or gas stoves and hot plates are prohibited.

Other regulations included in the list of rules are: Window area must be one-eighth of floor space; basement rooms may not be used for sleeping quarters; quarters must be clean; individual towels must be furnished; sanitary plumbing must be installed in each floor.

Penalty for violation is not more than $100 and costs or 90 days in jail.

Miss Bertha Druggan of 26 South Warren avenue, spent Christmas with relatives in Athens.

Recipes.

Following is a recipe which all good Republicans should enjoy (as well as those of the opposing parties).

COOLIDGE COOKIES.

Take 1 egg, 1 cup sugar ½ cup butter, 2 teaspoons cream tartar, 1 teaspoon soda, ½ cup milk, 3½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Filling: Cook 1½ cups chopped seedless raisins, ½ cup sugar, 1 teaspoon flour, ½ cup water until it thickens. Spread a spoonful between two cut out pieces of cooky dough and bake in moderate oven.

Hold Watch Service

Wednesday evening a watch night service was held at Glenwood church under the direction of the Epworth league. From 8 until 9:30 the time was spent in singing carols to the shut-ins, from 9:30 to 11 in recreation and refreshments and from 11 to 12 midnight, in a devotional hour.

MRS. KAUFFMAN FRACTURES ARM

Mrs. Olive Kaufman, 47 North Harris avenue, fell at the corner of Long and High streets Tuesday, Dec. 23, and broke her right arm. She was taken to Mt. Carmel hospital where the fracture was reduced by Dr. Miller, bone specialist. ## RESIDED ON HOLLTOP FOR 26 YEARS

I. A. Geren Died Last Friday—Built Columbus' First Skyscraper.

Ireneus A. Geren, aged 80 years, 123 South Oakley avenue, died Friday night, Dec. 26, at his home from apoplexy.

Mr. Gehren was formerly a brick contractor and was well known among the building trades. He also served as city councilman from 1909 to 1911 and was a member of McCoy Post, G. A. R., having served during the Civil war with the First Ohio Light Artillery.

As a brick contractor he built Columbus' first skyscraper, the Wheeler building, on West Broad street, the Glenwood M. E. church and the Glenwood Park shelter house.

Mr. Geren had been a resident of the Hilltop for 26 years.

His wife, Mrs. Phoebe Geren; five sons, Walter of Portland, Ore.; Frank of Newton Grove, Vt.; Fred M. of Cleveland; Carl and Lawrence of Columbus; and three daughters, Mrs. Hattie Farnum of St. Louis, Mrs. Bessie Brown of Cleveland and Ruth Geren of Columbus, survive.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. George F. Barber and Rev. P. E. White, Tuesday, in the Glenwood M. E. church, of which he had been a member for 18 years. Burial took place in Memorial Park cemetery by C. J. Kohn, undertaker.

ISABELLE R. DOUGLASS

BACK TRAILING ON OLD SCHOOL DAYS

RECOLLECTIONS

By W. S.

Mr. Drumm, in his article on old school day memories in last week's Record, quoted several poems that I remember of reading in the old readers of long ago. These bring to my memory some of the old hymns we used to sing at the morning openings of our school, also the devotional services. Our teacher would read a chapter in the Bible, then offer a prayer and we would sing a familiar hymn. How well I can recollect the following:

Storms may arise, and tempests blow,
And beat with fury on this Rock;
Still it remains, tho waves overflow,
Unmoved admidst the fiercest shock.

Chorus:
Some build their hopes on the ever drifting sand,
Some on their fams, or their treasure or their land;
Mine's on a Rock that forever will stand,
Jesus, the Rock of Ages.

No'er shall the gates of hell prevail
O'er those who in the Lord abide;
Safely they dwell, though foes assail,
Forever near the Savior's side.

How the boys and girls used to sing out and cause the strains of that good old song to sound through the open windows to a great distance from the school. If it was winter, the windows would very likely be opened during the time. And I do agree with Mr. Drumm that the impression made upon the minds of the boys and girls of those days by our religious readings, devotions and songs were such as to instill in the hearts of us youngsters such faith in the living God as would undoubtedly last for time and eternity. And if our schools of today are not observing such as those, I believe we are falling short of our duty to our children of the coming generation.

But to our plays: Marbles—What boy does not like to play marbles in the early spring when the snows are gone and the days seem to be getting springlike?

We used to play "knucks," as it was called. By a shooting contest of marbles, the losing boy had to stick a fair-sized marble between his two middle fingers, then kneel down with that hand on the ground and the back of it toward the rest of the shooters, exposing his knuckles and the above mentioned marble. Each boy would take a shot at the marble between his fingers, but about four out of the five would miss the marble and strike his knuckles. And at this tome of the year it was a common thing for all boys to have chapped hands, which made it more "interesting"(?) for the "it" boy. Maybe he'd try to nudge his cloat sleeve down over his knuckles, but the gang would protest and he'd have to raise the sleeve up. Sometimes a boy's hands would be so chapped as to be cracked open and bleeding in several places, but it made no difference, and the only consolation a boy had was to get back at the other fellow when he had to go "it."

Another game of marbles was playing for "dankises." A "dankie" was an old knife, or key or something of that sort. Sometimes it was a handful of dried apples. Now some boy or girl of today might ask what was dried apples. Well, it those days "ma" would get a bunch of good sound appropriate apples, then she'd peel them and cut them into about eighths, then place them neatly on a large pan or board in some safe place in the summer sun where after a couple of days they would be dried and somewhat shriveled up. Then she'd bring them in, get a good sized darning needle attached to a long cord and proceed to "string" the pieces of dried apples on the cord, after which the string, which would be many yards long, according to the supply needed, would be stretched on nails along the rafters up in the "loft" or attic of the home. When pies were wanted in the winter she would get as long a string of these as needed. And sometimes "Johnny" would sneak up into the loft and appropriate a foot or so for his own use. If one would eat about a dozen of these pieces then drink a tin of water, he would have the sensation of a square meal, as the apples, after the application of the water, would swell up to their original size. Ask grandma if she ever baked dried apple pies. If you'd eat a piece today, I suppose you'd say "that surely is hot stuff."

Then another stunt with marbles was to play "bust." It was usually played with large marbles—nearly an inch in diameter. One boy would lay his marbis on the ground and then others would try to break it by throwing their marbles upon it as hard as they could. That was one stunt that I "shined" in. While my marble supply was meager, I did possess one marble that stood the test of "bust," as it ... because of may other mar... the ...

J. B. Watts and family moved to a farm near Briggsdale this week. We are told that Mrs. Watts has already had "No Hunting or Shooting" signs erected all over the farm, and that Mr. Watts has been out there coon hunting almost every night. As there has as yet been no evidence reported of coon or 'possum on the tables at the Watts resturant, we don't suppose he has "spoiled" anything on the farm excepting probably the sweet dreams of a native hoot owl, which winked at him from some secluded tree upon which it was roosting. We'll await later results.

The climate of Sardania is to be transformed. Hitherto its climate has been very unhealthy for the natives as well as ill-adapted to the conduct of a steady industry because of the irregularity of its rainfall. Engineers are planning to store the winter rainfall and to distribute it through the year so as to make the climate more equable.

DISPLAYS OF NEGLIGEES ACCENT NEW STYLE POINTS

Just now the shops are making fascinating displays of negligees as they always do during the winter season. This indoor garb ranges all the way from pretty and graceful to splendid and graceful garments—graceful whatever their other attributes may be. They are nearly all cut on flowing lines that pay tribute to classic models by following them more or less closely.

The majority of the new negligees are made with side fastenings and loose, roomy sleeves like the attractive garment of fine, supple corduroy shown here. Sleeves are considerably varied, according to the material used. Rayon silk and corduroy are ideal fabrics for negligees that must be practical as well as beautiful. Both are woven in ravishing colors, rayon with very high luster and changeable effects and corduroy with a surface as rich as chiffon velvet. Very often one sees a negligee that looks dignified and luxurious enough to be a opera wrap.

On negligees of the lightweight or sheer fabrics ostrich fringes and bands or marabou borders, dyed to match, introduce a new trimming note. In this class are those beautiful models in which sheer fabrics, like crepe georgette, are posed over slips in contrasting color of crepe de chine; usually these regal affairs are trimmed with lace or ostrich fringe or both. They are the butterflies of apparel. When the questions of warmth and utility must be considered this season changeable satins, rayon or other silks are called upon and used in plain or quilted garments lined with Japanese silk and warmly interlined with lamb's wool.

Taking all things together corduroy and crepe de chine are most satisfactory in negligees for the average woman—for they are pretty, durable and washable. Julia Bottomley.

BACKWARD, TURN BACKWARD

Backward, turn backward
Oh time in thy flight,
I am as blue as they make 'em tonight.
I have been blessed
With an appetite rare,
Equal to that of a cinnamon bear.
Now I'm lopsided,
Dyspeptic and lank,
Living on stuff that
Has made me a crank.
Oh, for some gravy
Like Ma used to make,
Pass me the steak, brother,
Pass me the steak.

When I hark back
To the smokehouse of yore,
Loaded with hams from Dad's old pet boar,
Think of the pantry,
And springhouse and cellar,
Bursting with goodies
That tickle your smeller.
Now I front up to
Some vulcanized meat,
Doped and embalmed
Till it's not fit to eat.
Oh, for some cornbread,
Hog jowls and greens,
Pass me the beans, brother,
Pass me the beans.

Once we ate hominy,
Finer than silk;
Now it's ground cornstalks
With racket-store milk—
Stuff that was never
Inside of a cow,
Made out of whitewash,
The devil knows how.
I have grown weary
Of "crispies" and "flakes,"
Copyright wafers and Patented cakes.
Factory made fodder
That's not worth a ——!
Pass me the ham, brother,
Pass me the ham.

The canning industry has grown to enormous proportions since the war, and its products in a single year are worth about $000,000,000. A Frenchman invented the process of sealing food products so that they would be air-tight. The French government purchased the invention and Napoleon allowed manufacturing plants in France and England to use the process. Later it was introduced in America, and since 1847, the time of the introduction of the stamped can, the growth of the industry has been rapid.

There are hundreds of millions of dollars worth of gold and silver and gems at the bottom of the ocean. The records of ships sunk have been kept for centuries, and when deep sea diving reaches a safer stage a great deal of the treasure may be redeemed.

Last October the government of India started to build the Lloyd Dam at Bhatghar. The work is to be finished in 1927, and will be the largest irrigation system in the world, providing water for the irrigation of six million acres of land at a total cost of about 80 million dollars. The dam, or barrage, which stretches across the Indus river, will be more than a mile long and will have 60 arched openings of 60 feet each provided with control gates.

Twenty-four and one-half per cent of the average person's income in this country is spent for living expenses, 22 per cent for luxuries, and 1½ per cent for education. However, the class "luxuries" includes a large number of things which are amusements, many of which have educational values, and many things which are not indispensable to existence but requisite for comfort and enjoyment.

HEALTH HINTS.

By DR. O. E. McFADON

After hearing the Christmas cantata so well rendered by Haydn Jones' choir, then, later on, the "Messiah" by the Welch choir, my subconscious mind has been occupied with such reasoning as that "The nations so furiously rage together" because "All we, like sheep, have gone astray," etc.

I heard the Welch choir in the "Messiah" 15 years ago, and several times since, but never like this time. I sang it more than 40 years ago with Geo. F. Root, and, later on, Carl Zerrahn as conductors, and some time when Haydn Jones with his Welch ancestory and Brother Knox, who is a wheel horse in oratorios, develop matters musical on the Hilltop, as, with the support of the people, they will surely do; and if I keep on getting younger, I'll agree to sing the entire oratorio from memory.

But what has that to do with health? It helps to keep us young.

My advice about your Christmas dinner got lost in the holiday rush. Possibly I should "fess up' about my own dinner. I ate soup and crackers but, as there is a "psychological moment" when it is proper to introduce people, I kept the crackers and soup separated until they should meet in the stomach.

"What?" You say, "Eat crackers dry?" Yes, always—and enjoy the flavor. Try one, without moist aid of any sort and retain it in the mouth until swallowing is involuntary. It isn't necessary to chew it much—that isn't so important as insalivation, and a man without teeth can do that.

Crackers and bread and cereals generally, are the most starchy foods and the digestion of them must commence in the mouth or trouble is sure to follow, and the trouble that follows is no joke.

Horace Fletcher, to whose example we owe so much, applied this insalivation theory and practice, to all foods, and he built up his health and prolonged his life by so doing. This would solve more of our dietetic problems than we imagine. But let's specialize on the thorough insalivation of starch foods—especially bread and other cereals and flour products. And don't be deceived with the idea that mastication, to the point of easy swallowing, is necessarily insalivation.

While we may not wash down our food with drink, it is well to remember that bread is half water, and it is that water that deceives us. The swallowing is made easy by it and it interferes with insalivation because we are so deceived.

In eating milk toast or bread pudding, the bread is washed down by the liquid and is not insalivated. These are good foods, but not as usually eaten. Mashed potatoes—starchy food—are 75 per cent water, and slip down easily without chewing, but that is not insalivation.

The only way for the individual to form the insalivation habit is to never eat starchy food without giving special attention to its insalivation. The three pairs of salivary glands in the mouth should be allowed to work. As an object lesson it would be well to eat starchy food in no other form but thoroughly dry for, say, a month. This would call for stale bread and some patience. The result—a habit formed.

I commenced to describe my Christmas dinner, but am still "in the soup" and have to stop. It will take me all winter at this rate. Imagine me treating lightly such foods as gravy, stuffing," etc. And while you are waiting for that, and perhaps dreading it, why not ingrain the insalivation habit. And, by the way, double the length of breaths often and inhale while you take four steps, etc.

Happy New Year!

Dr. O. E. McFadon, Osteopath, 106 W. Tenth Ave. North 7904-W.

D. W. Emery, teacher of violin. Lessons at pupil's house. 97 N. Burgess Ave.

COLUMBUS IN ITS EARLY HISTORY

First Census Taken in 1815; Subscription Raised to Remove Stumps From High St.

The first census of Columbus was taken in the year 1815, enumerating the population at 700, with six stores, one printing office and four lawyers. In 1816 a subscription of $200 was raised to remove the stumps from High street, and the town was incorporated as the borough of Columbus, with nine prominent citizens as the first board of councilmen. One of the first acts of council was to authorize the corporation to issue money in the shape of small bills to the amount of $555.75 in the following quantities and denominations: 120 bills of 75 cents, 464 of 50 cents, 464 of 25 cents, 836 of 12½ cents and 212 of 6¼ cents.

In December, 1816, the legislature arrived in Columbus and took up its quarters in the old, red brick statehouse and began that continuous and monotonous grind of passing laws one winter and remodeling them the next. In two respects Columbus doth resemble Rome. The Scioto is as muddy and majestic as the time-honored Tiber, and Ohio's capital "was not built in a day." But the little city grew apace until 1819, when the enterprise and energy that had founded it made it flourish succumbed to the check of business reaction. A year or two of failure and depression set in. Real estate shrunk and fell, the full city lots were forced on the market as low as $8 and $10.

In 1824 Columbus was made the county seat of Franklin county, and 10 years later, in 1834, it was incorported as a city, having at that time 4000 inhabitants, who elected the first mayor, one John Brooks, there being five candidates and 449 voters.

From this time on Columbus rapidly advanced and the era of public improvements began. The canal and national turn-pikes and state plank roads came along, opening Columbus to the leading cities of this and other states.—Northern Star.

H. I. A. DINNER TUESDAY, JAN 13

Speaker Will Address the Meeting and General Good Time Is Expected

Another one of those Hilltop Improvement association dinners, which have been the delight and pleasure of many Hilltop men in the past few months, is scheduled for next Tuesday evening at 6:30 at the club rooms in the Hilltop Bank building.

It is expected there will be a good speaker present at this dinner.

To those that have attended these get-together dinners nothing need be said, as they know what they are. To those who have not yet had the pleasure of dining with this bunch of good fellows, it is urged that you buy a ticket and be on hand. You are invited to be present whether you are an active member of the association or not, as it is understood that all residents of the Hilltop are boosters for this community and this is the mission of the Hilltop Improvement association. There is plenty of work to be done in a civic way on the Hilltop, so come out next Tuesday evening and let's get things started. You won't be sorry.

Tickets may be had from Ed Dolby, Wyatt Millikin, D. O. Sites and others.

The Hilltop Embroidery club held their annual Christmas party Dec. 23 at the home of Mrs. E. E. Shaffer, 38 Belmont road. Christmas decorations were used throughout the house even to the front porch, on which a Christmas tree was placed, brightly illuminated with electric lights. A little surprise was arranged for the men in the dining room, as they found their name and pulled the ribbon attached to the same, causing a commotion in the center of the table and gifts of all sorts came tumpling toward them, some very appropriate. Dr. Fox received a gun, which he used considerably during the evening. Chas Randall received his much talked of new machine and Royal Millikin a gasoline tank so he would not have to go to the corner for gas. The ladies had their usual exchange of gifts, many useful and beautiful presents being received. Refreshments were served and a merry evening enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Matson, Mr. and Mrs. P. G. ## OPEN BASKETBALL LEAGUE SEASON

Hilltop Represented in K. of P. League By Westwood Lodge.

The City K. of P. Basketball league opened its schedule Monday night at Olentangy school, Poplar and Delaware avenue, with four teams represented in the leagues. Those lodges being represented by teams are Joe Dowdall, Coll, Champion and Westwood, representing the Hilltop.

Each player in the league must be a member in good standing of the lodge on whose team he plays, thus making it strictly a K. of P. affair and eliminating any semblance of professionalism. Hamilton Roebuck of Westwood lodge is president and Seddon of the City Recreation department is secretary, the league being under the supervision of the recreation department.

In the opening game Westwood was defeated by Joe Dowdall by a score of 23 to 11 and Champion took the honors from Coll, 34 to 4.

Next Monday night Westwood will oppose Champion and Joe Dowdall and Coll will oppose each other. Facilities for witnessing the game are excellent and a good attendance was registered at the opening game. The admission is free to all games.

Westwood's team is purely a community aggregation, all members being residents of the Hilltop. Those playing on the team are Russel Friend, Ray Baird, Jap Jester, Winnie Moss, Dick Smith, N. E. Wheeler and Pete Miller.

WESTWOOD LODGE INSTALLS OFFICERS

New Officials Planning Great Thins for Members of This Lodge.

Last Thursday evening Westwood lodge, No. 770, K. of P., installed its new officers for the ensuing term. They are as follows:

G. T. Bond, chancellor commander; Earl A. Birle, vice chancellor; H. E. Wheeler, prelate; W. P. Oliver, master of work; C. W. Ruffing, keeper of records and seal; I. E. Sebring, master of finance; D. G. Lear, master of exchequer; Phil Cunningham, master at arms; G. A. Good, inner guard; A. D. Miller, outer guard; H. A. Lear, trustee for three years; M. Gruesser, property trustee; Claud Moss, captain of drill team.

The lodge has discontinued its drawing which has been conducted each meeting night during the past year, the surplus being placed to the credit of a fund known as the "Christmas Fund" which will be augmented by contributions as members see fit and feel disposed. A box will be placed at a convenient point in the lodge room and any who are in attendance at any of the meetings may drop in coins as their pleasure. The fund will be used next Christmas time as the members designate, which will undoubtedly be for relief at that season of the year.

The new officers are planning great things for Westwood during the coming year and it is hoped that each and every member will lend his assistance in making Westwood a lodge which all Hilltop residents can point to with pride.

HILLTOPLETS

'Bout 20 more shopping days until ground hog day.

A drive over the Hilltop will reveal to one an exceptionally large number of houses that are in process of construction during this season of the year. If this is any kind of a criterion to go by it looks like the spring season will bring to the Hilltop another boom in the building line. Let 'er come.

The Hilltop fire department was called to the corner of Harris avenue and Grace street last Thursday afternoon—it was a false alarm.

Sullivant avenue, from Nashobe to Central, was in darkness for several hours on Friday morning of last week, because of a defective circuit in that section.

Not all the good coasting places are in other sections of the city. Hilltop coasters have been taking advantage during the coasting season on the hills on both asylum properties, also in Glenwood park.

What has become of the effort to have the Camp Chase cars resume their routing out West Broad street to the Big Four railroad? As all that section is now in the city, and a large number of houses have been built out that way during the past year, there seems to be no reason for not giving car service to those residents needing this facility.

Street car motormen are just like other folks—there's accommodating ones, and then there's—well, we've seen several instances where some were otherwise. Just a few days since—a cold one—a mother, carrying a little child in her arms, happened at the corner and ran out in the street waiving her hand just as the motorman was about to start the car, but instead of waiting for her he pulled away and left her and the child to wait ten or fifteen minutes in the biting cold. He could not have helped seeing her, as his face was turned right in her direction at the time. But, fortunately, his kind are far in the minority, as on the other hand we've seen some kind enough to stop at a street intersection and wait for someone who was running to get the car, perhaps a hundred feet away. When one does that we feel like going to the front platform and thanking him.

COUNCIL TABLES GAS COMPLAINTS

Complaints Still Being Received By Councilman Postle—Definite Report Soon.

Monday night council tabled the question of considering the many complaints of consumers that they are being charged exorbitant rates for gas.

Councilman Fred Postle is in direct charge of receiving these complaints and says they are now being received from all sections of the city, and that he got the desired results from his request in The Record last week. These complaints are being given much thought and are being considered from all angles and it is hope to soon have some definite report to make as to the possible action to be taken.

Any resident of this section of the city desiring to make a complaint may do so through The Record and it will be turned over to Mr. Postle.

The case of several residents of the Hilltop, filed in the court, to compel the gas companies to furnish them with service, which was filed by C. B. Cranston, is expected to come before the court Jan. 20.

GERALD WILSON WINS HONORS

Placed on "All-Columbus" Scout Troop—Only 25 in City Are Named.

Gerald Wilson, of 145 North Eureka avenue, a member of Troop 21, Boy Scouts, has been selected for the "All Columbus Scout Troop." This is a mythical troop similar to Walter Camp's All-American football team, and is an honor conferred upon Scouts as a reward or distinction for efficient work, either in the city or their own troop. This honor is given to only 25 scouts out of the entire membership in Columbus, consisting of 2500 boys, making it one out of one hundred to be placed on this "All-Columbus" troop and is one of the coveted goals in Columbus scouting.

Gerald has 20 merit badges to his credit, and has a fine record of service in his own troop. He has very efficiently handled the offices of scribe and patrol leader at different times, and is now the senior patrol leader of Troop 21. This is the first time a Hilltop boy has been given this distinction.

He is a willing and conscientious worker and the honor conferred upon him by this selection is one well deserved.

PARIS MAKES DANCE FROCKS WITH SKIRTS THAT FLARE

Dance frocks gaily turn their backs upon an admiring world, fully conscious of the fact that those backs were designed to be looked at. Backs are, in fact, the most important consideration when the matter of evening dresses to be used for dancing comes up. Not every pretty evening dress that happens along will serve for dancing, but only those that are graceful and designed to swing into flowing and beautiful lines when their wearers dance.

Designers resort to various artifices to make evening dresses that will prove successful as dance frocks. Floating draperies, uneven hemline, sheer and supple fabrics (and trimmings that are used to weight them sometimes) soft and carefully adjusted girdles, have all proven their helpfulness. A handsome scarf is an adjunct to the evening dress that will lend it grace. Paris is making the most of the new vogue for a ripple or flare at the bottom of skirts, in dance frocks. One of these is shown in the illustration and evidently much attention has been given to its back. The deep decolletage is filled in with lace and an inset of lace below it breaks the straight line of the bodice. A flounce of metallic lace is set onto the satin body with a very irregular curving line and falls over uneven flounces of chiffon in two colors. One can imagine this gown in many lovely color combinations with either gold or silver lace used in the flounce. The treatment of the decolletage is very clever—it is cut to appear low but filled in with a fine lace so that the hand of a dancing partner has a proper resting place.

Chiffon of georgette, embroidered with beads maintain an important position in the evening modes.

HAVE SERVED THE PUBLIC 30 YEARS

The Buckeye State Building and Loan Co. has just celebrated its thirtieth anniversay.

This popular institution was fostered by L. L. Rankin, who was its president at the time of his death in 1918. Associated with Mr. Rankin at the time of organization were B. C. Blachley, secretary, and Leslie P. McCullough, assistant secretary, both of whom are identified with the company today as officers and directors, Mr. McCullough now being its president.

Only one other of the original incorporators and directors survives, the Hon. Frank Rathmell, ex-judge of the common pleas court, still on the board. The Buckeye has enjoyed a steady and gradual growth, going ahead year after year in resources.

Mr. McCullough's recent elevation to the presidency is the culmination of 30 years' hard work and knowledge of the business. He originally was a law clerk for Mr. Rankin.

BACK TRAILING ON OLD SCHOOL DAYS

Publishers Record:

The following verse, copied from an old scrap book, are prompted after reading the article about dried apple pies, in "Back-Trailing on Old School Days" column, contributed by "W. S." in last week's issue of the Record:

I loathe, abhor, detest, despise,
Abominate dried apple pies.
I like good bread, I like good meat,
Or anything that's fit to eat;
But of all poor grub beneath the skies
The poorest is dried apple pies.
The farmer takes his gnarliest fruit;
'Tis wormy, bitter and hard to boot;
He leaves the cores to make us cough,
And doesn't take half the peeling off;
Then on a dirty cord they're strung
And in the garret window hung
Where they serve a roost for flies
Until they're made up into pies.
Is it any wonder I loathe, despise,
Detest the abominable dried apple pies?

A Reader.

OLD SCHOOL DAY MEMORIES.

By P. W. Drumm

In our second article on School Day Memories we spoke of the moral and spiritual influence of the literature of the Eclectic Series of Readers, referring principally to those selections relating to religion and temperance, passing on to the more advanced readers, viz: the old Fifth and the new Sixth, the latter, however, corresponding in most part to the former, we find many sublime selections in both prose and poetry.

Shakespeare and Dickens and Willis, as well as other authors of world note, are well represented.

In these volumes we find fiction, history and story intermingled to the delight and very great profit of the pupil. The humorous has not been overlooked. When a child we read "Meddlesome Matty" and was greatly amused at her experience with her grandmother's snuff box and spectacles; the lesson was not lost.

Do you remember how we loved to read "The Village Blacksmith"? The "blacksmith shop" was a very familiar sight in our neighborhood.

"And children coming home from school
Look in at the open door;
They love to see the flaming forge,
And hear the bellows roar,
And catch the burning sparks that fly
Like chaff from a threshing floor."

This was literally true of the children of our community. The climax is reached in the last verse of this beautiful poem as it is applied to life and action, viz:

"Thanks, thanks to thee, my worthy friend,
For the lesson thou hast taught!
Thus at the flaming forge of life,
Our fortunes must be wrought,
Thus on its sounding anvil, shaped
Each burning deed and thought."

The pathetic is not lost sight of, as we find it running through the whole series, "The Thunder Storm," "The Chinese Prisoner," "The Lone Indian," "A Broken Heart," "New Year's Night of an Unhappy Man," etc. This is necessary to the establishment of a proper equilibrium in the young student.

Difficult lessons to improve our articulation and strengthen our memories were presented in such pleasing form as to make them a delight. Do you remember what a mix you made of it when you first tried to read:

"How does the water come down at Lodore?
From its sources which well
In the tarn on the fell;
From its fountains
In the mountains,
Its rills and its gills;
* * * * * * *

"Rising and leaping,
Sinking and creeping,
Swelling and sweeping.
* * * * * * *

"And quivering and shivering
And hurrying and skurrying
And thundering and floundering;
* * * * * * *

"Dividing and gliding and sliding
And falling and brawling and sprawling,

"And thumping and plumping and and bumping and jumping
And dashing and flashing and splashing and clashing;
"And so never ending, but always descending
Sounds and motions forever and ever are blending,
All at once and all o'er with a mighty uproar;
And this way the water comes down at Lodore."

This poem was written by the Poet Laureate, Robert Southey, and is considered a masterpiece in imaginative description, and while it is very difficult to read, it is withal very pleasing.

The Fourth and Fifth readers furnished excellent material for amateur speakers. Speech of Logan, Chief of the Mingoes, is one of the finest selections.

The young boy or girl who could declaim well such a piece was the envy of the school. Then there was Patrick Henry's wonderful speech before the Virginia convention, that for eloquence and patriotic fervor, is unexcelled. We might mention others as valuable, but space forbids. "The Raven," by Poe, is another masterpiece, which is one of the writer's favorites. In his early boyhood days he committed the poem and declaimed (?) it before large audiences. This poem is so well known that I need not reproduce it; but here is a verse:

"Once upon a midnight dreary, while I pondered weak and weary,
Over many a quaint and curious volume of forgotten lore.
While I nodded, nearly napping, suddenly there came a tapping
As some one gently rapping, rapping
at my chamber door.
"'Tis some visitor" I muttered, tapping
at my chamber door.
Only this and nothing more."

It is said that this poem was born out of the grief that overflowed the poet's heart on account of the loss of his young wife.

I find this article is growing too long and I will close with a lesson that made a good impression upon me when young. I do not know the author's name and do not know where else it can be found except in the New Fifth Reader. It is fine for the young, as it shows the power of flattery, and the result of yielding to it. The title is

"THE SPIDER AND THE FLY"

(A Fable)

"Will you walk into my parlor? Said the spider to a fly.
'Tis the prettiest little parlor that ever you did spy.
The way into my parlor, is up a winding stair,
And I have many pretty things to show when you are there.
Oh, no, no, said the little fly, 'to ask me is in vain,'
For who goes up your winding stair, can ne'er come down again."

Then with many words of praise and flattery, the spider prevailed on the fly to at least consider it and she answered:

"I thank you gentle sir, for what you are pleased to say,
And bidding you good morning now, I'll come another day."

Knowing that he had made a good impression upon the silly fly, he continued his love song, and concluded thus:

"Come hither, hither, pretty fly, with the pearl and silver wing:
Your robes are green and purple, there's a crest upon your head:
Your eyes are like the diamond bright, but mine are dull as lead."

Alas, alas! how very soon this silly little fly,
Hearing his wiley flattering words, came slowly flitting by.
With buzzing wings, she hung aloft, then near, and nearer drew,
Thinking only of the brilliant eyes, and and green and purple hue;
Thinking only of her crested head—poor foolish thing! At last,
Up jumped the cunning spider and fiercely held her fast.

He dragged her up his winding stair, into his dismal den
Within his little parlor; but she ne'er came out again!
And now my dear young friends, who may this story read,
To idle, silly, flattering words, I pray you, ne'er give heed;
Unto an evil counsellor, close heart, and ear, and eye,
And take the lesson from the tale of the Spider and the Fly.

RECOLLECTIONS.

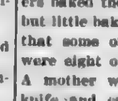
By W. S.



Going out on our streets near one of our school buildings today, at the noon hour, one will see strings of boys and girls tripping gaily along, all talking, laughing and having a general good time. Some are going home to lunch, but many are given 10 or 15 cents with which to buy a noon day lunch—a wiener sandwich, a piece of pie, or something of that sort. But we've noticed many spend the money for candy. Now, we're not knocking candy, because we also like it occasionally, but often wonder to what excess, day after day, this "lunch money" is appropriated for candy instead of food.

Buying of noonday lunches during the old school days of 40 years ago was an unknown thing. Pupils who could not go home, brought their lunches with them and ate them in the school room, maybe around on open grate fire. What did they take? Well it wasn't minced ham or weiner sandwiches, or cream puffs, lady fingers, or angel food, for there were no such "animals" then. But there was bologna and dried apple pie (as we mentions last week), and homemade bread with country butter and sorghum molasses. And right here, when we say homemade bread, we are thinking of those big round loaves mother used to bake. Nearly all mothers baked their own bread, there being but little bakery bread. It seems to me that some of those big round loaves were eight or 10 inches inches across. A mother would take a big butcher knife and cut off a slice across the loaf about as big as the sole of a number 10 shoe, then she would spread it with country butter or homemade apple butter—but not always both, as that was too expensive. Was it good—well, the memory still lingers.

One time, when white bread was scarce because of a wheat shortage, a boy who had a hard boiled egg but no bread, traded it to a schoolmate for one of his white bread biscuits, but the boy with the egg—well, he was out of luck when he cracked it open.

A couple of corn pancakes with apple butter between them occasionally made a nice (?) noonday lunch. Scarcity of wheat flour once made them appropriate. Sometimes boys taking them for lunch would eat one and then they would take the second one and see who could "sail" theirs the farthest up into the air or across the open field.

BONERS

We've been printing in this paper, in the past, a portion of pencil pushings pertaining to "pink teas," pot luck parties, etc. Now we're going to also try and give you a little stronger stuff by telling of "boners" whom those of our friends—and otherwise—have witnessed or pulled off themselves.

Someone might say, "What's a boner" Well, if we were publishing a dictionary we might define it in M. D. terms, like this:

BONER—Bo-ner— noun (pertaining to cranium)—An impromptu upheaval that spontaneously bursts forth in a period of a fellow's existence when the stupendous stupidity of his intellectual ability becomes plainly comprehensible.

But in plain United States—when a fellow pulls some fool stunt.

Now, you know what a "boner" is. And we've all met one or more—and we'll venture to say maybe we did not go many inches from ourself at the time. So send them in. We'll cross our hearts that we won't give you away, but will enroll you a member of our "Boner Club." Address "Boner" Department, Hilltop Record.

As a sample here are a couple:

Last week a Hilltop daddy, with his young daughter, entered a certain Hilltop shoe store to purchase a pair of galoshes for the young miss. The salesman was very obliging and after tugging and pulling he succeeded in accomplishing the desired end and got the galosh on over the shoe on the right foot. He next started to perform on the left foot. He pulled and tugged, and tugged and pulled and sweat and then pulled and tugged and sweat some more, all the while remarking, "Why, that ought to go on easier than that." After wiping the sweat away again he made another attempt and finally accomplished the feat. However, the salesman was very conscientious and said he hardly thought the young miss could get the galoshes on by herself, so he suggested trying a pair a little larger. These went on just fine and fit fine. So the purchase was made and the satisfied customer prepared to leave the store. The salesman went to wrap up the old rubbers which had been worn in the store by the young miss. He could find but the one for the right foot. After looking several minutes he found the other one in the galosh which he had had such a hard time in getting on the left foot.

A certain Sunday school not far away was to have an entertainment. Two of the men members were delegated to prepare some of the "accessories" for producing the same, one part of which was an old-time windless well. Suitable old boards were selected and a piece of telephone pole cut off for the windless and all were sawed and artistically nailed together at evenings in the basement of one of the houses. It was finished, together with rope, crank and "old oaken bucket." All was set. The men shook hands and patted each other on the back at the excellent job they had done. They called their families to look at the job. When the day came a wheelbarrow was backed up to the cellar door preparatory to delivering the scenery. When they went to take the well out the cellar door it was found the door was to small to allow an exit.

Can you go that one better?

The natives of Burma have discovered a way in which ants can be of great help in lumbering. The hard center of the sandal wood is the only part of the tree that has commercial value. After the tree is cut it is allowed to lie where the ants can work upon it. They soon carry off the useless outer layer and leave the hard wood ready for market.

The Really Poor Man

A man is poor:

If he is without friends.
If he has low ideals.
If he has a guilty conscience.
If he has lost his self-respect.
If his morals are questionable.
If he has lost his grip upon himself.
If he is selfish, uncharitable, or cruel.
If he has forfeited his health for wealth.
If his mind and soul have been neglected.
If he has traded away his character for money.
If his wife and family do not love and respect him.
If he has a disagreeable disposition that makes enemies or repels his friends.
If making money has crowded out the cultivation of his spiritual life.
If worldliness has caused him to lose fellowship with Christ.
If love of money has hardened him until the love of Christ and his gospel doesn't stir him to do his best for missions.
If all his investments and possessions are laid up on earth and he has no treasures in Heaven.

He should attend

HEALTH HINTS.

By DR. O. E. McFADON

It isn't well to discharge a patient till cured. Many of you have not thoroughly learned insalivation yet. The word is becoming somewhat familiar, and some may think, trite, but the practice lags behind. So, I must rub it in, and will ask the readers' patience while I use it a few times more.

Apropo of my own Christmas dinner: I don't often eat meat, but I ate meat, but I ate a half portion of turkey. And speaking of insalivation, while meat will be better digested if well chewed and insalivated, yet the saliva is not so necessary to meat as it is to starch food. Meat-eating animals swallow much of their meat without chewing; the stomach can take care of it. On the other hand, the cow lives on vegetable food and chews it over and over in the form of her "cud." That's a cow's business and she works at it. When a cow is sick her cud stops and the starting of it is her salivation.

The important idea here is that starch food—grain and vegetables—commence rightly in the mouth, and meat in the stomach. When we eat bread or any cereal food rapidly, it is swallowed without insalivation, which it can't get after leaving the mouth. It goes into a acid medium—the stomach—and is beyond our control, for, be it remembered, beyond the mouth, the whole process of digestion is involuntary.

Staple foods are all right. We must have more or less of them—or rather less and not more. The hard worker—laborer—can come nearer living on staple foods and doing full justice, by way of digestion, than people of sedentary habits—as most of us are. While the laborer—if he works hard enough—could manage three-fourths staple foods and one-fourth fruits and light, not starchy vegetables, the rest of us would do better with one-fourth staples and three-fourths n. s. v. and fruits. It is up to the individual to practice this constant caution, or, as constantly to encourage the insidious inception and progress of most of the diseases of advanced life and which are commonly supposed to cause death.

This lecture is not intended especially for the cook. While the cook, ordinarily, can have a wonderful influence on the health of the family by judiciously placing the right kind of food before them, yet, in the matter of the Christmas dinner we must allow her her prerogative of furnishing plenty of the food most liked and we will assume that it is well cooked. And the host may join her in insisting on second helpings (they'll do it anyway), but it is up to the individual to decide what he eats and how much.

But to return to the makeup of the Christmas dinner: The turkey is protein and fat and well cooked. Nothing to fear except the quantity. Then potatoes—starchy, staple food and well cooked. The gravy is composed of fat and flour—both nourishing, substantial food. And the stuffing—what is that? I don't know; but I do know that it is heavy with condiments and flavoring that make me want more of it. After which, maybe pie and fruit cake, which are enough of solid food in themselves for a meal.

A good dinner, we all agree, but what is the matter with it? Simply, it is too strong in food values—staples, and we eat too much of it. Neither of these should be charged up to the cook for she knew what we expected and took pride in furnishing it. We have all eaten to satisfy, and then some, thank you, and then—like the python that devours his prey voraciously, and lays himself away while he digests it—we are harmless until we get hungry again.

If this happens every Sunday, and it does so "happen" in many families, then the family is being brought up to overeat and possibly the housewife (whom we have encouraged till we got filled up) should look to it and get herself and her family into the habit of eating small quantities of the staple foods and providing plenty of fruits and non-starchy vegetables for "filling up."

Keep this in mind: One-fourth staple foods (bread, meat, eggs, cheese, potatoes) and three-fourths such non-starchy vegetables as beets, carrots, cabbage, turnips, parsnips, etc., with all you want of fruit.

Dr. O. E. McFadon, Osteopath, 108 W. Tenth Ave. North 7904-W.

SIMPSON TALKS TO CIVIC BODY

Nine-foot Storm Sewer to Extend to Aiken Road—Sani-Sewage Relief Remote.

A nine-foot storm sewer from the south end of Richardson avenue to the Aiken road, and a 60-inch sewer above that with a water fall of about 16 feet to the second, is what City Engineer Simpson gave out at an address on the Hilltop sewer outlook, before the Hilltop Civic association at Burgess Avenue U. B. church Tuesday evening.

He also said that everything is now about ready and the city will be ready to receive bids for the new Hilltop storm sewer improvement in two or three weeks. Mr. Simpson said it is to be large enough to take in all the territory south of Sullivant avenue to Mound street, which is expected to be built up in the next few years. It also makes provision for all the territory west, including Broadview and Westgate, and can be extended as far as Hague.

Mr. Simpson stated that work on the sewer would probably start in the early spring.

Council committee is proposing another smaller sewer to take care of the additions west of Hague avenue and north of Broad street, by turning the water into the present outlet on the north side of the Hilltop.

As to the sanitary sewer problem, Mr. Simpson stated that that has not yet been definitely worked out. He said that there were two proposed methods of financing the sanitary sewer relief. One is to levy an assessment on all Hilltop property to pay for the same at the rate of about $40 per lot and to extend over a period of five years at a rate of $8 per year. The other is by special legislation being granted by the state whereby the city could make a general city bond issue and assessment for all sections for sanitary sewage. This proposition will come up later.

The Civic association at this meeting voted to attend the evening services of Burgess Avenue U. B. church in a body next Sunday.

Thieves Enter Shop

Some time Tuesday night thieves broke out the lower panel of the back door of M. I. Beaver's shoe repair shop on Broad street, crawled through and made a bee line for the money drawer which was broken from its fastenings and carried to the alley in the rear where, after finding nothing in it, they left it. Mr. Beaver reports that nothing else in the shop is missing.

Mrs. Walter Freshwater, 82 North Burgess avenue, received a very unique present from her friend, Mrs. Emory Joye, Dixmunde, Belgium. The remembrance was an empty brass shell which had been exploded by the Germans on Mr. Joye's farm.

HILLTOP GUN CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

Club Will Build Club House at Their Shooting Range on West Broad Street.

Members of the Hilltop Gun club met Tuesday evening in Voss Bros. salesroom and elected the following officers: H. Herron, president; O. Voss, vice president; W. C. Horton, secretary, and Stanley Hudson, treasurer.

This meeting was the first of the season and among other business transacted, it was decided by the members to build a club house at the shooting range, which is located just west of the Wilson road on the north side of Broad street.

The club is an organization of Hilltop men who enjoy the sport of shooting and all residents of this community are eligible to membership.

The next meeting of the club will be held next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at Voss Bros. salesrooms, at which time it is proposed to outline a program for the coming season. All who are interested in this sport are asked to attend the meeting.

C. F. ANDERSON ADDRESSES ASSN.

Peppy Meeting Tuesday Evening of Hilltop Improvement Association.

A real old-time peppy meeting was held Tuesday evening after the supper of the Hilltop Improvement association at its club rooms in the Citizens Bank building.

C. F. Anderson of the Ohio National bank was a guest of the association at the supper and the speaker of the evening and gave a very interesting and instructive talk along the lines of co-operation. He pointed out very clearly the need of co-operation, not only in a civic line of duty, but also the need of it along business lines as well, bringing out the point that by co-operation and courtesy in business, not only with the immediate customer but with competitors, the whole community will be benefitted thereby.

Many real questions were under discussion at some considerable length, which will undoubtedly bear fruit in the near future.

The next regular meting will be held next Tuesday evening, Jan. 20, at which time further discussion will be held upon various issues and in which every resident of the Hilltop and especially members of the association are vitally interested.

HILLTOPLETS

A little Hilltop girl after looking at the "funnies" in the evening paper said to her daddy: "Daddy, is 'Hold-er-Newt' swearing."

A little incident happened one evening last fall, which illustrates how we are apt to blame others for our own troubles. When the paving on North Burgess avenue was finished all but the laying of the brick, the under surface was used by pedestrians. Two boys were riding on their scooters and had stopped about six feet from the manhole near Steele avenue, which protruded above the surface about five inches. One little fellow, without looking, started off on his scooter, ran directly against the manhole and took a header over the handle bars of his scooter. He got up, very angry, and said to the other boy: "Now look what you made me do."

A little son that helps to make things interesting in a Hilltop home had retired for the night. All at once he began laughing to beat the band. On being asked what he was laughing at, he remarked that he had "tickled himself."

Has it ever ocurred to you on those dark, cold mornings, the faithfulness of those Hilltop newsboys, who are out as early as 5:30, ready to supply early workers with the morning paper. We asked one boy how many papers he sold each morning and he said about 50. That means that boy got up at 5 o'clock each morning and hustled out on the street, braved the unpleasantness of such an occasion for the privilege of earning the small sum of about 25 cents or possibly a little more. Patronize them.

It was a few days before Christmas. A little five-year-old miss had just returned from a neighbors, who had their Christmas trees all decorated and lighted. She remarked that the tree was fixed up with all kinds of "junk" on it.

* * *

A west bound interurban car, last Saturday evening, split a switch on Sullivant avenue near Nashobe, and running on the lift track, ran into an east bound Camp Chase car, shoving it back for a considerable distance and smashing in nearly the whole front end of the vestibule. Motorman Blair, who was operating the car, jumped back and dodged most of the crash, and was reported to be somewhat injured, but not seriously. Several passengers on the car were shaken up, but none reported as being injured. Traffic was delayed about half an hour.

BONERS

Here is one a certain German acquaintance (we won't tell his name) related to us:

"My vife she write one Sunday to her seester in Parkersburg, W. Va., and ask her would she come and make a visit by her. Den she gafe me de letter to mail ven I go to vork next day. I say yes, I mail him. In a few days she say 'Vy don't I get answer by my seester, yet?' Quick like a vlash dot letter make me dink. I say to myself, I go right avay yet in the morning and mail him. Vel, next Sunday I set at home in my chair and I find dot letter in my pocket. I get right up and put on my hat and go like seexty to the drug store; I get a stamp and put it on the letter. Den I writes in beeg letters on the outside of the envelope: 'Answer immediately.' I mail him and go home, but I say nudings to my vife. Den in a couple of days my vife she say 'Vy, oh vy, I don't get dot answer by my seester?' I tell her dis beeg country—lots of Parkersburgs—maybe de letter go by another Parkersburg. But her seester she cum and bring dat letter and lay it on the table, with the postmark when it vas mailed and the big "answer immediately" on the outside. Ven day no lookin' I snatch up dot letter and peel off dot envelope un drow it in the fire. Den ve all liv happy afterward."

Here is a specimen of how some folks place a value on things just by the price they pay for them:

A West Side woman entered a shoe store (not a Hilltop one) run by a certain Jew, to buy a pair of shoes. The man carried but two assortments of the kind of shoes she desired—one for $5 and another for $2.50. He showed her the $5 ones, which she tried on, but asked if he did not have a higher priced shoe. He brought out the $2.50 shoes and told her they were $7. She tried them on and took them, paying him the $7. After she had departed, he turned to his clerk and said, pointing to the $2.50 assortment, "Mark 'em all $7".

BRIEF HISTORY OF FRIENDS' CHURCH

By MRS. BERT YOUNG

About the year of 1880, William P. Ong started a Union Sabbath School in a small room that stood on the corner of Whitethorne avenue and Broad street. Later a brick school building was erected on Clarendon avenue and permission was secured to hold union services for Sabbath school and church, Mr. Ong having charge most of the time. The Lord wonderfully blessed these efforts to advance His cause in every way. The writer recalls to memory one series of meetings conducted in this school house in which many were saved and some of the converts are still living, and in the Lord's service.

In the year 1893 the Friends erected our present meeting house, with Mr. Ong acting as its pastor for some time. The Lord has wonderfully blessed under the leadership of the men and women who have preached the whole gospel.

In about the year 1894, Mrs. Triphena Morris (deceased) came as our pastor and has been succeeded by the following pastors:

David Lewis (deceased
Lydia Romic and Mrs. Osborne (deceased)
Rev. and Mrs. Haldy (deceased)
Dewitt Foster
Fred Cope
Robert Pelt
Elizabeth Ward and Elisabeth Mott Haldy
Will Kirby
John Pennington
Herbert Handy
Daniel Hodgins
L. Edgar Elford, the present pastor

One of the most important events in the life of our meeting, occurred about the year 1911, when the Camp Chase Friends' work was laid down, and they united with Highland Avenue meeting.

During the life of our meeting many of the members got the vision of "fields white unto harvest," and obeyed the call and are laboring for the Master over many parts of the earth. Some are in school at this time preparing themselves for the Master's service.

Our fervent prayer is that the Church might get a still greater vision and continue to send out laborers.

With this record of steady growth in religious activities behind us, we are confident of the issues before us in the future. We are encouraged by the rich Friendly heritages of our society, that God will continue to lead toward greater victories.

The Society of Friends has throughout its history, held a high standard in every avenue of life. She has always stood firmly against the wrong of war, and strived to point clearly war's failure to settle disputes between nations. This attitude has now become more and more generally accepted by all leaders of religious thought. Yet, in ministering to the victims of war, Friends have been the first in the field. A most remarkable record was won by the Friends' Reconstruction Units in Germany, France and Russia. Peace for the world, participation in the League of Nations, and a vigorous remonstrance against increased armaments of war are some of the latest of our aggressive programs.

Friends were pioneers in prison reforms, both in England and America. Standing firm on our convictions, we fearlessly asserted slavery to be sin, in face of sympathizers in both the North and South, long before it became a national issue. Our educational activities among the negroes and Indians have resulted in making large numbers of these races assets instead of liabilities to society. From its very conception, the society has stood for liberal education of both sexes, and women were always placed upon an equal footing with men in all religious and civil affairs.

With these ideals before us, coupled with God as our leader, and you as our helper, we expect to take a renewed stand in the fight for better things in our community. Today we are offering to you a new place where God and man may have a meeting place, and renew His covenants with Him.

To the unchurched we extend a hand of Friendly Welcome to make our meeting your spiritual home. We believe it to be the duty of each family to build their altar of worship in some church. If you have no such altar fires burning, our doors are constantly open to receive you.

To the heart hungry, and sinsick soul, a feast with the Lord is always spread with His good things, where you may fill at your pleasure.

To you, our fellow churches, we bid you welcome in our re-dedicated edifice and we shall cherish your good will and co-operation as we strive to strike more effectively at the foundation of sin and unrighteousness in our midst.

Let us all covet the sweetness which cometh from "a closer walk with God."

REV. E. L. ELFORD, Pastor

STANDING ROOM ONLY

WAS THE WORD we were compelled to pass to those who came after time for the musical program to start on Sunday evening, January 4. Surely the good people of Columbus and especially the Hilltop are learning to appreciate the Hillcrest Baptist Choir. At every service W. E. Knox leads his choir of thirty or more in furnishing music that makes one want to come back.

Practical, Helpful Sermons

Are delivered every Sunday morning and evening. They are the kind that sends one away feeling his own importance in the world and filled with a determination to do his part to help make the Hilltop continue to be the best place in Columbus to live.

Will Christ Come to Earth Again?

IF SO, WHEN, AND IN WHAT FORM? Starting Sunday, January 11, Rev. E. E. McFarlane is preaching a series of sermons on this subject. Everyone living is interested in this question for it has to do with the destiny of man. Come! You are sure to be pleased and benefitted and you can be sure your presence will be appreciated.

SAFETY IN THE BUCKEYE

Is assured by competent management; men at the head who have grown up in the business of successfully handling money.

An institution where nothing is taken for granted. Where insurance of every known kind is carried to forestall loss. Where loans are made only on first mortgage real estate security at 6½%—on homes, which low rate attracts the best loans. Where all loans are approved by the Board of Directors. Where its reserve fund, for the protection of all members, is over a million dollars.

Certainly adequate safety for all careful investors.

4-YEAR OLD BOY STRUCK BY AUTO

Earl Ruhl, Jr., Taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital in Unconscious Condition.

Earl Ruhl, jr., four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ruhl, 390 South Warren avenue, was taken to Mt. Carmel hospital in an unconscious condition Monday after he was struck at Glenwood and Sullivant avenues by the auto of P. J. Cathell, 281 Belvidere avenue. The child was walking with his parents and, police said, the motorist, unable to see clearly because of a film of ice on the windshield of his car, discerned the pedestrians too late to avoid skidding into them. At the hospital, physicians said the boy had suffered a brain concussion and perhaps a fractured skull.

Reports from Mt. Carmel hospital Wednesday indicated that he showed a light improvement, being conscious a part of the time.

While visiting in Washington, D. C., during the last two weeks, Rev. R. E. Shields called on Miss Ruth Merriman, who is taking training at the Lucy Webb Hayes Training school and found her in a fine atmosphere of religious work. The school is one of the largest Methodist training schools in the east and is in connection with a beautiful and finely equipped hospital which covers an entire city block. Miss Merriman is highly esteemed in the school and is doing laboratory religious work at a nearby Methodist church. She sends greetings to her many friends and invites any who may be in Washington to call on her at the school.

Westwood lodge defeated Coll lodge, 28 to 8, and Joseph Dowdall lodge defeated Champion, 24 to 4, in the games of the K. of P. Basket Ball league at Olentangy school last Monday evening.

At the games next Monday evening, Westwood will play Champion and Coll and Joseph Dowdall will oppose each other. It also is planned to have a preliminary game between two girls' teams.

The regular weekly Story Hour will take place at the Holmes library, Saturday afternoon from 1 to 2 o'clock. All children are invited to be present.

The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rees, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Houdashelt, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Jordan, Mr. and Mrs. Orris Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. D. U. Miss Nina G. Figley of Wynters' School of Expression gave an excellent recital at Burgess Avenue U. B. church Tuesday evening. Her program was well balanced, presenting in turn, humor, pathos, patriotism and religion and almost every selection showed real merit. A comedy monologue, "Old Farmer's Theory," was a good impersonation of an old farmer who laughs at modern methods, plants his crops, cuts his hay and butchers his hogs "in the moon." The whole group of child impersonations, "Opportunity," "Moo Cow Moo" and "Josie Hanna," was done with insight into child life. Miss Figley has imagination, vivacity, sympathy and emotional power deserving of a much larger audience than heard her Tuesday evening.

Lincoln Essay Contest

The names of Washington and Lincoln have been the outstanding ones in our history as the two greatest Americans. Many debates and discussions have taken place as to which of these two was the greatest. George Washington has always been acknowledged as the father of our country and Abraham Lincoln has been looked upon as the one who saved our country, and the one whose great heartedness has made an everlasting impression upon the hearts of the past and present generations.

February 12th being the birthday anniversary of Lincoln we expect to do honor to his memory in the columns of The Record. The main feature of that issue will be a number of short stories which we are going to ask to be written by our boys and girls in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades of our Hilltop schools.

Here is the way it is to be done: Any boy or girl attending any one of the Hilltop schools, in either the fourth, fifth or sixth grades is eligible to enter the contest. He or she is to write plainly, on one side of the sheet only, in ink, a short story or anecdote connected with the life of Abraham Lincoln. The composition must be the product of the one entering the contest, and without the assistance of any other person. The story is not to be over 350 words in length.

After you have finished your composition, fold it neatly, put it in a plain white envelope and SEAL TIGHTLY and bring to The Record office. We will put a number on the envelope, take your name, school and address and put your number opposite your name.

On Feb. 6, by which date all stories must be in The Record Office, we will turn all the sealed envelopes containing the stories over to competent judges, who will open them and grade them—on composition, penmanship, spelling and neatness. The judges will not see the names, but will go by numbers only.

After thoroughly examining them they will grade them as to standing, marking "first," "second," "third," "fourth" and "fifth," also honorable mention. Then they will return them to this office and we will publish the result, together with the stories as written by those pupils.

To the one being awarded first place we will give $2.50 in money, the second $1.50, third $1.00 and the fourth and fifth 50 cents each.

Now, get busy, boys and girls, and see what you can do. But remember the rules—the story MUST be composed entirely by the pupil entering the contest. We will have no way of knowing this, but as you are to write about a person who was thoroughly honest and fair at all times, we believe your conscience will not let you do otherwise.

All stories must be in The Record office not later than 5 p. m. Friday, Feb. 6.

The Record office is located on the second floor, over Cussins & Hartsough's store, at 2854 West Broad street. The office is open each evening until 5 o'clock and until 11:30 Saturday morning. For further information phone The Record office, Hilltop 489-J.

WANTS SEWERS AT ANY COST

Favors Plan of Assessing Each Hilltop Lot $40 to Finance Project.

There has been much discussion among Hilltop residents relative to the construction of sewers for the relief of this section of the city. As published in last week's Record, Engineer Simpson addressed the Hilltop Civic association on this subject and laid before that body two plans for financing a sanitary sewer for the Hilltop.

The following is a communication received by The Record favoring the assessing of $40 against each Hilltop lot for this purpose. We neither sanction nor condemn the article, but give it to you at its face value;

Publishers Hilltop Record:

I read in your last week's paper where City Engineer Simpson stated, at the meeting of the Hilltop Civic association, about financing the building of better sanitary sewers on the Hilltop by assessing each Hilltop property at about $40 a lot. It struck me that that would be a good plan. First, it would not require much red tape to get it going, and it could be gotten at without so much delay if we went at it. Everybody knows we need some way to keep the water out of our cellars every time we have a hard rain, and as the plan above suggested would cost only about $8 a year for five years there is no one who ought to kick on that, as every time a cellar gets three or four feet of water into it, the damages amounts to more than that. Let's get at this matter and get it done some way and do it quick. Let's hear from others.

A Hilltop Home Owner.

The Willing Workers' class of Burgess Avenue U. B. church met at the home of Mrs. John Miller, 2733 Sullivant avenue, Jan. 21. Miss Riebel was assistant hostess. Refreshments were served. Mrs. Lantz and Mrs. Werthen sang "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." Those present were: Mrs. L. Karnes, Mrs. John Miller, Mrs. Pencile, Mrs. Gover, Mrs. Lantz, Mrs. H. O'Harra, Mrs. Werthen, Miss Reible, Mrs. Hayes. A George Washington birthday party was planned to be held at the home of Mrs. H. O'Harra, 288 South Warren avenue.

At the Merit Badge Court of Review Saturday evening, Jan. 10, Gerald Wilson of Troop 21, passed the necessary requirements for Eagle Scout. To become an Eagle Scout it is necessary to earn merit badges in first aid, personal health, public health, life saving, camping, cooking, swimming, pioneering, athletics, bird study, civics and 10 others of his own choosing, making a total of 21 merit badges. This makes the fourth Eagle Scout on the West Side, and all of them are members of Troop 21, at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church.

It will be remembered that Scout Wilson was recently selected on the "All-Columbus" scout troop, which is a distinctive honor for Columbus scouts.

Gerald resides with his parents at 145 North Eureka avenue.

GOOD PROGRAM AT P.-T. A. MEETING

Business and Father and Son Meeting—Varied Numbers on Program.

The Father and Son's meeting of the West Broad Parent-Teacher association was held Friday evening, Jan. 16 with a good attendance.

After a short business session, Mrs. Hubbard Jones took charge of the program in absence of the chairman of the entertainment committee, Mrs. R. E. Shields. A number of variations on some of the popular songs were rendered, directed by Mr. Allison.

Rev. Elford spoke on "What a Father Owes a Son," and Manley Rankin and Jewel Close, sixth grade pupils, responded with "What a Son Owes a Father." Delano Schanck gave "My Father's Name." Mrs. Jones then introduced Mr. Spyker, secretary of the boys' division of Y. M. C. A., father of four boys, and connected with the Y. M. C. A. for 14 years. He spoke on the "Problem of Father and Son," which was very interesting to all.

Mrs. Mangen's room received the school pennant for the largest attendance of parents at this meeting.

During the absence of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Thomas, 1864 Bedford Place, Arlington, Miss Lena Stutzman, 49 North Warren avenue, is in charge of their home. The four sons remained at home.

Mrs. Herman Fisher of Brooklyn, N. Y., is visiting with her brothers, John Evans, 97 Oakley avenue, and Edward Evans, 2057 West Broad street.

BONERS

A certain proprietor and manager of a Ford coupe was driving along one of our thoroughfares when all at once he discovered that his supply of gas had vanished. He drove up to the curb and stopped just ahead of another Ford coupe that was parked there. Then he walked to the nearest filling station and procured a small supply of gas in a quart measure and walked back to the machine, lifted up the seat and put the gas in the tank. Getting in, he drove back to the filling station for a larger supply. After he got there he discovered he had put the gas in the other coupe instead of his own, and lost no time in getting said flivver back to its parking place, but had to repeat the job of getting gas for his own machine.

On returning home from the shop one evening a Hilltop workingman discovered his wife was not home and the doors all locked. After trying several different windows he finally succeeded in getting into the home, where he found, lying on the dining table, a note stating that she might be a little late getting home and that he would find the door key in a certain place on the outside of the house.

To the Ladies of the Past Presidents' Association of the McCoy Relief Corps, No. 56, Columbus, Ohio:

We would consider ourselves most unkind, ungrateful and unworthy Civil war veterans if we failed to acknowledge the receipt of the two handsome, comfortable and useful bath robes recently given us by your society. We beg to assure you that these articles will ever be held in kind remembrance and cherished as precious gifts coming from a band of patriotic women whom we know to have the welfare and comfort of the Civil war veterans and theirs, uppermost in their noble hearts.

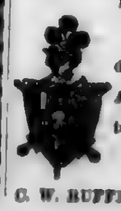
Property owners of Franklin county will have until the end of February to meet their tax bills. This announcement was made by County Treasurer Ginder Monday.

Delay in getting the tax books ready for collection because of the reappraisement is given as the reason for extending the time.

That Columbus automobile owners oppose a straight two cents a gallon gasoline tax is shown by returns from 3000 members of the Columbus Automobile club to whom questionnaires were sent last week.



The returns show the opposition to be about 8 to 1. However they do favor such a tax if license fees for pleasure cars are reduced to $3 a year. The present license fees range from $3 to $32 a year for pleasure cars.

HEALTH HINTS

By DR. O. R. McFADON

NUTRITIOUS FOOD TO BE AVOIDED.

Apropos of my present hobby—fruits and vegetables, versus the more staple foods: I was entertained at lunch within the past week by some very good friends, in their ideal home, and I cannot say too much for their genial hospitality and the best food the market affords. The white bread was very fine and I ate lightly of it and enjoyed it; the noodles—a favorite dish of mine—were altogether lovely; the boiled ham was delectable and those people saw me eat it and enjoy it, in the face of my oft repeated statement that "I don't eat meat." There were other foods, equally as nutritious and toothsome, followed by fruit—of which I ate more freely than they.

This meal was good for me, inasmuch as it balanced up beautifully with my morning and night meals of fruits and vegetables. In my case, the day's balance was, approximately 1 part staple foods and 3 parts vegetables and fruits. But with my good friends it was, more than likely, 3 parts staple foods to 1 of fruits and lighter vegetables—the three meals considered. If they keep up this rate every day, as they confessedly do, they have a dietary by which their weight gradually increases.

They are already overweight, and in the sixties, when overweight is a menace. My weight is normal and decreasing rather than increasing.

Life insurance companies say—and they know—that up to the age of 40, weight may increase with age, but above 40 it should not. It is the overweight people that die suddenly, as a rule, or that have diseased hearts, hardened arteries, high blood pressure, etc., and the 3 to 1 staple foods is the insidious cause of it.

The sedentary family that are brought up on and maintain the 3 to 1 proposition in favor of fruits and vegetables will prove longer lived and freer from disease than will the family that lives largely upon staple foods. This makes the subject one of great breadth and importance.

It is not reasonable to say that our distress comes from any one food; the entire meal must be considered. It is hardly fair to condemn any one meal without considering the three meals as a unit. Likewise the meals of the week should be considered together; and why not the meals of the season, which should be consistent, then of the year, and, if the basis of reasoning and practice be sound, a life program becomes easy. This leads us beyond the limit of these necessarily short preachments.

The one point I would have the reader get in proper perspective is that the nutritive value in foods, however important to know, are not a proper basis for evaluation. It is easy for the public to fall into the belief that the more nutritious a food, the more benefit to the body, but nothing could be farther from the fact.

It is the highly nutritious foods that, slowly and insidiously, bring on the diseases that are so common as to be thought "a matter of course and peculiar to advanced age." As, for instance, there is a definite relation between the excess of protein we get from our daily bread and meat, and such conditions as gout, rheumatism, overworked hearts, apoplexy, etc. Excess of weight above the normal, means, usually, that an excess of food beyond actual needs has been taken, and that excess results in stored up tissue which is too often thought to be a sign of health, when in reality it is a menace. It is not only a burden, by reason of its weight, but, what is more important, it requires extra nerve energy to maintain.

Those who pride themselves upon their hearty eating can, in a measure, avoid this danger by reforming the diet as already suggested—by substituting the 3 to 1 vegetables and fruits for the 3 to 1 staple foods.

The housewife who cooks for a family of hearty eaters, cannot do a better service for her family, than to keep this in mind and provide for them on this 3 to 1 basis of non-starchy vegetables and fruits. "Yes, verily," the

BACK TRAILING ON OLD SCHOOL DAYS

Rev. Mr. Drumm, a couple of weeks ago, in writing of his old school days in The Record quoted one of the old classics "The Spider and the Fly," a poem which I have often recalled but could remember only a part of it. Another old poem we used to read in McGuffey's Fourth Reader—"Meddlesome Matty"—I used to enjoy reading over and over in my school days. And the lesson it conveyed to my mind seemed to have a lasting effect on my behavior along that particular line. It is copied as follows:

MEDDLESOME MATTY

Oh, how one ugly trick has spoiled
The sweetest and the best!
Matilda, though a pleasant child,
One gravious fault possessed,
Which, like a cloud before the skies,
Hid all her better qualities.

Sometimes, she'd lift the tea-pot lid
To peep at what was in it;
Or tilt the kettle, if you did
But turn your back a minute.
In vain you told her not to touch,
Her trick of meddling grew so much

Her grandmamma went out one day
And, by mistake, she laid
Her spectacles and snuff-box gay,
Too near the little maid;
"Ah! well," thought she, "I'll try them on,
As soon as grandmamma is gone."

Forthwith, she placed upon her nose
The glasses huge and wide;
And looking round, as I suppose,
The snuff-box, too, she spied.
"Oh, what a pretty box is this!
I'll open it," said little miss.

"I know that grandmamma would say,
'Don't meddle with it, dear;'
But then she's far enough away,
And no one else is near;
Besides, what can there be amiss
In opening such a box as this?"

So, thumb and finger went to work
To move the stubborn lid;
And, presently, a mighty jerk
The mighty mischief did;
For all at once, ah! woeful case!
The snuff came puffing in her face,

Poor eyes, and nose, and mouth, and chin
A dismal sight presented;
And as the snuff got further in,
Sincerely she repented;
In vain she ran about for ease,
She could do nothing else but sneeze

She dashed the spectacles away,
To wipe her tingling eyes;
And, as in twenty bits they lay,
Her grandmamma she spies
"Heyday! and what's the matter now?"
Cried grandmamma, with angry brow.

Matilda, smarting with the pain,
And tingling still, and sore,
Made many a promise to refrain
From meddling evermore;
And 'tis a fact, as I have heard,
She ever since has kept her word

One of the big amusements the girls of those days participated in was "button strings." A girl would select a good stout string of suitable length, then she would tie a pretty button of some sort on one end, and if she had many more they would be strung on the string and slipped to the end next to the first button. Then all the neighborhood "winmen," cousins, aunts, etc., were solicited for pretty buttons as a contribution to her string. If she should get two or three of the same kind, a trade-off was made with some other girl—thus accumulating a variety. Sometimes a girl would have a string of buttons two or three feet long. If she preferred, she could wear the string about her neck.

Collections of all kinds of small coins and postage stamps was also indulged in by different youngsters who had the advantages to do so. The collections of some boys consisted of coins of many different nations and states and many of them were quite valuable.

I wonder how many present-day grown-ups who enjoyed the old McGuffey days can recall the different varieties of pieces of money that were in circulation in those days. As near as I can remember them they were as follows: The coins were: one cent pieces (3 kinds, white, small copper and large copper), copper two-cent pieces, three-cent pieces (two kinds—one nickel about the side of a dime, and one silver, much smaller), the nickel, also silver half dime, the silver dime, quarter, half-dollar and dollar; besides the gold coins. Then there were in paper money (shin plasters) three cents, five cents, 10 cents, 15 cents, 25 cents, 50 cents, besides the regular dollars, etc. I have often wondered how folks kept track of so many different kinds of money and what they were put in circulation for, but the reason can probably be traced back from some cause or other. Then, besides those, there was in circulation for a while a coin called the "trade dollar," which had at times a valuation fluctuating from 80 to 90 cents of the prevailing money

Having read in your paper the articles on "Back Trailing on Old School Days" by Rev. Mr. Drumm and W. S. has led me to thinking of the present school days and wonder if these men appreciate or understand just what the schools of today are accomplishing. For myself, I might say in the beginning, that I, too, went to school a number of years ago and also used the McGuffey series in my earlier school days and would not for one minute belittle the good they accomplished. On the other hand, has it occurred to these gentlemen that the people at the head of our present school system are men and women of some years and undoubtedly also were students at the time the McGuffey series was in vogue, have made a study of conditions, compared the "old times" with the present and have seen fit to make a change for the better?

Under the "good old days" we were taught our A, B, C's, beginning with A and going on down the line to &, and now when we want to say a portion of the alphabet or locate a letter we have to back up the line and say our "letters" until we come to the one we want. Compare this antiquated method with our present system of sight reading and later learning the "letters." Be honest with yourself and see if your decision does not favor the more modern method.

Again, if I remember correctly, something was mentioned about singing and how the scholars would see how loud they could make the old song ring out and how far it could be heard. Last Friday evening at the West Broad P.-T. A. meeting the boys' chorus gave several numbers on the program that illustrated what the schools are doing in the music line. They gave us some real singing, with expression and melody, and noise, and I am sure W. S. would have no doubt in his mind as to which was the better when comparing the old singing and the kind that is produced under the instruction in our schools today.

They also have mentioned about the good times they had at play. I grant you they were times to be remembered, for I remember them myself, but of what constructive value were they? We played any way and anything to amuse ourselves; had nothing definite in our minds, and we were lucky that we did not get our necks broken. Today the children have instruction in playing as well as studying and when they have finished they have done something to develop their minds, bodies and souls.

Not very long ago I heard an address in which the speaker, in my estimation, hit the nail on the head when he said no one would want to go back to conditions as they existed 40 years ago when oil lamps were in vogue, only the very wealthy could afford a bath in their house, very few people had the advantages of gas, few furnaces were in use and our present modes of transportation were hardly thought of. Those old times are very nice to think about, but please don't make us go through them again. And is not the same thing true of our old school days? They are very nice to be reminiscent about, but we don't want to torture our children with them.

P.-T. A. Member.

ARISTOCRATS IN MILLINERY COUNTENANCE WIDER BRIMS

One would not expect to find wider brimmed hats gradually gaining on their popular small-hat rivals for mid-winter wear, but such appears to be the case. The last word from Paris finds an echo in American style centers, and it concerns wider brims and high, peaked crowns. Further-more, besides the flowers that bloom in the spring there are others that bloom in millinery fields when midwinter approaches. Among these new varieties have made their appearance—glass flowers and woolen blossoms—and it is safe to predict that they will be joyously acclaimed.

In the group of hats shown here there are four models that exploit the wider-brim idea and one novel, small hat. Black lace and satin join their smart forces in the poke shape at the top of the picture, making a softly suave and flowing line about the face and a fine background for a gorgeous silk and velvet rose and foliage. Below it is a hat with brim of black hatters' plush rolling upward at the front and joined in a crown of fine white felt. The excellence of their union is emphasized by a long, narrow scarf of ermine that extends about the crown and creeps about in an intricate knot at the front. The small hat that confidently takes its stand among these aristocrats of millinery is a beaver in a deep beige shade. The new, beautiful and somewhat startling leopard-skin velvet—black and yellow—brings the sun of the tropics to defy mid-winter. A wide scarf of this velvet about the crown ends in a bow at the side.

A dignified and tall-crowned hat of purple velvet, shown below, has its crown almost covered with ostrich feathers in fuchsia and orchid shades. Brown velvet and darker brown fur in a draped hat finish the group with a gem of superb but quiet millinery.

Julia Bottomley.

HILLTOPLETS

Do you ever get over on Broad street after dark? What do you think of the street lighting (we think just as much of it as you do)? To a stranger it would appear that he were in a small village instead of on a main thoroughfare of a suburb of 35,000 people. Broad street being the main artery into Columbus from the west and a part of the National road, travelers and tourists do not have much to recommend Columbus to them as they enter the city. Could we not at least have a bright welcome from our streets for these travelers when entering the Hilltop in the evening and let them know that we think just as much of the Hilltop and Columbus as we would have them think

And then there is the condition of the paving on Broad street from the foot of the hill west to Hague avenue. This stretch of paving reminds us of some of the antiquated streets we have driven over in some other cities and which we were prone to speak of in very strong terms.

* * *

But there are several thing of which we Hilltoppers can feel justly proud and one is the class of new residence property which the Hilltop has acquired in the past year or two, especially in the western and southeastern sections of the Hilltop, thanks to the energetic real estate men, conscientious builders and progressive home owners.

And while in a pleasant mood: have you noticed that the new addition to the West Broad street school is almost completed and will be ready for occupancy beginning with the February semester, which will give additional facilities for the children attending this school and give all an equal chance to attend school full time instead of half time as part of the children have been compelled to do?

Congratulations to the members of the Highland Avenue Friends church upon the completion of their remodeling program.

To the children in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades of our Hilltop schools: Get in the Lincoln contest. See details in another column of this issue.

That merchants on the Hilltop mean what they say in their advertisements and when they advertise a sale it is a sale, was illustrated the other day when a Hilltop lady made a purchase at a Hilltop store which is putting on a sale. The lady purchased an article at 10c per. She failed to get all she needed and returned to the store to get enough for her requirements. Unfortunately the store had sold all of this particular article and the patron was compelled to go "down town" to supply her requirements. She paid 24c per for the same article.

Hauntz's Quarter Sale begins Friday, Jan. 23, and will continue for one week.

STATE LAUNDRY NOW OPERATING

Reopened Exactly Three Months After Former Building Was Burned.

Record time was made in rebuilding the laundry building at the feebleminded institution, which was destroyed by fire early last fall.

Just three months after the destruction of the building, it was reopened Tuesday and the clothing of the 2000 wards at the institution was run through the wringers and mangles of the new laundry.

The total cost of rebuilding the new plant, including machinery, was less than $230,000, while the original estimate of the cost made directly after the fire was approximately $40,000.

Hauntz's Quarter Sale begins Friday, Jan. 23, and will continue for one week.

PAPER SALE IS HUGE SUCCESS

School Children of West Broad School Gather and Sell Immense Amount of Paper

Can you imagine 14½ tons of old papers and magazines stored in the gymnasium at West Broad Street school. Well that amount represented the efforts of the children of the school last week when they made their drive for old papers and magazines. That the work was worth while is shown by the receipts from its sale, which amounted to $222.11.

The money from its sale will be used for the purchase of flags, pictures, supplementary readers, etc., for the rooms in the new part of the building which will be opened with the beginning of the new semester in February.

Miss Catherine Hutt's school received the building prize, and Catherine Abbe, 6A, and Elvin Lorenzo, 4B, the special prizes for bringing in the greatest number of pounds.

The Hilltop Church of Christ choir held their monthly business meeting and social at the home of Helen Hauer, 36 South Oakley avenue, Tuesday evening, Jan. 13. A six o'clock dinner was served.

LECTURE COURSE NUMBER

On Tuesday evening, Feb. 10, at Glenwood M. E. church, the next number of the Hilltop lecture course will be given by the Golden Gate Concert company. This company is a de luxe novelty organization which not only plays most expressively the dreamy, enchanting music of Hawaii on the ukulele, steel guitar, banjo, mandolin, violin and piano, but also interprets most artistically, by means of these instruments, popular, semi-classic and classic American and European music, including renditions from great operatic compositions. Vocal selections add still further variety.

DEDICATE FRIENDS CHURCH SUNDAY

At 10:30 Sunday morning Rev. Samuel Mosher, superintendent of the Ohio Yearly Meeting of Friends, will conduct the dedicatory services of the newly remodeled Friends' church on Highland avenue. The special music will be in charge of the Davidson Evangelistic party, which has been conducting revival services for the past 10 days. Lunch will be served at noon and the afternoon services will be devoted to the young people's activities.

The Friends congregation numbers about 300. They have spent about $5000 beautifying their church with new art glass windows, floors and furnishings. The pulpit and choir loft have been rebuilt to better suit the auditorium, and the walls also have been completely redecorated. One member presented the church with beautiful new seats, which, with the new lighting system, presents a very neat appearance in the way of church interiors.

The public is invited to attend these services.

Lincoln Essay Contest

The Lincoln Essay Contest as announced in The Record last week, is creating much interest among the school children of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades. Here is a good chance for some boy or girl to get a little "spending money" and at the same time get a good practice along school study lines also.

Here is the way it is to be done: Any boy or girl attending any one of the Hilltop schools, in either the fourth, fifth or sixth grades is eligible to enter the contest. He or she is to write plainly, on one side of the sheet only, in ink, a short story or anecdote connected with the life of Abraham Lincoln. The composition must be the product of the one entering the contest, and without the assistance of any other person. The story is not to be over 350 words in length.

After you have finished your composition, fold it neatly, put it in a plain white envelope and SEAL TIGHTLY and bring to The Record office. We will put a number on the envelope, take your name, school and address and put your number opposite your name.

On Feb. 6, by which date all stories must be in The Record Office, we will turn all the sealed envelopes containing the stories over to competent judges, who will open them and grade them—on composition, penmanship, spelling and neatness. The judges will not see the names, but will go by numbers only.

After thoroughly examining them they will grade them as to standing, marking "first," "second," "third," "fourth" and "fifth," also honorable mention. Then they will return them to this office and we will publish the result, together with the stories as written by those pupils, Feb. 12th.

To the one being awarded first place we will give $2.50 in money, the second $1.50, third $1.00 and the fourth and fifth 50 cents each.

All stories must be in The Record office not later than 5 p. m. Friday, Feb. 6.

Get at it, boys and girls, and bring in your story to The Record Office, over Cussins & Hartsough's store, 2354 West Broad street. The office is open each evening until 5 p. m., excepting Saturday, until 11:30.

POLICEMAN OPERATED ON

While patroling his beat Tuesday night Policeman J. P. Pennell, 883 Wrexham avenue, became suddenly ill about midnight. He was taken to St. Francis hospital where he underwent an operation for a stomach ailment. He was patroling his beat at Eighteenth avenue and High street when he was stricken.

HILLTOPLETS

If you have not yet destroyed your piece of smoked glass you used in eclipse gazing Saturday, you might retain it till next Monday and try to catch a glimpse of his honor, "Sir Groundhog," as he makes his debut between the sun and the earth, after which, groundhog experts tell us, if said sun succeeds in "registering" on his anatomy, he'll curl his little tail southward beneath him and hit it up for his domicile to remain there till Monday, March 16, Eastern time.

Three sisters of a prominent Hilltop family attended summer school for special work. In the course of their studies the teacher, one day, remarked to the younger one that she guessed the older sister was about the smartest one in their family, whereupon the younger remarked, "Oh, no! Daddy is."

The fire department was called to 76 North Harris avenue last Monday afternoon on account of a chimney burning out.

Messrs Orr & Day, contractors, will soon begin the erection of eight new six-room homes on the Hilltop. Five of them will be on Binns Boulevard, one on Westmoore, one on North Park and one on South Ogden avenue.

AUTO ACCIDENT PROVES FATAL TO YOUNG CHILD

Earl Ruhl, Jr., Died at Mt. Carmel Hospital Last Friday Morning.

As a result of injuries sustained last week when he was struck by an automobile at Glenwood and Sullivant avenues, Earl Ruhl, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ruhl, 390 South Warren avenue, died Friday at Mt. Carmel hospital.

The child, with his parents, were on their way to the home of Mr. Ruhl's parents, and were walking in Glenwood avenue when they were struck by the automobile of P. J. Cathell, 281 Belvidere avenue, at Sullivant avenue, the child receiving two fractures of the skull and a broken spine. The parents were uninjured.

Funeral services were held from the residence of the parents Monday afternoon and burial was made in Green Lawn cemetery.

Junior League Banquet

On last Friday evening the Junior leaguers of Glenwood church enjoyed a banquet at which 75 of their number were present. The banquet was given by the losing side in a recent membership contest, during which the enrollment was increased from 50 to 95 members.

Enthusiastic yells and songs, led by Harold Smith, Robert Nichols and Paul Spring, proved the life interest that the children have in their organization.

After the banquet an interesting program was announced by the toastmaster, Paul Spring. Mary Allison gave a piano solo, Harold Smith a reading, Charles Walton a solo, Ines Buscher a reading, Dr. Barber a talk and Helen Blair a violin solo.

NEW BOOKS ARE PLACED ON H. T. LIBRARY SHELVES

Of Interest to All Ages, and Books Especially for the Younger Members.

Several new and interesting books have come to the library very recently.

"Jane Journeys On," by Ruth Comfort Mitchell, and "The Bent Twig," by Dorothy Canfield, are two excellent stories to be found on the free shelf of adult fiction.

For the younger members there are:

"Young Wireless Operator as Fire Patrol" by Theiss.

"Boys of St. Timothys" by Pier.

"Land and Sea Tales for Scouts and Scoutmasters," by Kipling. This book was contributed by a young member of the library.

Two books for school reports, "Great Inventors and Their Inventions" by Bach and "The Wonderful Adventures of Nils" translated from the Swedish of Selma Lagerlof.

A book which will be a favorite with boys because it tells of Indian warfare is "Campfire and Trail" by R. Clyde Ford. A real story of the Pontiac war, this book will also be interesting to adults.

Children of 10 to 15 years will like "Dapples of the Circus," by Clarence Hawkes—a story of a Shetland pony and a boy.

Many of the old books have been resewed and bound in substantial buckram colors. A bulletin board has been put up in the library.

The Story Hour from 1 to 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoons, conducted by the Child Conservation league, is much enjoyed by the children.

WOULD ASSESS ACCORDING TO DAMAGE DONE

Believes Flat Assessment of $40 Per Lot Is Unfair to All Concerned.

I wish to reply to "A Hilltop Home Owner" in last week's Record, who wants sewers at any cost:

Publishers Hilltop Record:

It seems as if some Hilltop property owners and others want and need better sewer outlets, but want people who are not able to pay $40, to pay the same amount as those who are able to pay and need it.

Take in the territory from one block west of Hague avenue and two blocks south of Broad and east to Glenwood, and there is not one basement out of 10 that has water in it or flooded, or ever has been. The most trouble is in business houses and office basements.

My idea is to assess according to damage done each property owner, and not make people pay bills for what they do not need. This is another point of view from one who wants to see fair play and everything done that will be for the interest and welfare of Hilltop residents.

Property Owner.

BONERS

Going swimming was one of Jim's "long suits" during the summer months. One day his father forbade him going swimming. All right, Jim hung around home. Not many hours hence some of the gang happened along. A familiar whistle and Jim was in view; then a bunch of "two fingers" worked the temptation racket, and quicker than it takes to tell it, Jim and the gang were headed for the old swimming hole. After a sufficiency there the customary "three-piece suits" (hat, shirt and pants) were donned and they headed homeward. On arriving there Jim's father accosted him with, "You've been swimming." "No, sir," answered Jim. "Then, how did you get your shirt on wrong side out?" asked father, whereupon Jim answered, "I did it climbing over the fence."

This may not be a thoroughbred "boner," but it is a pretty good imitation of one: Our good friend, E. C. Holz, who has a tailoring shop in the rear of Cussins & Hartsough's store, went to the cellar the other day to fire the furnace. With a big shovel of coal he started for the furnace when all at once—"bim," his perpendicularity became suddenly upset and he lay on his back on the cellar floor with the coal supply spread neatly and completely over his anatomy. He had attempted a left-hand turn in high gear under the hot air furnace pipe without the proper customary "ducking" ceremony, whereupon the pipe bumped him on top of his head right where the "upholstery" wasn't. If you don't think he had an impressive time, ask him to exhibit the scar.

A prominent Hilltopper, who also is a very early riser, recently paid a week-end visit to his daughter in the nothern part of the state. He was very much elated that at this time he could do as he pleased and among other things he would enjoy was the opportunity to sleep as long as he wished to. Sunday morning he slept until a late hour and upon arising proceeded to make himself presentable. He got out his razor, honed and whetted it until it was in tip-top shape; got out his paraphernalia to lather his face, squeezed a concoction from a tube onto a brush and proceeded to lather his face. He had everything in good shape and began rubbing. However, it seemed that no difference how hard or how long he rubbed, the lather would not come. He took another look at the tube and found, to his dismay, that he was using tooth paste.

BACK TRAILING ON OLD SCHOOL DAYS

By W. S.

I read the communication from a "P.-T. A. Member" in last week's Record wherein he makes comparison between the school methods and modes of living 40 years ago and those of the present time. He sought a challenging mood between the "loud" and intensive singing of the pupils of those days and the "cultured" voices in today's school room.

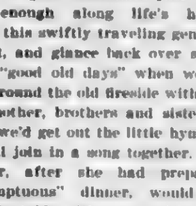
Yes, culture and training is a fine thing, but not everything. I have listened to highly trained singers in church choirs whose voices and training seemed to be superb, but that was all there was to it—"voices and nothing more." Then again I've heard singing from the lips of the more humble and untrained that had power to stir the hearts of their hearers as perhaps nothing else could do.

So I believe that while culture can be a blessing and something that should be attained, yet it will surely topple and pull its subject down to an unhappy and unprofitable existence unless its foundations are built upon the eternal "Rock" of which that song mentioned in The Record a couple of weeks ago.

So I believe it is with our school system of today. We have invested hundreds of thousands of dollars in buildings and equipment, have employed the best and most capable instructors available, have put our boys and girls in their care, and are teaching them by advanced and modern methods far ahead of those of 40 or 50 years ago, and point with pride to it all, for which we have a right to do; but if we let all this turn our heads and forsake the instilling into the hearts of those young lives the very vital principles that were given us by the great teacher, who lived and died for them, then I believe the time will come when there will be a recognition of our sad mistake.

It's true the old school days of 40 years ago were crude as compared with those of today. And the further we turn back, the more crude they become. But it is also true, and well known, that a very large percentage of our greatest men in American history were products of the crude methods. But over against that they were men with hearts fully established with the principles of righteousness.

Yes, brother (or sister) "P.-T. A. Member" I'll agree with you that I would not care to go back to those old days myself, but nevertheless, it seems to do us good sometimes just to stop long enough along life's highway 'midst this swiftly traveling generation to rest, and glance back over some of those "good old days" when we gathered around the old fireside with father and mother, brothers and sisters, and when we'd get out the little hymn book and all join in a song together. When mother, after she had prepared a "scrumptuous" dinner, would stand over the table with a paper "fly broom" swinging above our heads as we ate to our satisfaction.



And as we go onward, life seems as a road up a mountain side. Once we were down at the base, but now we've ascended far up the way and as we turn and look backward our vision stretches away out over years and years gone by, and yonder, far down behind us is the old home, the river with its tall sycamores standing along the banks by the swimming hole. There's the school house and the hickory tree near by which we used to bump and gather up the nuts from beneath it, and—well, I might enumerate the hundred and one places, but I must close. But I know we all do, at times, take pleasure in visiting "memory's art gallery" and taking a look at the old scenes of long ago.

Professor Eddington, an English astronomer, reports that he has found a star compound, he believes, of matter 2000 times heavier than any substance found here on earth. A teaspoonful of water weighs only a small fraction of an ounce, but a teaspoonful of this matter would weight 301 pounds. This star is a companion of the "Dog Star," Sirius, and from the rotation of these stars to each other, as discovered by the spectroscope and telescope, it is possible to calculate the weight of the star.

LETTER FROM REV. P. W. DRUMM

The following letter was received from Rev. P. W. Drumm, North Burgess avenue, who, with Mrs. Drumm is sojourning at St. Cloud, Fla.:

We left Columbus the morning of Jan. 7, at 3:30 a. m., and arrived at St. Cloud Thursday at 5:30 p. m. Our train was on time and our trip was mostly in daylight, giving us a fine opportunity to see the country, which was very interesting to us, however, disappointing. We went via the Pennsylvania and L. & N. railroads, and doubtless many of your readers are familiar with the country along that route. The whole way through Kentucky we saw nothing but poor land—hills, rocks and tunnels. There are very few decent looking houses along the way. In fact, there are not many homes of any sort, but most are poor shacks with very uninviting surroundings. By what we could see of the cities which we passed through, they are thrifty and progressive. But what shall we say of Tennessee? Well, the scenery is fine, especially the southern part. We feasted our eyes upon it, and enjoyed every minute of the way. I do not know just what this country produces, but its physical aspects are wonderful; but how anybody could live and enjoy life in such a poor, barren, and apparently God-forsaken region, is beyond my comprehension. Now I am not speaking of the whole state, but simply of the section through which we passed.. There are some fine cities and prosperous looking towns, but the country places are simply poor and wretched in appearance.

Georgia is more level and apparently more fertile, but very little of it under cultivation. Large forests of pine confront one at every turn. Most of these trees that are large enough, and we passed thousands of them, are tapped, for the tar and turpentine industry seems to be about the whole thing, barring an occasional field of cotton, and poor looking corn. The cities, however, are fine and flourishing. As we approached Jacksonville, which is the gateway to the land of sunshine and flowers, improvement was noticeable.

St. Cloud, where we are making our headquarters, is a nice little city of 4000 people, with a large number of tourists from all points in the north. Fourteen years ago, when our hostess settled here, there were but 35 houses all told, so you can see the rapid growth it has made. The site is ideal lying on Lake Tohopekaliga, a beautiful body of water about eight miles across. The city site is 1x2 miles in area, and many new houses are under construction. The climate is fine. Florida is surely God's wonderland. Nothing in the states through which we passed approaches the beauty and wealth that we find in Florida. The temperature here ranges from about 60 to 80 degrees, the evenings always being pleasant. Rainy or damp weather, some fire is necessary, but almost any day you can work out doors in summer attire.

The churches here, though seven or eight in number, are full on Sabbath; the windows are open and the house is full of the odor of hibiscus, rose and jassamine that are blooming outside, and that seem to nod lovingly in response to the gospel message.

Mrs. Drumm and mysel fare enjoying every minute, as and we sit here on our vine and flower covered porch, we think of the icicles that are perhaps hanging from your. P. W. Drumm.

Saturday, the 31st, is the last day of Seiller's January Clearance Sale.

HEALTH HINTS.

By DR. O. E. McFADON

COLDS CATCHING.

Some colds are hard to account for. We say we "catch cold," but it may be that we are caught by a cold. Body exposure is a common cause, and yet drafts are helpful rather than harmful if one has good resistance (vitality) and is exercising.

The nose is useful in smelling, breathing and as a "sounding board" for the voice. With a cold in the head the nasal cavity walls are thickened, and we all know how that affects the voice. A singer's tone may be well formed by the vocal cords and larynx, but cannot be satisfactoy without proper resonance in the head. One may say he talks through his nose, but that is exactly what he does not do when he has a bad cold "id the 'ead."

The nose is a sort of front door—the main entrance—to the lungs. Normal breathing is through the nostrils. By the time air reaches the lungs by way of the nostrils it is much moistened, raised in temperature and is relieved of much dust and germs, all of which is not possible in mouth breathing. These "counts" alone should be sufficient warning to keep us cultivating the habit of breathing through the nostrils. "Keep your mouth shut" is good advice from a health standpoint.

The best reason for nose breathing is that the germs, thus caught, are easily expelled, as against mouth breathing which delivers them in a wholesale way to the lungs. If the germs be tubercular (and we all inhale more or less of them, perhaps daily) it is easy to see how mouth breathing is a great contributor toward the "catching" of tuberculosis of the lungs —the worst kind.

It is well known that we often "catch" by re-breathing the germ-laden breath of others who have a cold. If, when so exposed, we are in perfect health, the germs cannot find lodgment and are expelled or overcome and we never know what we have escaped. If, however, the germs find unhealthy spots, or filthy patches, there they will nest and propagate and multiply with great rapidity. And so, instead of catching cold we are caught by a cold and it becomes—as is true in all infections—a "scrapping match" between these germs and the vitality (the power of resistance) which the patient can summon up to date.

Vitality building (gaining more than we lose) should be a constant concern with everyone, for no matter what the disease that attacks us, the vitality of the patient is the foundation for any cure, and the sooner and more positive the defense, the sooner and more successful the fight. This should make it plain that when two people are equally exposed to disease, one may be "caught" and the other escape, for the reason that the one has more resisting power (vitality) than the other.

Dr. O. E. McFadon, Osteopath, 106 W. 10th Ave. N. 7904-W. Residence calls on the Hilltop Wednesday and Saturday mornings.

Chat No. 2

Men who would die for their wives, yet never bring in a pail of water or a scuttle of coal without grumbling, are seldom found in homes which have been built by mutual endeavor. Hands that help in making the homes which appear in "OUR PLAN SERVICE," should gladly help in lightening the burden of the helpmate whose kingdom lies within its threshold.

You can "chat" this over with us anytime.

STYLISTS POINT WITH PRIDE TO MERITS OF SPRING COATS

In the procession of styles for the coming season, that division comprising coats made a quiet but effective entry and is now passing in review. And stylists have a right to point with pride to the high merits of these new examples of the fine art of tailoring. They flaunt no startling departures from the modes that made winter coats most becoming and decorative. A kind fate has preserved the slender silhouette, with simple and graceful lines, while making the most of new fabrics and colors, details of decoration and finishing which this spring contributes.

The return to high favor of navy blue is heralded in many quarters—it seems to be the best of all backgrounds for rich, oriental patterns in embroidery. The handsome coat pictured is made of a smooth cloth in navy, and has braided embroidery about the skirt and sleeves, touched up with soft shades in high colors. The model is dignified, which is another way of saying that it is conservative, and therefore places its bit of fur in the collar of dyed squirrel. Fur at the neck is both cosy and becoming and spring is a temperamental young thing—far from genial sometimes. Some of the new modes refrain from any reflection on the waywardness of spring weather and place their fur bandings, purely for decoration, but not on the collar.

Of course there are several companies, each somewhat different from the other, in the regiment of spring coats—as utility coats, dressy coats, sports coats—in which we find the styles overlapping somewhat. It is to be gathered from the displays that utility coats are inclined to look sporty —stylists are making them in higher colors than heretofore.

Seiller's January Clearance Sale.

Saturday, the 31st, is the last day of

A LITTLE MORE AND A LITTLE LESS

A little more deed and a little less creed;
A little more giving and a little less greed;
A little more bearing of other people's load,
A little more godspeeds on the dusty road;
A little less thorn and a little more rose,
To sweeten the air and lighten the blows;
A little more song and a little less glum,
A cheery word for the tramp from the slum;
A little less kicking the man that's down;
A little more smile and a little less frown;
A little more Golden Rule for others;
A little more charity for burdened brothers;
A little less knocking and a little more cheer
For the struggling fellow that's left in the rear
A little more love and a little less hate
A little more neighborly chat at the gate!
A few more flowers in the pathway of life,
A few less on coffins at the end of the strife.

The name of the writer is not given. Regardless of who he may be, the poem speaks for itself. The thought that runs throughout the little poem is kindness, sympathy and love that should always be tendered our fellowman in all stages of life.

If all would, or could, live in fullness the spirit of this poem, what a beautiful, glorious and heavenly place this earth would be.

May we pray that our hearts be filled with the spirit of the man of Galilee, thereby be enabled to spread flowery deeds of kindness, sympathy, cheer and consolation to some weary soul that may be struggling and languishing in dispair or despondency in the pathway of life.

The Church Is The Beacon Light

The Hill Crest Baptist church is a healthy growing institution, whose only mission is to help make this old world a better place in which to live. It has a real worth while program of Evangelism and Social service. Its Sunday services are full of interest and enthusiasm. The Pastor is preaching a series of sermons on the great question of the Master's return.

Every person should go to church for the benefit of himself as well as others. Don't spoil life because you have neglected the greatest thing in the world. Your destiny depends upon your decision to do the big thing.

PROPERTY OWNERS

You can put an office boy in charge of your Rolls-Royce and you can let your stenographer repair your watch and in either case it won't cost you much in way of wages.

Similarly you can turn over the management of your property to a bookkeeper or a clerk in your office and think you are saving money. But the chances are it is a losing proposition.

Many a shrewd business man who will only allow a high-priced mechanic to look after his $4000 automobile, will, on the contrary, entrust the management of property worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to minor clerk in his office. The old saying is "penny wise and pound foolish."

WHITE CHIMNEYS

By DORA JONES

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Winifred had wired Baltimore as soon as she reached New York. If she lingered some of Leslie's friends were certain to recognize her and tell him, but she knew of one safe hiding place, "Take Bel Air bungalow, Hartley Manor, Deep River. Three months."

Her agent there would understand, she knew, and ask no questions. She took the night train down and reached Deep River about seven. It was a run of four miles to the shore of the Chesapeake, and there lay her hide-away. As she drove along the narrow, winding shore road the first glimpse of its white chimneys above the willows brought a sob of relief to her throat. It had been their honeymoon home two years before, and already she longed to break the tie that bound her to Leslie Forbes.

A fire had been laid in the living room. She knelt before the blazing knots and spread her fingers to the warmth.

"Deed an' if Eph and me had jus' known 'at was comin' we'd had all th' comforts for yo', Miss Winnie," Aunt Dinah watched her solicitously, her head on one side as she sensed the trouble in every dejected line of the slender figure. "Ain't but a day [illegible] was here, and Master [illegible]

Before Winifred was out of the bath she was hearing up the cool room a woman's step shuffled and her name called. She had been [illegible] had been helped into an easy negligee and given breakfast out on the porch overlooking the broad blue waters of the bay. She tried to think of her next step.

If it had been anything definite, any real facts that she could bring out against him! But there was nothing [illegible] suspicion in her own mind, one [illegible] own manner. That and, of course, she knew he had been engaged to Mrs. Pomeroy four or five [illegible]

She [illegible] to marry [illegible] Mrs. Pomeroy ruined [illegible] she was a widow and [illegible] and Leslie as [illegible] the estate. That [illegible] at liberty to consult with him at any time, to call him to her side at any hour to renew all of the old intimacy and hide her interest in him under the guise of their business relations.

Leslie had laughed at Winifred's little hints against it, and had gone on in his steady business like way. Then had come the mysterious package for him by special messenger one morning and he had not opened it.

It was from her. Winifred knew and as it lay at his elbow on the breakfast table, she had waited for him to tell her the contents, but he had kept silence. Only the unusual sternness in his eyes and around his mouth, and the way he locked the parcel in the safe made her suspicious. Were they old love letters? Or was it even something more personal, some gift that Fay Pomeroy had dared to send him to worry her, perhaps?

Finally, after a week of restlessness, he had demanded to know the cause of her manner toward him, and Winifred had told him told him bravely, longing for his quick assurance of love, but Leslie had closed his lips and told her absolutely nothing.

"It is not my secret," was all he said, and Winifred heeded only the telephone message that came for him later to believe all she feared. The maid brought it to her. Mrs. Pomeroy was ill and must see Mr. Forbes at once about the old trouble. Winifred had given the message to him herself over the office wire, and had waited. Leslie's tone was clear and concise.

"I won't be home for dinner, dear, possibly not until midnight."

She had left on the evening train without a word for him, with all of the unreasoning, heart breaking misery and recklessness possible, and now the peace of White Chimneys enfolded her. She lay asleep in the porch hammock, her rather silk negligee cast aside for a little sport suit of pongee, her hair tumbled like a tired young [illegible] about her face.

It was here that Leslie found her. Worn from a sleepless night he came up the porch steps slowly and stood over her, hands clasped behind him, his gray eyes full of [illegible] love. Behind him ambled old Eph, his garden hat held between his hands nervously, and Aunt Dinah shouted at her unreasonably from the back of the house.

"Ain't got no sense nevah did have, to wah'n 'bout yo' will have, ole man. Don't yo' know dey's makin' up?"

But Winifred's eyes held no welcome when she wakened and sat up to find him there. Silently, unforgivingly, she listened to his explanation of how he had [illegible] her. It all seemed so simple now she had thought she had conquered her fears. Just tracing her to New York and calling up Deep River and had located her at the Bel-Air. There he had found she had sent the telegram to Baltimore and had followed to White Chimneys.

"Now tell me the exact meaning of this nonsense. He drew a porch chair [illegible] beside her and waited gravely

Winifred stared out at the water in dead silence. All of the misery of the past week, all of her own unreasoning folly in jumping to conclusions came over her, and slowly the tears gathered and fell down on her pongee dress. Leslie wiped them off gravely.

"Rain always spots it, doesn't it?" he asked gravely. "Any chance for breakfast? I've come for a little vacation."

"Oh, you old dear," she cried, helplessly. "I wonder what made me do it. You said once women had no logic or deduction. Was that it?"

Leslie laughed softly as he took her in his arms.

"Never mind the logic or deduction, honey," he whispered, "only next time just keep faith with me. Remember how we loved the old line, 'A little faith all undisproved?' Give me a chance before you take a train, won't you dear?"

"Same ole waffles and honey, children," said Aunt Dinorah, coming around the corner of the veranda with a large, tempting breakfast tray. "Ah allers tole Eph you all would come back for a second honeymoon, and dar you is, bless you."

Winifred laughed with sheer relief but Leslie was already at the waffles and the smoke from the new hearth fire curled out of White Chimneys.

were playing for the old lady's bread and butter. It may sound wild to you, but under the circumstances it was easy, really. The worst of it is I have been in love with you from the moment I saw you. Now I am not going to release you until you tell me you love me—or you do not! Which is it?"

Her mind was in a turmoil. He did seem at that moment beyond question utterly sane—voice and manner had completely changed. But the whole story seemed unusual—yet two men of chivalric type might do just what they had done.

Suddenly she decided. She did love him, as he had been, with a mother's love; she could love him as a lover if—so she lifted her lips to his and was swung in his strong arms bodily from the path into his embrace.

It left her breathless, dazed, but even in her confusion she saw him, with an exclamation, suddenly yank his coat off and turn it right side out.

The blare of an auto horn sounded faintly. Craig looked up and caught her hand. "Case has come. Come on, Honey. I want to get even with him for sassing me to my face in front of you when I could not say a word."

She remembered as they hurried back the doctor's pleasure in saying just those things. Now she understood. But she understood even better than when she saw the two men clasp hands in silence and heard Case say: "Old chap, I thought you and Haynes were fools in a way to play such a game, but you've won. Congratulations, Miss Thatcher. I should offer you an apology and an explanation—"

"Cut out the explanation, Doc; apologize to her and then to me and then—congratulate both of us," suggested Craig. "me her beside him

"I'm thankful you came here, anyway."

She bit her lip. He simply wanted to call up the old memories of their happiness there and trade on her love for him. And now she told herself she did not love him, not even with him sitting there and gazing at her steadfastly.

"I wanted to give you back your freedom," she said slowly, one hand pushing back her hair. "It's all been such an awful mistake."

Leslie took her hands in his firmly.

"Listen to me, dearest. I was wrong not to have told you perhaps, but that poor devil was in danger and I dared not."

"Mrs. Pomeroy!" exclaimed Winifred.

"No, indeed, her younger brother. He's up at West Point, you know, and got into a pretty bad row there. Looked like suspension, but I've cleared the matter up, and I know he'll make good now. That package was his. He'd smuggled into his quarters a roulette outfit, just a kid trick, you know. He had it with him when he left her, but I insisted on making a clean breast of it, and his facing the music. So she sent the stuff to me. I could hardly tell you until the thing was over. It meant everything to the boy not to get thrown out, and I had given her my word. By the way, she's to marry Major Regan, did you know? Congratulations were in the mail this [illegible]

Of Interest to People on the the Hilltop and Vicinity

Vol. 4. The Hilltop, Columbus, Ohio, Augnst 26, 1920 No. 19

Edward Gillilan

The death of Edward Culver Gillilan, who lived more than half his life on Midland avenue, has keenly touched the people of the Hilltop.

On last Saturday, Aug. 21, Edward with his chum, Bernard Anthony, of Harris avenue, were taken by Bernard's parents to Buckeye Lake for their vacation. It was raining when they arrived and the boys put on their bathing suits to unload the car. Unwilling to have the fun of their outing delayed, they went for a dip, but finding shore bathing unsatisfactory, they secured a boat and rowed out into the lake. The first plunge was an entire success, but the second time Edward dived he was seized by a cramp which rendered him unable to swim. He called to his pal who was swimming on the other side of the boat. Bernard sank twice with his chum, but the third time, exhausted by the struggle, he was forced to let go. The rescuers arrived just too late.

Edward and Bernard had been the closest friends for several years. They were rivals at school, standing now one, now the other, at the head of their class, and it is doubtful if anyone is more deeply cut than Bernard by Edward's tragic death.

Edward Culver Gillilan, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Gillilan, of 225 Midland Ave. He was born January 27, 1906, at Amesville, Ohio, and came to Columbus when he was six and one-half years old. From that time on he has attended the Columbus schools and would have been a sophomore at West High School this fall.

Besides making an excellent record at school, Edward had acquired no little skill in playing the violin and piano.

He was a great reader, and had a library of over two hundred and fifty books, most of which he had purchased with his own earnings. Some of them he has read many times. Perhaps some of his friends on the street who are familiar with his gentlemanly greetings can catch in them an echo of "Just David," for his companions detect in his leadership an outcropping of Tom Sawyer.

Of his loving, unselfish and appreciative nature, perhaps his family knows best, but his good fellowship, his courtesy, his pranks and unwillingness to be outdone are known to all his friends.

Edward is preceeded by his brother, Cranz, who died in infancy, and is survived by his parents and sister, Lurene, to whom he leaves the happiness of an unblemished memory.

The funeral of Edward C. Gillilan, the 14 year old son of Dr. and Mrs. E. D. Gillilan, who was drowned last Saturday, while swimming at Buckeye Lake, was held at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday at the family residence, 225 Midland Ave., and was very largely attended. The body was taken to Alton Cemetery for burial. He leaves, besides his parents, one sister, Miss Lurene Gillilan, who is employed at the State Hospital.

The family have the sincere sympathy of their friends and neighbors in their sad bereavement.

AND SO IT WAS ILLUSTRATED

The Way of Modern Artist With a Story That Really Captivates His Fancy.

"This is a peach of a story," thought Dasher Christy, the eminent illustrator. "I enjoyed every word of it. It's the kind of a story I like to illustrate. It gives me something to work on. This description of the heroine, for instance."

And he read it again for the 10th time—"Myrtle Stedfast had liquid brown eyes with prominent pupils, a dainty Irish nose to which a crescent shaped freckle on the very tip lent added piquancy, fiery red hair with a glint of green where the sun caught it, a ravishing rosebud mouth and teeth like new ivory that has just been mined."

"The hero, too—a masterpiece," mused the eminent illustrator.

And he read over the hero's description once more—"Pete Jardiniere was above all, a manly man. He was 6 feet 7 inches tall, as blond as the moon and as fascinating as the devil. His eyes were black as ripe coal, his teeth white as unspoiled snow. He was the slenderest man Myrtle had ever seen with the exception of the living skeleton in the side show."

Two months later the story appeared in McEvery's Magazine, illustrated by Dasher Christy.

In the pictures, Myrtle had purple eyes, a perfect Roman nose without a freckle, black hair and no mouth, while Pete was a little fat man with pink eyes, gray hair and a red mustache.—Detroit Free Press.

Gladstone Liked to Sing.

Sir Walter Parratt told at Oxford an interesting little story of Mr. Gladstone. He said he had been speaking to Mr. Gladstone of the great compasses quite unmusical people often possessed.

"Yes, sir," replied Mr. Gladstone, "I used to like to hear my voice. It rang inside my head."

Of course, Mr. Gladstone was very fond of singing, and as a young man sang negro melodies with great gusto.

His eldest son composed many hymn tunes, and the present Viscount Gladstone sang in a choir for several years.

London Chronicle.

Luring the Help.

"When I tried to tell the hired man what to do," complained Josh, "he laughed at me."

"Mebbe, son," replied Farmer Cornstossel, "it's more hopeful than you think. If you can make him laugh often enough perhaps he'll take a fancy to us and consent not to quit."

Three Was a Crowd.

The officer had caught the private tilting a bottle of cognac.

"Are you drinking on duty?" he demanded.

"Yes, sir."

"Corporal of the gua——"

"Don't call him, captain. There's only enough left for the two of us."

The Man From Huntington

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(©, 1919, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

For seven long months Carter Ragsdale had been living in New York. It had been a decided change from Huntington, Miss., with its 2,578 population, approximately all his personal friends or cordial acquaintances.

One had to be mentally alert in the offices of Richards Bros. There were no free intervals there for regrets and repinings. Particularly if one had firmly determined to learn, in as short a time as possible, all the multitudinous details of a very big business, and some day to hold one of its proud positions.

Evenings were different. Then Carter Ragsdale had thought that he would gladly exchange all the thrills of metropolitan existence to be back at home again.

On the first Sunday in May, when spring was making Central park a place of enchantment, throwing a soft veil of green over the chill loveliness it wears in winter, Carter Ragsdale went for a stroll through its highways and byways.

It was a beautiful morning. Things had been going well at the office. His chief, a man little given to praise, had spoken some words of warm commendation, the afternoon before. He had been given increased responsibility. There were hints of promotion, with a salary increase, before long.

As he paced slowly that Sunday morning, Carter was thinking that things were indeed well with his world—if he might only sometimes see some one from home. Then he remembered the Huntington paper, the four-page weekly which came to his boarding house each Saturday, every line of which he read on Sunday. He sat down on a convenient bench, and drew the thin sheet from his pocket.

No records of world happenings in the great New York papers were as interesting as the "Live Little Locals" on the last page of the Huntington Mercury. One by one, he conned them.

"Miss Bess Walpole sprained her ankle last Saturday at the Baptist Sunday school picnic at Laurel Creek."

"Mr. Roger Vernon has a new automobile."

From some sudden impulse Carter Ragsdale raised his eyes.

Directly opposite, across the path, sat a strangely familiar figure. An old gentleman, lean of frame, aquiline of feature, keen of eye, was watching him. Instantly upon his feet, Carter Ragsdale whipped off his hat, and bounded the dozen intervening feet, his face exultant.

"Why, Mr. Vernon," he called, "who would'ever have expected—"

By this time he had reached the bench where his park neighbor sat. His face fell.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he stammered. "I thought—an old friend from home—from Mississippi—I had just been reading about him in my home paper. If I'd only stopped to think—but the resemblance really is striking!"

Embarrassed, Carter started away, calling in valedictory, "I trust I have not annoyed you, sir."

The stranger summoned the young man to a seat beside him.

"I did not catch the name of my double," he said courteously.

Then Carter made explanations. "Mr. Roger Vernon, sir. He is president of the bank at home, and a very fine gentleman. No one could object to having such a double."

Carter found himself talking quite at ease with his new acquaintance.

The old gentleman boomed a laugh of hearty appreciation.

"Your double has just bought a new machine"—Carter indicated the newspaper item.

The headline of the "Mercury" caught the old gentleman's eye.

"Jumping Jehosophat!" he exclaimed. "This is strange!"

From an inner pocket he produced his card. Carter read: "James Roger Vernon."

"Young man, your Vernon's my second cousin. I never was in Huntington in my life, and I never saw him. But I've heard my father tell of visiting in Mississippi when he was a boy. I've always intended to get in touch with my southern relatives some day."

Just as they were launched on this topic, there came an interruption. A slim, graceful girl, with dark eyes and coppery hair, stood before them.

"I'm just getting introduced for the first time to my relatives in Mississippi," explained the father.

Alicia held out a pretty hand. "Oh," she said, "is this a new cousin—from Mississippi?"

Carter shook his head dolorously. "I'd certainly claim the relationship if I didn't know I'd be shown up an impostor later! But the families are great friends. I sent my first valentine to your fourth cousin."

Alicia laughed. To Carter it was the most charming he had ever heard.

"How nice to have met you!" she said.

When they took their departure Carter walked beside them. Not far from the park a luxurious limousine waited.

"Don't forget our address, young man," said Mr. Vernon. "Come to see us. Come to breakfast next Sunday—nine sharp. We've got a southern cook."

The recipient of this invitation stood as rapt as one upon whom manna from heaven was descending. He could scarcely murmur his grateful acceptance.

As Mr. Vernon turned to give directions to the chauffeur, Alicia added: "I want to hear all about this fourth cousin I've never seen. I scent romance."

As Alicia's father bundled her into the car Carter protested, "Oh, no, she's married now. It was just puppy love—a sort of trial heat."

A lovely face smiled, "Never mind. You can find a romance here. New Yorkers always say one can find anything one wants."

"Why, Mr. Vernon."

Mr. Vernon leaned out to call, "Nine o'clock sharp!"

Then a certain young southerner, from whom a burden of loneliness had been magically lifted, went blissfully upon his way.

Next Sunday was only seven days off. New York was giving him business opportunity. Now the wonderful city held out another lure. "Find romance here?" he quoted under his breath. "Why, it's already found!"

The Hilltop Public Schools

The opening of the fall term of school on the Hilltop brings forth a larger attendance than usual and both schools present a very crowded condition, which is more convincing than ever that the new school building at Sullivant and Burgess is greatly needed. The foundation is under way for this new building, which will be 200 feet long and will contain 16 rooms.

The School Gardeners will have an exhibition of their work the last of the month, at which prizes will be awarded for best exhibits.

The school is very much crowded 670 being registered at the end of the first week. Half day sessions are necessary in Second B and Third B grades. The school was opened September 19, 1911, with 252 pupils and six teachers. Now every available space is used, one large class is in the basement, as are the Spanish classes, the teachers' room is used, and at times classes are held in the halls.

It is hoped that the Community meetings may be held regularly this year, and that the parents and friends may continue the interest they showed last year.

WOMAN'S VOTE

Our beloved stateswoman, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, leader of 2,000,000 suffragists, was received in triumphant glory at the Pennsylvania Station, New York City, by the Governor, Alfred E. Smith, on her return from Nashville. An immense throng cheered when a bouquet of blue delphiniums and yellow chrysanthemums, tied with a yellow ribbon, was presented to her from the grateful women of our nation. The 71st Regiment Band played "Lo, the Conquering Hero Comes," and all stood at attention to hear the National Anthem.

The Joy Bells are still ringing over our wonderful victory which came August 18, with the ratification by the Tennessee legislature of the Susan B. Anthony Amendment, giving us the 36th State, or three-fourths of the States of the Union, the number necessary to make the 19th amendment a part of the Constitution of the United States.

Now that we have the vote let us practice the dignity of sovereigns and as an act of first importance, go to the proper voting place and register, —this is absolutely necessary to exercise our right as voters, Nov. 2nd. The days for this preparatory registration are September 30th, October 7th, October 15th and 16th.

In the meantime attend a citizenship school and become familiar with the ballots which will be handed to us by the election officials, with the names of the candidates for whom we wish to vote, their position on the ballots and the proper way to mark the national ticket, the state ticket and the judiciary ticket, so that we may vote effectively. The right to vote implies the duty to vote intelligently and this great addition of 27,000,000 women will benefit the nation because their view will be fresh and uninfluenced by party obligations or expediency. They will not follow their grandfathers or their fathers, but will aim high, keeping in mind the greatest good to the greatest number. They will welcome assistance from their experienced male relatives but in the privacy of the little booth they will endeavor to express an honest individual opinion of men and measures, which is the highest form of patriotism.

And as a result of the sincere desire of women to be helpful in solving the momentous questions of today, involving every phase of human welfare, they will learn to be more tolerant, less censorious. A closer acquaintance with their sisters will develop true and beautiful friendships, comradeship will become a reality and this broader outlook will make the world more interesting and life exceedingly worth while.

As a great world power, the United States cannot afford to assume a selfish policy of isolation and remain indifferent to the rest of the world. We are really trustees of our common civilization and the women will count it a privilege to use their power for peace, education and the enactment of laws giving exact and equal justice to everyone living under the Stars and Stripes.

Mrs. Charles W. Lentz.

Rehearsals will be held regularly on Friday nights. It will again be trained by Mr. Knox who will give just the same careful training to this body of singers as was given the Oratorio Society, which brought forth the highest praise from the music critics for years in the May Festival work. Already an encouraging number have been accepted to take up the study of chorus work, which is open to any young people with acceptable voices and would like to take the tryout by calling on Mr. Knox or Mrs. Peake, 28 N. A Wicked Waste.

"This is rather a curiosity," remarked an artist who was entertaining a lady in his studio.

As he spoke he produced a small but exquisite painting.

"It is nice!" gushed his visitor.

"I was out in the country one day," he went on, "and had all my materials with me except a canvas. But I was so keen on painting this scene that I took out my handkerchief, stretched it upon my cane, and painted the picture.

"Dear me!" exclaimed the lady. Then a look of horror came over her face as she went on: "But you'll never be able to wash all that paint out of it."

Foreign Brides Assorted.

BILL'S IN TROUBLE

I've got a letter, parson, from my son away out West,
An' my ol' heart is heavy as an anvil in my breast.
To think the boy whose future I had once so proudly planned
Should wander from the path o' right an' come to sich an end!

I told him when he left us, only three short years ago,
He'd find himself a plowin' in a mighty crooked row—
He'd miss his father's counsel, an' his mother's prayers, too,
But he said the farm was hateful, an' he guessed he'd have to go.

I know thar's big temptations for a youngster in the West,
But I believed our Billy had the courage to resist;
An' when he left I warned him o' the ever-waiting snares,
That be like hidden serpents in life's pathway everywheres.

But Bill he promised faithful to be keerful, an' allowed
He'd build a reputation that'd make us mighty proud;
But it seems as if my counsel sort o' faded from his mind,
And now my boy's in trouble of the very wurstest kind.

His letters come so seldom that I somehow sort o' know'd
That Billy was a-trampin' on a mighty rocky road,
But never once imagined he would bow my head in shame
An' in the dust'd waller his ol' daddy's honored name.

He writes from out in Denver, an' the story's mighty short,
I just can't tell his mother, it'd break her poor ol' heart;
An' so I reckoned, parson, you might break the news to her—
Bill's in the legislature; but he doesn't say what fur.

The name of the author of the above poem is not known. However, from recent publicity on the subject there is more truth than poetry in the last line. Truly, we don't know what he's in for neither.

You'll save money at Sellers.

Mr. J. E. Aber has a Caloric in his home 970 S. Harris, installed by Prior.

Little Story That's True

During the speech of Supt. Collicot at W. Broad St. School last Friday evening when an interrogation was suggested rather than implied in his statement, "I suppose some of you little fellows know what I mean when I speak of dad being a grouch," one urchin promptly answered, with more truth, perhaps, than tact, "Uh-Uh!"

There'll certainly nothing "get by" with that lad, and it requires no stretch of the imagination to trace a mental picture of dad, the paddle and the wood shed for the youngster.

At the Hilltop boys' meeting at Glenwood church last Thursday night 125 boys were present. An interesting program of song and fun was enjoyed by all. Rev. F. A. Doty, who has had experience with anti-cigarette work among boys in Chicago presented interesting facts concerning the results of cigarette smoking among boys, which was listened to with interest. 44 boys signed cigarette pledges, which, with 50 who had previously signed, makes a total of 94, besides pledges that are being presented to boys and signed in the various Sunday schools on the Hilltop. This is a work in which all Hilltop citizens should be interested. It is a well known fact that the use of cigarettes among boys is on the increase, even affecting boys as young as 6 and 7 years old. If we are citizens with the welfare of our boys, who are to be our future men at heart, we should all be interested in this matter.

And right here, we wish to state that not a few of our younger school girls are reported as using the cigarette also.

Mr. N. E. Ansel:

Dear Sir: Please accept, through our friend Jack Frost, via Blizzard Route, the design for a medal to the above increase in family cares, which is that of a red flannel chicken chest protector, surrounded by a full suit of fleece-lined stuff, smothered in camphorated oil and cough drops—H. While in the army I was accompanied by a sergeant that, to hear him talk, was one of the brainiest men Uncle Sam had hired. On pass one Sunday, a young woman we met on the street asked us if we cared to go to her house and have a cup of coffee. On arriving we were introduced to her mother who made excuses in regard to her appearance.

She remarked: "I'll go and put on the percolator."

The sergeant said: "Oh, you look all right the way you are."—[T. F. in the Chicago Tribune.

"Twelfth Night."

Twelfth day or twelfth night is 12 days from Christmas, and comes on January 6. It was formerly a pagan winter festival held by the chief god and goddess of Teutonic mythology, Odin and Frigg, a time when the god of wind, attended by the souls of the dead rushed across the sky. Later it came to mean the day when the magi went to carry their gifts to the Christ child. The French call it "jour res rois," the Spanish "Dio de reyes," both meaning "day of the kings" or magi. Others have given twelfth day or Epiphany as the date when the three wise men from the East first beheld that strangely luminous star that was their guide.

GROUNDHOG DAY

The reglar meetin' of the Steddy Club wuz called to order in the opery house, on the second of Febberary; an ackordin to the fillosefers of this club, an fer the infermashun of the citizens an members, we air informed that this here is Groundhog Day.

The President had jist finished these sayin s, whin thar wuz a rappin at the anty room dore, an Bro Eb Snailer wuz appinted to find out who's a tryin' to brake inter the sarced precints of this club. When the dore wuz opened Hezzie Simson the financil secertary, nigh outer breth, an a swetin' like Ab Peters, when he's discorsin on the reasins why the Panerma Curnal can never be navergated; an why Columby oughter hav the controllin power of all ther forrin ships that sale thru the curnal.

Hezzie sed he'd ben workin nite and day for fore con-se-cutive day's an nites to find out who wuz in good and reglar standin; an as his wife an dotter Virginy Maud, wuz takin ther fust lessins in Suffergets, he'd bin so hindered by takin' care of the childern an doin the house wurk, that he'd haf to ask 'nother week fur to complet his findins out.

Bill Wetherly ris an askd fer more infermashun, he sed he knowd a man what owned a full fledgd Ground Hog, an that it allus come out on the second of Febberary; an ever sinse he wuz nee hi to a duck he'd allus herd that the 2nd wuz the day.

Then the president called on the Prof. Willum Ashcraft Jenkuns, who wuz appinted fillosefer fer the Steddy Club, to give the club the infermashun. Willum Ashcraft Jenkuns, ris and sed, Mr. most noble and worthy president, an feller members of this honorable and respectd club; I perseve that there is some more or less lack of nollege amung the members of this honerable and respected club, concernin the origin, and othenticity of this celerbratd and much misunderstood legel hollerday.

In the prehistoric ages, whin Generil Washingtun wus campin at Valley Forge, and the brittish soldurs, under the command of Generil Napolyun Bonypart, wus crossin Lake Shamplane tuwards the Addorondak Montains; whin Teddy Rosefelt was killin lions in Afercy, and Willum Jinnings Brine wus discorsin on the fillosofy of peece; I say Mr. President and feller members this subject wus bein discussed by the most imminent fillosefers of the entire wurld and Kansas.

And that reminds me by way of illustrashun, that Kansas is one of the greatest and growunest states in this our beloved Union. Kansas has perduced sum of the greatest men of time; I pint with feelins of pride to that illustrus deformer, Carry Nashun, Alec Fishback, ris at this pint and ast the President if he mite make a move, and the President sed the perfesser had the floor, and he'd call a recess fer five minnets to confer with the perfesser.

Eb Snailer lit his pipe, an sed he'd improve the oppertunity to quite his nerve. Whilst the President and the perfesser wus conferrin together. Bro. Eb Sneezerum's sixth boy, the one as has red hair and fore front teeth out, he lost them whin he wus a child, fallin down stares; he hollered in the dore an sed, Zeke Neverwork's yaller dog wus lickin the linin out of the perfesser's billy gote, and the meetin wus broke up at onct.

bracing forms of such wide divergence as grasses, wild lilies and oak and walnut trees, as well as cacti and other unusual plants.

"While a plant may thrive well in its new situation," said Dr. MacDougal, "it will sometimes display a behavior quite at variance with that by which it is ordinarily known. Thus the common witchhazel, which is known to bloom in the vicinity of New York when the frosts come, when taken to the equitable climate of the Pacific coast reverts to the normal or summer-blooming habit. Other species show flower forms, fruits and leaves notably different from those previously displayed by them.

"Aquatic plants of the cress family were made to grow in soil on the mountain tops, where the roots formed small radishes, like their relatives. The radish is a cress. In other words, these plants came back to the ancestral habit of forming a radish.

Interest to Biologists.

"The manner in which plants travel about the world or are distributed is a problem of great interest to biologists, and in this experimental work particular attention was given to obtaining evidence on some of the problems of dissemination or movement of plants across the face of the country."

It was found that rabbits and rodents which inhabit the oak zone at the top of the mountain range acted very effectively as a barrier to prevent cacti and other plants from moving up or down the mountain slopes. To verify this a barrage zone was established and the plants protected in screened enclosures which kept off the little nibbling animals. The plants thrived and prospered and spread within the enclosed section. Out in the open, to either side of the barrage zone, they rapidly disappeared, being eaten by the rabbits. This explained the mysterious sudden stoppage of some of these plants—not altitude nor heat nor cold, but actual destruction through being eaten. The animals were like a fence.

The coastal laboratory at Carmel-by-the-Sea and the desert laboratory at Tucson, Ariz., are two of the experimental stations which were used in this work.

Kissing Common With Ancients.

The ancients used kissing as a common form of salutation, as the modern world uses handshaking. Among the Greeks the most casual acquaintances, accidentally meeting in travel, kissed each other. The Romans went to even greater lengths, and, according to historians, the custom became "a veritable nuisance to the country." Fashion ordained that everybody must do it, and one old Roman poet has immortalized in verse his ruse to escape the annoyance. He covered his face with a large plaster and told everyone he had fallen down and cut his cheek.

14-YEAR TESTS OF PLANT LIFE

Reveal That Wild Flora Do Not Always Grow in Most Congenial Habitat.

ENVIRONMENT IS CHANGED

Flowers Taken From Mountain Tops Grow Much More Luxuriantly and Produce More Leaves, Flowers and Fruit at Sea Level.

Chicago.—At a lecture given before an assemblage of geographers and biologists representing several societies, Dr. D. T. MacDougal, director of the Botanical research department of the Carnegie institution at Washington, described the results of a series of experiments extending over fourteen years and embracing 139 species of plants, the experiments tending to show that the wild plant is not always found in the environment most suited to it.

"A great many people think this," said Dr. MacDougal, "but it has been found to be absolutely false."

With stations established at four different altitudes, 8,000 feet, 5,200 feet, 2,300 feet and at sea level, plants have been transferred from one place to another, and the results of the cultural experiments of fourteen years have now been compiled.

Grow More Luxuriantly.

In these experiments plants from the mountain tops, some from a height of close to one and one-half miles above sea level, were found to grow much more luxuriantly, producing more leaves, flowers and fruits at sea level than they had in their native habitat. These plants were not cultivated, protected or fostered in any way in their new situations. Once placed, they were to all intents and purposes wild flowers and had to fight their own battles and take chances as before.

One hundred and thirty-nine plants were used in these experiments, em-

FIND WRIGGLING EEL MINE

Steam Shovel Lifts Them Out by Hundreds From Wharf Site at Plymouth, Mass.

Plymouth, Mass.—Digging out eels in hundreds of pounds with a steam shovel is a novelty introduced here.

The steam shovel used by the contractor for the removal of Pilgrim wharf in the changes being made along the waterfront where the Plymouth Rock reservation is being made did the trick. Digging is being made with a grab bucket near low water mark at the outer end of the pier.

The bucket arose once with a full cargo, nearly a cubic yard, of squirming eels, some of which weighed four pounds apiece. Fishermen say the eels had bedded in the mud beneath the wharf for the winter, and this accounted for the eel mine.

Misses the Old Rail.

Louisville, Ky.—The old brass rail which for years had stood at the Amshoff hotel bar was recently removed, but John Keating, seeking a soft drink, didn't know it. He reached for it, slipped, fell, and broke his leg.

Prison Sentence for Baby 11 Weeks Old

London, Eng.—Prison for a baby 11 weeks old was decreed by Sir Forest Fulton, the recorder of Old Bailey. The baby's mother was found guilty of bigamy.

"He can go with you and be none the worse for your detention," the recorder replied.

LIVE LIKE ANIMALS

Six Thousand Refugee Greeks Reported in Fearful Plight.

People at Batum Lack Clothing and Shelter and Are Dying at Rate of From 35 to 50 a Day.

New York.—Six thousand Greek refugees at Batum, Transcaucasia, their clothing worn to shreds, are "living like wild animals in dens" and dying at the rate of from thirty-five to fifty a day, writes Dr. W. E. Rambo, a Near East Relief worker of West Philadelphia, Pa., in a report from the Black sea port received here.

In what he calls "a tragic exodus that bids to become historic," Dr. Rambo says the Greek government already has repatriated 20,000 who emigrated from the Near East to colonize Thrace and that from 10,000 to 12,000 remain to be transported from Batum back to their homeland.

Most of these, he says, are physically strong, but the 6,000 refugees from other regions who flocked to Batum in the expectation of relief have been in that city five months, waiting in vain for help, their condition daily becoming more desperate on account of the rigors of the present Georgian winter.

The Greek government, Dr. Rambo explains, disclaiming responsibility for the plight of the people, has undertaken, through humane considerations only, to feed and doctor the refugees, but, so far, has declined to transport them to Greece, on the ground that there is insufficient housing there to shelter them.

"Meanwhile," the letter says, "the 6,000 are overcrowded in barracks unfit for human habitation. The families have no privacy. Some are lying in bed day and night because they have no clothing to protect them from the cold or cover their nakedness. Unless speedy relief comes to these people, most of them will die during the winter. Already the remnants of the original refugees are in despair. One of them said to me: 'We are no longer waiting for ships; we are waiting for death.' Of 5,767 in this party in the beginning, only about 2,400 remain—3,367 are dead. Another party of 6,800 has 2,800 survivors—4,000 are dead. Of the survivors 700 are ill."

AN ANSWER

Being Vice President of the West Broad Parent-Teachers' Organization and as a writer by the name of Mrs. I. C. Smith, has notified "Hilltopers" ("topers you will note') that said President and Vice President "know no more about their duties than some sixth year scholars," it becomes one to answer such a charge.

Without reflection on anyone, it may well be said that any organization may make amends and more nearly, at community needs. It is being done rapidly by the W. Broad P. T. A. Mrs. Prior, the former President did a splendid service for a year. So did others.

Conditions have forced W. Broad St. School to shift scholars of a certain age to Highland School and many more to the John Burroughs. In the interest of all, this has relieved crowded condition in the schools. This meant a decrease in membership of the W. Broad P. T. A. but no decrease in the spirit of those who will carry on the fine work. One hundred scholars were transferred to Highland and 250 to John Burroughs.

Some excellent meetings have been held, many items of needed reform accomplished and much remains to be done. The pity is that so few parents have affiliated with the Association which is primarily theirs.

The remedy for slackened speed is for a better spirit of co-operation. Some of us learned in college athletics that "team play" is necessary if you wish to win. It is so here.

The Executive Committee of the West Broad School P. T. A. is composed of a fine group of wide-awake women—no men and one preacher! But to say that these same people are not capable or in earnest is totally unfounded and to the thinking parent, whether member of the P. T. A. or not, it will have little weight.

The W. Broad P. T. A. deeply appreciates the little "tempest in the teapot" occasioned by an ill-advised article and assures all truly interested parties that as an organization it is by no means "dying the death," for there are now 150 members.

The odious comparisons in the article answer themselves. To the sympathetic observer our invitation to all to "come and see" will be sufficient.

Rev. RICHARD E. SHIELDS,
2503 West Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio, March 22, 1922.

Mrs. Margaret Roberts, 77, widow of John E. Roberts, and mother of Charles E. Houx, 2518 W. Broad St., died Sunday of paralysis at her home near West Jefferson. She leaves besides a son, two daughters, two brothers, and two sisters. Funeral was Tuesday afternoon at the residence and burial at West Jefferson.

Clyde C. Ross of 497 S. Ogden Ave., died of tuberculosis Monday at St. Anthony's Hospital. He was an insurance agent for the Western and Southern Life Insurance Co.

Mrs. Charlotte Ruth Roberts, 29, wife of Charles Roberts, 93 Lechner Ave., died Tuesday at Grant Hospital following an operation. Besides her husband she leaves a daughter, aged 8 years; her mother, Mrs. Melzena; one brother, and a sister. She was a member of the Third Avenue M. E. Church and a Maccabee. Funeral Thursday at 10 a. m. at the home of her mother, 119 Hubbard Ave. Burial at Union Cemetery.

Mrs. F. H. UMBENHAUER AND FAMILY

During the absence of Rev. and Mrs. C. F. Prior, someone entered their home at 101 Eldon Ave., last Saturday night, gaining admittance through a transom. They did not take anything except one or two small articles.

Thieves also gained entrance, through a window, Sunday night, into the home of Mr. W. O. Watson, 2109 Sullivant Avenue. They carried away several articles of jewelry which were held valuable as memorable keepsakes by Mr. Watson's Family.

Some of the talent of the Robbins-Greiser School of Music will be heard at West High School Auditorium, April 7th. There will be many interesting features; among them, a string quartette composed of Frank Milliken, William Knox, William Bigham and Richard Rowland, accompanied by Mary Milliken. A playlet, "Six Cups of Chocolate" presented by the Dramatic Club, will be cleverly carried out by Helen King, Mary Virginia Hewit, Blanche and Frances Rings, Lucille Elliot, Lois Quinby and Margaret Morgan. About seventy-five pupils will appear in various capacities, some acting as ushers and stage assistants. You are invited.

Thursday evening, March 30th, Miss Corinne Crossen will give a Recital in the Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church, under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society. The program will consist of Readings, Impersonations, Monologues etc. Watch for a complete program in next week's "Hilltop Record." Everyone is cordially invited to attend and enjoy this splendid entertainment.

A silver offering will be taken.

I would like for every mother who has a child in second B., or second A. class, Highland Ave. School, pay the teacher, Mrs. Booth a visit and see her splendid method of teaching and how nice they are getting along and how well they behave. Also the interest she has taken in the children by decorating the room with curtains, ferns, flowers, and other things too numerous to mention and feel she should be given all the encouragement and credit due her. A VISITOR.

DEATH NOTICE

James Alfred Humble, age 41 years 6 months, died March 16th at his home, 52 N. Princeton Ave., of pneumonia. Burial Saturday, March 18, at Green Lawn.

For about 10 years, until recently, Mr. Humble and family have been residents of the Hilltop, living the larger part of this time at 46 N. Oakley Ave. His death is deeply deplored by all who knew him, for his gentleness of manner and true blue character had made him many staunch friends everywhere. He was a devoted husband and father and a lover of his home. For a number of years he has been a member of the West Park Methodist Church, and when in good health was a faithful worker in the church. Mr. Humble had been in declining health for about 4 years. Several times he has walked right into the Valley of the Shadow of Death, but each time God was good, and would say "Not Yet," and each time after recovery he would start out with renewed strength and vigor and a new hope in his heart.

His last illness though brief was very severe, but he retained consciousness until the very last, speaking to his wife less than 5 minutes before he died. And though he was given every medical aid, and though loving hands ministered unto him with untiring faithfulness, God called to him right at the noonday of his life to lay down his earthly burdens, and closing his eyes he passed O! so quietly out across the river and into that Great Beyond.

He was a member af the Modern Woodmen of America, Ohio Camp 3735.

Left to mourn his loss are a wife and son, mother, father, 2 sisters, 3 brothers and a host of friends.

HAS FIRST BIBLE PRINTED IN U. S.

Newberry Library in Chicago Also Possesses Parliament Act Ordering It.

TRANSLATED INTO RED TONGUE

Government Ordered Collection in England and Wales to Defray Cost of Propagating Gospel in New England.

Chicago.—The first Bible printed in the United States sprang directly from a national solicitation of funds in England and Wales in a manner somewhat akin to the Liberty loan drives, according to George B. Utley, librarian of the Newberry library here. The library has both the first American Bible and the act of the English parliament which led to it.

The Bible was a translation into the tongue of the Massachusetts Indians. For years John Eliot, a Puritan fleeing from persecution, who landed 11 years after the Mayflower, had been sending back to England reports about missionary success among the Indians.

Ordered by Parliament.

When the Puritans came into power he found a friendly government, and in 1649, within six months after Charles I was executed, when Cromwell was supreme, parliament passed "An act for promoting and propagating the Gospel in New England." The act created a corporation consisting of 16 Londoners, which thereafter carried on the work.

But more especially it ordered "a general collection in all the countries, cities, towns and parishes of England and Wales." It required the ministers to read the act to their congregations and instructed them, with others, to "go with all convenient speed from house to house to every one of the inhabitants of the said parishes and places respectively, and to take the subscription of every such person in a schedule to be presented to them for that purpose and accordingly at the same time to collect and gather the same."

To Educate Red Brother.

Better education of the Indians was also named among the purposes of the corporation. Twenty-five years later there were four Indian towns with schools in Massachusetts and "the praying Indians" there numbered 1,000.

This collection ordered by parliament brought in about £11,000, it is reported.

Fourteen years later, in 1663, Eliot furnished the first complete Bible printed in the western hemisphere. Its title page bears the lines: "At the charge and with the consent of the Corporation in England for the Promotion of the Gospel Amongst the Indians in New England."

The place of printing was Cambridge, Mass., where 23 years before Eliot had helped compile the Bay Psalm book, the first book to come off the press, in what is now the United States.

MATRIMONY 'AD' FILLS HOUSE

Young Tenor in Rome Uses Ruse to Attract Women Hearers to Opera.

Rome.—Women's love of romance has been utilized for theatrical advertising by the agent of Sig. Umberto Rota, a tenor here. In the personal columns of several Rome newspapers the following appeared:

"Man of independent means and handsome appearance desires to marry young woman. Dowry unnecessary. He may be seen in one of the stage boxes at the Adriano theater on Saturday night.—Umberto Rota."

At the performance the theater was sold out to women of all degrees, who kept their gaze fixed not upon the stage, but on the boxes. As the latter remained empty they turned their attention to the program, where they found that Umberto Rota was a young tenor making his debut that evening.

LABRADOR ESKIMOS DYING

Have Been Exploited by Traders, Says Vice Governor of Northern Greenland.

Copenhagen.—Eskimos of Labrador appear to be a dying, or at least a deteriorating race, says Harold Lindow, vice governor of northern Greenland, who has just returned from a visit to the Eskimo settlements on the eastern coast of Labrador.

Mr. Lindow said the Eskimo of Labrador did not compare well with the Greenland Eskimo and that they were in great need of protection. He asserted that they were being exploited by unscrupulous traders and driven further north year after year.

IN BED TEN MONTHS A YEAR

Sisters Live Until Nearly One Hundred by Keeping to Their Couches Most of Time.

London.—Dr. Robert Pugh Rowlands declares that lying in bed is injurious to health. But the dictum probably had small effect on the two sisters of Brillat-Savarin, who looked after his country home for the famous epicure.

The aged women remained in bed for ten months of the year, rising two days before their brother was expected on his annual visit in September and living a normal life during his stay. When he left at the end of October they would say: "Adieu, Antheime, till next year. We are going back to bed."

And one of them lived to be ninety-eight and the other ninety-nine.

AIDING WAR VETERANS

Government Is Spending More Than $1,000,000 a Day.

Director of Veterans' Bureau Seeks Half-Billion to Divide Into Seven Composite Branches of Relief Work.

Washington.—More than $1,000,000 a day, including Sunday, is being expended by the United States government for the former service men and their dependents, say government officials.

The 1922 budget estimate of expenditures to be made directly for the benefit of the former warriors, calls for $510,000,000. This huge sum will be divided, Col. C. R. Forbes, director of the United States veterans' bureau, said, into seven composite branches of soldier relief work.

For vocational training, the sum of $167,500,000; for medical and hospital services, the sum of $64,600,000; for payments on war risk term insurance, the sum of $81,700,000; for United States government life insurance, the sum of $161,000,000; for retroactive government allowances on proved and extant claims, the sum of $2,000,000; for salaries and expenses, that is administration, the sum of $31,500,000.

These figures total $514,000,000 from which Colonel Forbes deducts the $5,700,000 to be paid in United States government life insurance claims, on the ground that it is a self-supporting branch of the bureau's activities.

TEACHES AMERICANISM FREE

Maine Woman Works With Adults After Her School Is Dismissed.

Lille, Me.—Inspired by Maine educational leaders to do what she could for Americanization of her neighbors, Miss Leona Cyr has done pioneer work in Aroostook county along this line. She organized an evening class for adults in the rural school which she taught this fall and winter. Most are well-to-do farmers, but illiterate.

A twelve-week term was arranged, kerosene lights were provided for night work, and ten pupils registered the first day, later twenty. One woman of 50 years rides a mile and a half to school, although she is the mother of seven children.

The men pick up English by learning to talk about farm implements and matters relating to their interests at home.

TOWN SELLS FOR $1,572,507

Union Gardens, War Village Built by Ship Board, Is Knocked Down at Auction.

Wilmington, Del.—Union Gardens, a war village of 500 buildings erected by the United States shipping board, brought a total of $1,572,507 at auction.

A flat bid of $1,000,000 for the property by a New Brunswick (N. J.) syndicate was rejected. The houses then were sold singly and in groups. Wartime tenants, still in occupancy, were given the privilege of buying their homes, and many availed themselves of the opportunity.
